BIGGER TAX CUT VOTED; SLASH FUNDS 52 BILLION

Senate Committee Acts to Assist Service Men

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—The senate finance committee tonight voted to reduce individual income tax levies by an additional $563,000,000, and approved a bill cutting total business and individual taxes for 1946 by $5,629,000,000.

After earlier approving a decrease of $2,085,000,000 in individual taxes, the committee increased the cut to $2,648,000,000. This was $21,000,000 more than the $2,627,000,000 reduction approved by the house.

The committee also approved additional benefits for small businesses bringing total corporate reductions, as compared with this year's levies, to $2,841,000,000.

Expected repeal of the use tax on automobiles and boats, with a saving of $140,000,000 to owners in the last half of 1946, would bring the total reductions to $5,629,000,000. Repeal of these levies has been voted by the house and approved by the senate finance committee.

Special Aid for Vets

The total reduction was $279,000,000 more than the $5,350,000,000 cut approved by the house. The committee also voted special treatment for veterans.

The committee, however, decided to let special excise taxes on such things as furs, jewelry, and toilet articles stand at their present rates. The house voted to reduce them to their pre-war levels July 1.

The last minute additional relief for individuals came as a surprise. Chairman George [D., Ga.] said the proposal carried on a show of hands—about 9 to 4, as he recalled.

It calls for figuring individual income taxes on the basis of the formula previously approved by the committee, then deducting 5 per cent of the tax before payment.

The original formula applied surtax exemptions to the 3 per cent normal tax and cut 3 percentage points off each of the graduated surtax rates. Currently, the normal tax carries an exemption of $500 for each taxpayer, regardless of the number of dependents. The surtax exemption is $500 apiece for the taxpayer and each dependent.

36 Million Subject to Tax

Treasury experts present at the closed committee session said that for 32,000,000 of the estimated 36,000,000 persons who will be subject to income taxes next year, the senate bill will grant reductions identical with those voted by the house. The 32,000,000 are those whose surtax net incomes, above exemptions, do not exceed $2,000.

The house had voted to make surtax exemptions apply to the normal tax, and had cut 4 percentage points off each surtax rate. In addition, it had stipulated that each taxpayer was to get a minimum reduction in his tax of 10 per cent—a provision which would have helped high bracket taxpayers.

The experts added that from $2,000 of surtax net income, to an undetermined point — possibly $20,000, $30,000 or $40,000—the senate bill would give more relief than the house bill. Above that level, the

House Unanimous in Support of Economy Bill

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19—The house tonight whooped unanimous approval of a bill slashing 52 billion dollars from current annual appropriations of the government and sent it to the senate.

Rep. Lanham

The greater part of this saving—48½ billion dollars—was ordered lopped from army and navy appropriations with the expressed purpose of "starving" the fighting forces into speeding up the discharge rate of soldiers and sailors.

Moreover, the house appeared ready to indorse a rider sponsored by Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] which would have permitted the discharge of several million service men desirous of release.

Ruled Out of Order

Parliamentary tactics shut off a vote on this proposal, however. It was ruled "out of order" by Rep. Lanham [D., Tex.], presiding in the chair, and Rankin's appeal from this ruling was defeated amidst uproar.

The Rankin amendment would have authorized the discharge of any soldier or sailor who applied for release and who qualified under any one of the following subdivisions: 18 months of active duty; dependent wife, child, or children; dependent mother or father; applicant for government schooling under an interpretation making any service man under 25 years of age automatically qualified for such schooling.

Scenes of disorder took place on the floor as scores of members expressed their resentment at the slow discharge rate of service men. Almost forgotten was the original purpose of the bill, which was to reduce the financial burden inherited by the tax payer from the war.

"Just the Beginning"

Designed to reduce supplemental surplus appropriations, the bill found Republicans and Democrats agreeing that "the job was just beginning" and that further reductions in the current fiscal year's appropriations, possibly 44 billions, must be made.

A technical saving of $400 to every man, woman, and child in the United States was recorded under the measure. That is the sum which would have been added to each individual's share of the national debt if the saving had not been voted. It is the first major economy move of the post-war period.

Rankin sprang his "discharge proposal" after the house had been sitting eight hours and had been

Bare Secrets of President's Railroad Car

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—The world's most secret railway car, gave up its mysteries today.

It is No. 1401, a converted passenger and baggage coach filled with the most modern radio, telegraph, and telephone equipment, which went along whenever the late President Roosevelt made a train trip, and now goes with President Truman.

The coach was displayed at Washington's Union station by the White House signal detachment which after three years of experimentation calls it the most modern and complete mobile communications set-up in the world.

Known as No. 1401

From No. 1401, the name by which the coach has been called by those who knew about it ever since it was borrowed from the B. & O. railroad, the President can, while the coach is in motion:

1. Telephone to any house or to any radio telephone equipped automobile or other vehicle in the United States.

2. Carry on a radio teletype conversation—in virtually unbreakable code—around the world at a rate of 100 words a minute.

3. Send and receive messages to and from ships at sea.

4. Send and receive telegraph code messages.

The newest of the numerous communications devices in the car is the radio teletype. An operator punches out a message on an ordinary teletype keyboard similar to that on a typewriter. The message progresses thru a transmitter into a "scrambler" which puts it into a code difficult to break because of its lack of uniformity.

While It's in Motion

The resulting jargon goes to a "descrambler" at the point of reception, then passes into a receiver and appears, readably, on a teletype receiver.

All this goes on while the coach is in motion. When the train goes thru a tunnel which interferes with transmission the sending is automatically halted, and upon a signal denoting the train has emerged from the tunnel the operator resumes sending. The only visible thing to indicate the nature of No. 1401 is the antenna.

The radio teletype was used regularly for the first time on President Truman's recent trip to Missouri and Tennessee. The communications car went ahead of the President's plane and was waiting for his use at Caruthersville, Mo., and Reelfoot Lake, Tenn.

THOUSANDS DROPPING DEAD IN BERLIN DAILY, BRITISH AUTHOR SAYS

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—People are "dropping dead in the streets of Berlin by the thousands every day," and 12,000,000 persons may die of starvation in Germany in the next few months, Victor Gollancz, British publisher and author, told the United States overseas committee of the "Save the Children" federation tonight.

Dr. Howard E. Kerschner, chairman of the committee, asserted earlier that Churchill's government twice blocked United States efforts to send help to European countries. He declared Britain "must bear the considerable responsibility for conditions in Europe."

Another speaker, Roy Walker, author of "Famine Over Europe," said that Red Cross statements indicated that every child born in Brandenburg province of Germany between 1944 and 1945 is destined to die of starvation or undernourishment.

German University Shut 'Forever', Czechs Decree

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—President Benes of Czechoslovakia has signed a decree closing the 600 year old German university in Prague. All its buildings and equipment will become the property of the Czech university. The proclamation said the German university "ended its existence on May 5, the day of the rising of the citizens of Prague, and will remain closed forever as an institution hostile to the Czechoslovak nation."

Cancels Opening of N. Y. to London Plane Service

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—Pan-American World Airways announced today the beginning of land plane passenger service between New York and London, scheduled for tomorrow, had been canceled and that no new date had been set. Officials said the postponement was made necessary by delay in converting C-54 military planes for the commercial flights.

Hoosier Luck: 1 Patient with 334 Nurses Aboard

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—Seaman 1st Class George Montgomery had an appendicitis attack aboard the frater Ville D'Anvers as he was en route home to Indianapolis from Hawaii. A radio call brought the army hospital ship Republic plowing from Panama toward Los Angeles. Transferred, Montgomery became the Republic's only patient. With 334 nurses to attend him, he was able to walk ashore when the Republic docked today.

An Outdated Rule of OPA Keeps GI Idle

After purchasing a second hand truck, buying new tires, and spending $400 to prepare it for the wholesale meat business Irving R. Keller, 36 year old discharged soldier with nearly four years' service, has been informed by the office of price administration that regulations prohibit him from starting in that business.

Keller, who lives on Dundee rd., Northbrook, found himself one of more than a score of veterans who have been blocked by rule 169 of the OPA revised maximum price regulations which prohibits any one from trucking meat who was not in that business Oct. 1, 1944. On that date Keller was in the army.

Vet Is Discouraged

"I made all arrangements before I got out of the army," Keller said, "but it was not until I had spent all that money that the OPA informed me I couldn't go into business. I thought under the GI bill of rights the government encouraged veterans to start their own business but this doesn't look much like that to me."

James Riley, metropolitan area OPA director, admitted the rule was a "discrimination against service men and should be changed." He said appeals to Washington for several weeks had brought no results so far.

Rule Not Needed Now

The rule originally was intended to curb black market operators, Riley said, but is no longer needed now that meat has become more plentiful.

Edward C. Jordan, head of the OPA investigating staff and veterans' representative in the Chicago OPA office, said more than a score of veterans had been prevented from entering business for themselves in the last four weeks by the rule.

ARMY OFFICERS REVOLT; SEIZE RULE OF NATION

Barracks Bombed; Homes Looted

CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 19 (AP)—More than 50 persons were reported killed and 100 wounded today in an uprising by young army officers that unseated President Isaias Medina y Angarita and apparently left the insurgents in control of Venezuela.

[A radio broadcast from Caracas, heard in Washington, D. C., said a seven man junta had been formed to control the nation until a president can be elected to succeed Medina.]

The uprising began shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday when the officers seized the Miraflores [presidential] palace and the military academy. The officers lured several high officers and cabinet officials to the palace, then held them as hostages.

Presidential Candidate Held

They included Gen. Eleazar Lopez Contreras, independent candidate for president.

During the night the insurgent radio called for armed volunteers. Some gathered at the palace and the military academy and traded shots with the police until dawn. Others roamed the streets searching for police, and there was scattered shooting thruout the city.

Shortly before noon today, seven army planes from the Maracay air base dropped bombs on San Carlos barracks in the heart of the capital and flew menacingly over resisting police headquarters. Police soon surrendered.

President Medina surrendered this afternoon with a few members of his cabinet. Minister of Education Rafael Vegas took refuge, however, in the Mexican embassy.

Begin Looting Homes

As word of Medina's surrender spread in Caracas, thousands of armed civilians began looting homes, including those of high government officials.

Troops were reported en route from Maracay to the capital to restore order. Maracay, strongest military center in Venezuela, was taken by the insurgents after heavy fighting. [Another dispatch said the insurgents had seized Maracaibo also.]

[Insurgent controled Caracas radio station, heard in Bogota, Colombia, at 4:45 p. m. today, announced that "a few pockets of suicide resistance remain" but that all military garrisons were under the control of the revolutionary junta. Listeners to the San Cristobal, Venezuela, radio were told, however, that the revolt centered in Caracas and that the Medina government was in control in the rest of the country. The radio said loyal forces were concentrating in the states of Tachira, Trijillo, Merida, and Lara for a march on the capital.]

Siege in Caracas

A state of siege existed in Caracas, with newspapers censored, radio stations closed, and transport paralyzed. Electric current was shut off in sections of the city and communication with the rest of the country halted.

The insurgent leaders' professed reason for the uprising was their dissatisfaction with what they said was old line military men's use of the country for their own ends.

Lopez Contreras was Venezuela's first president after the 26 year dictatorship of the late Juan Vicente Gomez. Medina, the second, was regarded abroad as having brought his country far along the road to democracy. His party's directors had criticized Lopez Contreras as reactionary.

2 Others Shot in Fight After Auto Crashes

Two young robbers were shot and killed, two were wounded and captured, and a fifth was captured unhurt in a gun fight with a detective bureau squad last night. The battle occurred beneath the Humboldt Park-Logan Square elevated tracks near Wolcott and Milwaukee avs., where the gang's stolen car crashed after a chase.

Those killed were Victor Puzzo, 16, of 1111 S. Mozart st., and Charles De Cola, 19, 2941 Arthington st.

The two wounded are Charles Sineni, 17, of 2858 Taylor st., and Frank Randazzo, 26, of 1047 Belden av., an ex-convict from New York state. The unwounded fifth man is Philip Puzzo, 18, brother of Victor. Both Puzzos are nephews of Randazzo.

Award Winners in Chase

Heroes of the encounter were Sgt. Frank Pape and Detectives Rudolph Friedl and John Moss, the latter two winners of Tribune hero awards. Pape is possessor of numerous creditable mentions.

Randazzo, De Cola, and Victor Puzzo earlier invaded the St. Louis garage at 3453 Roosevelt rd., menaced two Negro attendants, Robert Hill, 3812 Indiana av., and Robert Patterson, 1314 S. Spaulding av., and Patterson's wife, Edna. Hill remembered them, he said later, as the men who held him up six months ago and took a car and $2. One of the men also mentioned the incident. The trio stole a car owned by Raymond Dubinsky, 3525 Douglas blvd., kidnaped Patterson, hitting him when he resisted, and drove away. They let him out at Grenshaw st. and St. Louis av. Meanwhile, Mrs. Patterson called police.

Warning Shots Fired

They were sighted at Division st. and Hermitage av. by Pape and his squad after a police radio alarm had been flashed. The chase headed north in Hermitage av. Not certain that his quarry was dangerous, Pape fired two warning shots. The pursued gang fired two return shots. The pursuit reached 50 miles an hour as the cars zigzagged thru streets and alleys.

The fugitives turned north in Wolcott, av. to Milwaukee av., veered southeast to Wood st., turned south. Then they cut sharply to the right into another alley, seeking to backtrack into Wolcott av., and roared across Wolcott, under the elevated tracks. There they crashed into a post.

The five men leaped out of their wrecked car. Right behind them Detective Fridl stopped the squad car. He leaped out one door, and Pape and Moss jumped out another door, all three with police revolvers drawn.

Runs Behind Pillar

Victor Puzzo, carrying an automatic pistol, ran behind an elevated pillar. De Cola, who also carried a pistol; Randazzo and Sineni crouched behind the stolen car, and Phillip Puzzo crawled under it.

Puzzo and De Cola opened fire on the three policeman. Sgt. Pape advanced from pillar to pillar, while Friedl and Moss attended to Puzzo.

For fully two minutes five guns were blazing. The scene was illuminated by the headlights of the two cars. The hoodlums fired at least 10 shots, and the policemen nearly 20. As quickly as the fight began it ended, with two gunmen dead, two others wounded, and the fifth surrendering.

De Cola was shot twice in the head and once in the shoulder, and Puzzo in the right side of his chest. Sineni was downed with two bullets in the left side and Randazzo was wounded in his left leg. None of the policemen was hit nor was their car touched.

Randazzo Conceals Wound

Sineni was taken to the Bridewell hospital. Philip Puzzo and Randazzo were taken to the detective bureau before the latter's wound was discovered.

Randazzo insisted "We weren't doing anything, just taking a ride." He said he served four years at the Elmira, N. Y., reformatory on a robbery sentence from Brooklyn.

Chief Walter Storms of the detective bureau, praised Pape, Moss, and Friedl. "Chicago should be proud of them," he said.

Stettinius Will Undergo Operation Next Week

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—It was announced today that Edward R. Stettinius Jr., would undergo an operation for gallstones here next week.

OPA RENT RULE BARS BUILDING, REALTORS SAY

Ceilings Hurt City, They Charge

It Really Happened

Denver, Colo., Oct. 19 (AP)—A Denver apartment house owner stepped up to a newspaper want ad counter today and said: "I have six apartments to rent—no objection to children."

A woman grabbed him by the lapels and cried "I heard him first!" A soldier tugged at his coattails.

Others joined in the siege. The landlord temporarily lost his billfold, keys, and spectacle case, but managed to enter his ad and announced firmly that he'd do business only in his office—first come, first served.

BY ORVILLE DWYER

Realtors say that building construction in Chicago is caught between millstones of rising costs of labor, operations, and materials on one hand and rigid OPA rent controls on the other with the result that there is little or no construction.

They assert that Chicago is hit harder by OPA rent ceilings than any other city in the country. They explain the situation as follows:

You can't get an apartment for love or money. There are long waiting lists for all vacancies as they occur. People are watching the death notices and obituaries, besieging the bereaved, for places to live. Men who are offered big money jobs in Chicago come here, hunt vainly, and turn the positions down because they can't find a place for their families. Renters in $150 to $300 a month apartments are buying the buildings in which they live to make certain they won't be thrown out.

Report No Relief in Sight

Representatives or partners in 10 of the city's biggest renting and real estate offices, from the south to the north shore suburbs and from the lake thru Oak Park, yesterday said no relief in the rental situation is in sight. They insisted that the only cure is more building—but that there is little chance for building.

"Apartments? There just aren't any for rent; yet no one is interested in building because you can't get any return on the investment," said Arthur M. Wirtz of Wirtz, Haynie & Ehrat, Inc., 3180 Sheridan rd. "Building costs today are up 50 per cent over 1929. Rents today are two to three times lower than in 1929. Yet builders were only getting a fair return on their investment in 1929."

He spoke of higher priced, higher rent fireproof apartment structures, continuing: "Rents were frozen at a time when one and two year expiring leases were caught at depression levels. Chicago got the worst possible deal in rent ceilings. Now with all operating costs—coal costs, decorating, janitor service, labor of all kinds, elevator operating and operation costs all up, we're still getting $125-$135 a month for apartments which in 1929 rented at $300 a month.

"Owner Can't Break Even"

"The owner just can't break even, much less get an honest return on his investment. They got only a fair return under 1929 conditions—how can they get it now? And how can you get anybody interested in building?

"Much the same is true of private small cost dwellings. FHA will make a 90 per cent loan, and that's fine, but it is difficult to build today at the unit costs demanded by FHA. Consequently there's really only a small amount of home building going on."

How renters of exclusive apartments at 229 Lake Shore dr., 1430 Lake Shore dr., and 1209 Astor st., recently became coöperative owners of the buildings in which they rented was told by Louis C. Sudler of Sudler & Co., 75 E. Wacker dr. Confirming the outlook against an early post-war building boom in Chicago, he said:

"The building in which I myself live at 229 Lake Shore dr. was sold over our heads. The new owner tried to cut my space in half and raise my rent 100 per cent. That roused all the other 2[illegible] tenants of the building, so we got together and bought it as a coöperative proposition, paying the new owner $80,000 profit. We all felt we might be on the street and unable to get a new apartment."

Others Make Similar Deals

After this coöperative purchase, Sudler said, renters in the buildings at 1430 Lake Shore dr. and on Astor st. made similar deals with owners of their buildings and they now own them. He told of the anxiety of apartment seekers to find living quarters. One woman hunting in an exclusive north side section saw a funeral move away from a large building. She inquired at once whether the space of the deceased would be available. Others watched death notices and hurried to inquire. One woman hastened from California because a storage warehouse informed her a prominent apartment holder had taken storage space for his furniture.

Ferd Kramer of Draper & Kramer, Inc., with offices in the loop, on the south shore, in Negro districts, Beverly Hills, Austin, and Rogers Park, said: "Chicago is just bursting with people and no place to put them.

"Nothing except the most necessary war housing has been built during the war. More buildings have burned down or otherwise been deteriorated or destroyed than built in the last five years. People are simply frantic for places to live and there are none in sight. OPA rent controls are otherwise largely responsible. All improvement—any real building boom—is at least a year off."

Expects It to Get Worse

"Unless there is extensive new construction or remodelling—and I can't well see how there can be—things will get worse," said Thomas Fleming of Ross, Browne and Fleming, 919 N. Michigan av. "Rents are frozen at lowest pre-war levels and building will be vastly retarded so long as these rigid controls remain. A few of the bolder, more audacious souls are building, but only the bold take chances. Most builders are cautious and will continue to be so.

"A man who will build can get a new rent level from OPA, but he can't be sure what it'll be. Even if he could, he might be afraid to build in view of the over-all situation, the general low levels. Only some moderate increase in the present rent freeze will help building. As for apartments, there is no letup in the demand and the great scarcity remains."

Duerson Knight of Baird & Warner, Inc., with offices at 1380 E. 53d st., and in Oak Park, Evanston, Winnetka, Rogers Park, and the Uptown district, said: "We're utterly unable to take care of rental demands. We can't even help out a personal friend no matter how we try. There's simply nothing—not anything—for rent. That goes for all our offices in every section. And Chicago hasn't even begun to feel the effect of men returning from the army and navy."

'Can't Build at Rent Levels'

Leonard O'Brien of McKey & Poague, Inc., 1172 E. 63d st., with six south side offices and one in the loop, said apartments are 100 per cent rented and many are waiting for subletting and vacancies. "The situation," he added, "is definitely tough. People can't build apartments at present rental levels."

Much the same story came from C. K. Hunter of Cochran & McCluer company, 111 W. Washington st.; James C. Downs of Downs, Mohl & company, 38 S. Dearborn st., and Fred M. Lorish of Swan-Lorish, Inc., 1355 E. 53d st.

Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] said there is a desperate need for housing for discharged veterans and their families. The need, he said, is for heated apartments of three to five rooms at rentals of $40 to $60 a month. He said that such accommodation should be made available thru the housing center maintained by the city at 39 S. La Salle st., which has a branch at 4130 S. Indiana av. The telephone is Andover 1690.

Want to Purchase Homes

Lindell said 60 per cent of all inquiries for housing are presently from veterans; 95 per cent of the inquiries are from Chicago, and 25 per cent of those inquiring are interested in purchasing homes. He pointed out that the gravity of the situation is indicated by the housing center's operations during the last 10 days. Out of a demand for 2,066 dwelling units, the alderman said, it was possible to supply only 324. Most of these were new construction. With the winter months and other conditions curbing building operations—and with discharge of veterans being hastened—the situation will become increasingly acute, Lindell added.

OPA Official Denies Charges

Concerning the realtors' charges John Joseph Ryan, OPA area rent director, said: "The facts and figures given by the real estate men are not true.

"On March 1, 1942, as a result of the building of large war plants in Chicago, rent vacancies dropped from 15 per cent to 1.1 per cent. Men from out of town going to work in war plants were bidding $125 a month for apartments which were then renting at $100. The Chicago real estate board was told then that if members could control rents the government would not step in. They failed and it did.

"Today we are issuing prior opinions open to any builder. Prior opinions are comparable rents in a given neighborhood, plus a reasonable allowance for increased cost of construction."

FRANCE OFFERS CASH BONUSES TO QUIT CITIES

PARIS, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—A bonus of $560 for a single person and $1,200 for married couple, with $120 for each additional member of the family, was offered today by the French ministry of reconstruction to induce persons to leave heavily populated cities, Paris excepted.

This attempt to solve the housing shortage was begun as a national housing census was opened. This is part of a plan to requisition vacant rooms.

The plan, which will soon become law, provides that at every household two rooms shall be allowed for the first two persons and one for each additional person. Surplus rooms will be liable to requisitioning. Violators will be fined or imprisoned.

VIENNESE URGED TO LEAVE THEIR CITY FOR WINTER

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—Vienna's fuel position is so grave that the city's kommandatur discussed the possibility of evacuating part of the population during the winter, but found the transport problem insuperable, Brig. Reginald Palmer, British representative on the kommandatur, revealed at a meeting of this military government body here today.

All Viennese, however, able to leave the city for the winter were urged to do so, he said. Meanwhile help will be given to repair Vienna's houses and to survey the present housing position.

Stringent control over the distribution of food is to be exercised, Palmer announced.

STALIN IN GOOD HEALTH, PARIS EMBASSY SAYS

PARIS, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—"So far as we know, Marshal Stalin is in excellent health." This was the statement made by officials at the soviet embassy here today when asked to clarify reports concerning Stalin's health.

"In the last 10 months we have been asked 15 times to confirm reports that Stalin is dead," the officials added.

It was learned there was nothing in confidential dispatches reaching the French foreign office to indicate any reason for anxiety concerning the health of Stalin.

[Moscow announced on Oct. 10 that Stalin, who is 66, had left the city for a "vacation and rest."]

POLES EXPEL NO MORE GERMANS, ENVOY INSISTS

LONDON, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—The Polish government has stopped the forcible repatriation of Germans, Henryk Strasburger, Polish ambassador in London, said today.

Quoting press reports that German civilians are still migrating from western Poland, he said, "I doubt whether it lies in human power to stop this spontaneous movement of populations."

Most of these Germans, the reports said, were coming from within the pre-war Polish boundaries. "In other words they are mostly Germans who were settled by their own government during the war in places from which the Hitler administration had expelled the Polish population."

The court ordered confiscation of their possessions.

12 CIVIC GROUPS TO POLICE WORK OF SANITARIUM

Leaders in a dozen civic organizations yesterday formed a permanent joint citizens' committee for tubercular control to keep a continuing check on the food and medical care at the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

Represented at the meeting in the Woman's City Club of Chicago, 410 S. Michigan av., were probably a quarter of a million or more citizens and taxpayers, many of them women, who are substantial contributors towards the three million dollars in taxes Chicagoans pay annually for operation of the sanitarium.

Visits to Patients Planned

Constant scrutiny of the meals, treatment, and other conditions at the sanitarium will be made thru visits to patients by members of the civic bodies. Men and women members of the organizations will go to the institution on regular visiting days and will interview patients outside the presence of doctors and officials. They will report to the joint committee thru their own delegates.

Mrs. T. H. Ludlow, health committee chairman of the Woman's City club, was elected permanent chairman of the joint group. The suggestion for the continual check thru patient interviews, came from Miss Anna Parker, delegate from the Social Service guild.

"When citizens visit an institution, you gain the watchful interest of the patients and the rest of the public," Miss Parker said. "It is a good way to get at the facts and to sift out the chronic complainers from the ones who have valid information.

Suggestions Well Received

"Another value in this continuing approach is that you make the political administration sit up and watch its step. The whole program is predicated on the idea that the administration wants to coöperate—it can hardly do otherwise."

Miss Parker's suggestion was enthusiastically received as a better way to keep track of the sanitarium than tours such as the one made last Friday by five women headed by Mrs. Thornton Forman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

All 12 organizations will have delegations make the sort of patient visiting tours Miss Parker suggested between now and Nov. 30, when the next meeting of the joint control group is to be held.

"Thought They Were Stalling"

Mrs. Forman told the meeting that she and the other women who went to the sanitarium were taken first into the board of directors' room. "We thought they were stalling to allow preparations for our unexpected visit," Mrs. Forman said.

She added that there were 967 patients in the sanitarium last Friday. Reporters have been told recently that 1,300 to 1,300 was the daily average. A physician a few days ago reported he found 250 to 300 of the 1,340 beds are kept empty and 60 to 80 persons are kept on the waiting list for entrance.

Mrs. Forman added that there was one nurse to 30 patients. "At that rate," she commented, "even a bath a day for each patient would keep the nurses busy. But we're sure the patients don't get a bath a day."

Patients themselves by hundreds have reported they take their own baths, wash, make beds, sweep, and do other tasks in the institution.

Individual Food a Problem

Dr. C. I. Reed of the Chicago Nutrition committee, told the meeting that one of the primary problems of tubercular treatment is food on an individual rather than assembly basis.

Mrs. Ludlow commended those who have given their time to the inquiry.

Others at the meeting were Mrs. Mamie W. Taylor, northern district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. H. D. Moses, Cook County League of Women Voters; Dr. Adelaide D. Hoeffel, Chicago Woman's club; Mrs. Morris Greenberg, Chicago Women's aid; Frederick Kuether Jr., Chicago Church federation; Mrs. O. P. Sellers, Chicago Church federation, women's division; Mrs. Arthur Edison, Conference of Jewish Women's organizations, and Mrs. Franklin W. Blye, 1st district PTA.

MONTY WOULD KEEP ARMY IN GERMANY LONG AS POSSIBLE

MAIDENHEAD, England, Oct. 19 (AP)—Field Marshal Montgomery declared today he would keep the British army in Germany "as long as possible."

"Personally, I would say Germany is a very good place to keep the British army," he continued. "I shall keep it in Germany as long as possible and at the expense of Germany."

Asserting that the Germans "like discipline" and are doing what they are told, he said "the thing I am fighting in Germany today is disease. I cannot get the German people anything to eat. You know well what the civilian ration in this country is. The ration I can give them is less than half the civilian ration here. I cannot give them any coal for their houses and they have no real vitamins to resist disease, which already is beginning. I would be happy to insulate the British zone from the others."

FRANCE'S COAL OUTPUT GAINS; GERMANS HELP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Oct. 19—Large scale use of German prisoners of war in the mines has enabled France to step up its coal production steadily until last week it reached 86 per cent of the 1938 [pre-war] level—the highest point since the liberation.

Of the 190,000 underground workers today 28,000 are German PWs, 40,000 Poles, and the remainder French with a sprinkling of Yugoslavs and other foreigners. Government plans are to increase the number of German miners to a maximum of 45,000 as soon as proper housing accommodations can be provided for them.

Seeks Fair Solution

PARIS, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—M. de Langlade, general secretary of the inter ministerial committee on Indo-China, said today that France wanted to find a fair solution of the colonial system. The Annamite nationalist organization, he said, had been a genuine resistance party until March of this year, but since then had received arms from the Japanese and Japanese had mixed with the members. The real trouble was that there were only 2,000 French troops in Indo-China and 80,000 Japanese who were not being properly disarmed, he said.

WEST GERMANS FACE HARD FIGHT AGAINST FAMINE

Area Will Need 3 Million Tons of Grain

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LUENEBURG, Germany, Oct. 19—Even if the 20,000,000 Germans who live in the northwestern section of Germany occupied by the British eat only 1,500 calories a day, it will be necessary to import three million tons of grain during the year to avert famine, a high ranking British military government official said today.

[In the American zone the current allowance is 1,345 calories a day.]

This zone, highly industrialized, always had to import much of its food, but now its predicament is more serious than ever. Battles which raged here only a few months ago reduced the harvest, and the zone is cut off from its natural sources of supply—the grain producing areas of eastern Germany and the cattle and diary lands of Bavaria. The united nations have failed so far to agree on interzonal trading in Germany, adding greatly to the difficulties in this first winter in which Germany must learn to live without nazi leadership.

Seek to Avert Disaster

Because large parts of the population have shown little initiative in preparing for the battle of the winter, Americans and British have worked out plans to stave off disaster.

Shortly after V-E day, Gen. Eisenhower warned the German people they must prepare for the coming winter. The British issued the same warnings but the Germans were either so dazed by defeat or so confident that the united nations would save them from starvation that they took only half-hearted measures.

Failure of the united nations to map out a clear program for a revival of German industry on whatever scale deemed wise further disheartened those in Germany who wanted to go to work to help restore life to normal. The military government in the British zone has worked out housing, health, and feeding programs.

No Coal for Heating

With a great number of the cities in this region—especially in the heavily populated Ruhr—flattened by bombs, hectic efforts were made to carry out enough repairs to provide shelter for the winter. The warmth which the people need cannot be supplied by coal because the coal being mined is needed for transport of food and for processing industries.

Miners in the Ruhr receive 3,400 calories a day to enable them to do their heavy work but they have not been able to mine enough coal to supply households with fuel. The Germans know they must heat their homes with wood.

Authorities in the British zone claim that the Germans failed to collect as much wood as will be needed for heating and cooking and feel this may bring about an epidemic they fear more than any other—influenza.

Authorities are also concerned because the pharmaceutical industries which were partly smashed by war, have failed to produce enough vitamins but efforts are being made to supply them with the raw materials they need to resume production. Drugs have been stored in big quantities to be ready for any possible epidemics. Cod liver oil will be delivered on ration cards to all children under the age of 10 but until the German fishing fleets go out again the production of vitamins will be slow.

So far only minor epidemics have developed in the British zone tho in Berlin dysentery still is a serious problem. In the rest of the occupied zone ample measures were taken to prevent epidemics.

Reports Ike Fears Trouble

LONDON, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—The Luxemburg radio today quoted Gen. Eisenhower as stating at a press conference that the American authorities in Germany are expecting serious disturbances among the civil population with winter.

Husband Piqued

Mrs. Jane Harding Whiston

Mrs. Jane Harding Whiston, 20, of 6347 Winthrop av., a granddaughter of the late John P. Harding, Chicago restaurant owner, yesterday won a divorce from Robert F. Whiston, 24, an insurance and real estate salesman.

Questioned by William C. Boydon, her attorney, Mrs. Whiston told Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court that her husband struck her on Jan. 14 and again on Jan. 28. On the first occasion, she said, he was irritated because she didn't remove a key from her keyring fast enough. On the other, she said, he was piqued because there were no napkins on the table. Her testimony was corroborated by Mrs. Gertrude Harding of 701 N. Michigan av., her mother, and by Miss Patricia Morrison, 6445 Glenwood av.

Judge Robson granted Mrs. Whiston custody of the couple's daughter, Candace Anne, 2 months old, and approved an out of court agreement under which she will receive $100 a month.

END OF DRAFT DEMANDED; CITE GI ENLISTMENT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—Declaring that former service men are enlisting in the army at the rate of 1,500 a day, Rep. Chenoweth [R., Colo.] said today the time has come to stop the draft.

Chenoweth has introduced a bill that would halt selective service drafting 30 days after its passage. He predicted the enlistment rate soon will go up to 2,000 a day.

Chenoweth told a reporter he was informed by the war department that 60,000 former service men have enlisted since Sept. 1. During September, he said, the selective service drafted 51,900 men, of whom 45,000 were 19 or younger.

COME AND GET IT, DENMARK TELLS HUNGRY EUROPE

BY EINAR CHRISTIANSEN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 19—Denmark has cut her rations down to the British level, but all her storehouses today are bursting with meat, which cannot be shipped for lack of tonnage.

The exhausted Danish farming industry succeeded in increasing pigs to nearly 2 million, 60 per cent of the pre-war stock, and last week 45,000 live cattle were offered for slaughtering, of which 32,000 had to be refused as the warehouses are filled to capacity and no shipping was available.

Refrigerator Ships Idle

Denmark has, in vain, drawn the attention of Britain, the United States, and UNRRA to the facts, at the same time forwarding proposals, but no reply has been received so far.

The huge cold storage facilities in north Germany are not being utilized, and refrigerator ships are lying idle in north German harbors. At the same time slaughter houses are forced to return live cattle to farmers, the cattle now consuming fodder that otherwise would be available to further increase production, as a result of the failure of distribution machinery.

Open Negotiations

The Danish food minister, Erik Eriksen, urged that the present meatless day in Denmark be abolished, and other restrictions lifted. But the government hesitates to return to pre-war consumption while hundreds of thousands of people might die of hunger in the coming winter.

Negotiations have been opened with Sweden, Finland, and Poland, for respectively, wood, pulp, and coal. Lack of transportation is the great obstacle.

Denmark would welcome it if public opinion would induce the united shipping pool, UNRRA, and other concerned agencies to overcome difficulties and supply shipping essential to emptying "Europe's bursting larder."

French to Get Canadian Meat

PARIS, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—Canada is to speed up meat deliveries to France, Picare Tanguy-Prigent, French agriculture minister, said here tonight, on his return from the United Nations food and agriculture conference in Montreal. If they were needed, he added, Canada could also supply potatoes and horses [of which the Germans stole many from French farms].

FRANCE AGREES TO FEED GERMAN PRISONERS MORE

FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN, Germany, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—A "very satisfactory solution" has been reached between United States and French authorities on the question of increasing food rations for German prisoners in France. Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith, Gen. Eisenhower's Chief of Staff, said today.

Gen. Smith said 90,000 serious cases among the German prisoners would be transferred back to the United States zone of Germany, to recuperate from malnutrition, after which they would be returned to France.

The flow of German prisoners from the American zone to France has now been resumed, following an assurance from French Chief of Staff Gen. Alfonse Juin, that standards laid down in the Geneva convention would be upheld, he added.

COUNTY AIDS BACK DOUGLAS AIRPORT SITE

Northwest Location Called Superior

The aviation committee of the Cook county board of commissioners, after an extensive survey of suburban territory, recommended yesterday that the Douglas airport site be developed as Chicago's main air terminal. The area northwest of the city has superior advantages in safety, convenience, and adequate space, the committee said.

Other civic leaders and aviation officials have urged that the Douglas site be picked by the Chicago airport selection board for the city's air terminal. The board will meet again Monday in an effort to meet the Nov. 15 deadline for a final decision.

Fits Plans for Future

"The Douglas location is now served by excellent motor highways," said the committee, headed by George F. Nixon. "It also fits into the proposed network of express highways planned for the immediate future.

"The Chicago plan commission reports the population trend to be north and northwest, bringing the Douglas site further within the scope of future users of the airport."

Other members of Nixon's committee are Commissioners Elizabeth A. Conkey, John Mackler, William N. Erickson, and Frank Bobrytzke.

Nixon said the Douglas site, the northeast corner of which is at the intersection of Higgins and LaGrange rds., has no smoke pall and no high structures, such as industrial smoke stacks, to interfere with planes.

Little Moving to Do

"The Douglas location is 16 miles from the Chicago airport," Nixon said. "Civil aeronautics administration experts contend that major airports should be at least 12 miles apart. This is especially important for instrument landings, which will be made in routine fashion in the future.

"By moving some railroad tracks, the Douglas field could be expanded to 5,000 acres or even more. Only a few dozen families would have to be moved in order to do this."

The proposed northwest superhighway, which would pass the Douglas airport in Higgins rd., should be routed east of the north branch of the Chicago river in order to serve the near north side, the board of directors of the North Central association said in a resolution adopted yesterday at a meeting in Hotel Sherman. It pointed out that Chicago's growth has been shifting northward and that the central business district, once outlined by the elevated loop, now extends as far as Oak st.

Plan to Meet Officials

The association's transportation committee, headed by President Joseph R. Frey of the Lake Shore bank, was authorized to name a subcommittee to confer with city, county, and state officials on the proposal for the change in plans. Frederick M. Bowes, vice president of the association, presided at the meeting.

City officials have planned to have the highway routed west of the river, with a branch at Ontario st. leading to the near north side. Other extensions are planned to connect with the proposed Congress st. super-highway.

FOREIGN NATION BUYS EQUIPMENT OF ONE U. S. BASE IN PACIFIC

[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune]

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 19—The program to liquidate Pacific bases no longer needed for strategic defense has already begun, the navy disclosed today with the announcement that the equipment of one has been sold outright to a foreign nation and others have been stripped.

Pacific bases completely liquidated include those on Guadalcanal, the Russells and Solomons, Australia, and New Guinea. The forward base which has been sold "lock, stock, and barrel" was not designated, nor was the name of the purchaser made public.

The navy listed the chief objectives of its liquidation program, which has been under way for three weeks, as:

Quick sale of surplus property, getting the best possible price for the United States; getting our armed forces home from forward bases; helping foreign nations in dire need of materials, and assisting reconversion by moving critically needed materials to the United States.

Further liquidation, the navy said, await congressional policy on the retention of Pacific bases and the size of the post-war navy. However, the navy said it expected that most of the billion dollars' worth of surplus property would be disposed of within six months.

BRITISH ACQUIT THREE IN KILLING OF U. S. SOLDIER

[By Wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune]

LONDON, Oct. 19—Three villagers of Bretforton were acquitted today of manslaughter in the death of Pvt. Walter Shaw, an American Negro. The jury at the Worcester court freed Leslie and Dennis Tompkins and Royston Hay after deliberating 40 minutes.

The men were alleged to have led a mob that chased Shaw across fields and beat him to death, charging that he had stabbed a brother of the Tompkinses at the bar of a 400 year old inn in Bretforton. It was the first recorded instance of a lynching in England and the last recorded trouble around Bretforton since 1459, when some villagers were killed in war.

A constable said Shaw, who was quartered with other Negroes not far from Bretforton, was the first Negro the villagers ever saw. "There are many villagers," he added, "who have never seen a motion picture or traveled on a railway train."

INDICTED NAZI CHIEFS DISCUSS TRIAL IN CELLS

Leaders Will Appear in Court on Nov. 20

NUERNBERG, Germany, Oct. 19 (AP)—Chubby Walther Funk, Hitler's pursekeeper, broke down in tears today when he and his nazi cohorts received their copies of the indictment for the war crimes trials in Nuernberg Nov. 20.

The sobbing Funk, who as minister of economics channeled every cent in the reich to support his fuehrer's war, said:

"I would like to see some officer appointed by the court in order to discuss my defense. I can request counsel at once, can't I?"

Trying to Preserve Health

"I am trying to preserve my health! I have the greatest interest in the conclusion of this trial!" Funk shouted. Funk, 55, was known in his cabinet days for his love of good food and drink.

The other 22 defendants—Hitler's deputy, Martin Bormann, still is missing—received the indictments much more calmly, altho some showed agitation about having legal counsel. They were assured they would have attorneys.

The international war crimes tribunal announced the trials would open in the palace of justice here.

The indictments, charging these men of the nazi hierarchy with crimes against humanity and slaughter of 10,000,000 Europeans, were handed up to the tribunal in Berlin yesterday and served on the defendants in Nuernberg jail today.

Jodl Asks a Question

Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, chief of staff of the German army, calmly asked: "From what category does counsel come? Do I choose a criminal lawyer or an international lawyer?" He was told any lawyer would be acceptable.

Shaggy haired Joachim von Ribbentrop, the champagne salesman who became nazi foreign minister, speaking in English said: "I would like to think this over before saying anything."

Julius Streicher, nazi editor of the anti-Jewish newspaper Der Sturmer, asked right away: "When can I see about counsel?"

He was handed a list of approved lawyers, several of whom had Jewish names.

Spurns Jewish Lawyers

"Is this for somebody who is anti-Semitic?" he asked. "I could not ask a Jew to defend me. I do not know these gentlemen."

Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, once commander in chief of the German navy and Hitler's successor as Fuehrer in the last days before surrender, gave the bearer of the indictment slips of paper containing the names of two lawyers he wanted to defend him.

Austere Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, commented: "I would like to get in touch with my brother-in-law."

Protector Very Nervous

Very nervous, Baron Constantin von Neurath, former nazi foreign minister and later "protector" for Bohemia and Moravia, told the visitors: "No comment."

Fritz Sauckel, general of the SS [elite guard] and storm troopers, said: "I would like to communicate with my family. Is it alright?" He was told yes.

Hans Frank, nazi governor general for Poland, complained to the colonel in charge of guarding the prisoners that he needed more light in his cell, as "It gets dark so early."

"You all have to do your work in daylight," he was told.

Albert Speer, who was nazi armaments and munitions minister, asked: "Is there any possibility of counsel coming here quickly? I have the address of two good ones."

Calls for Son-in-Law

Dr. Hjalmar Horace Greeley Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, said in English: "My son-in-law is a jurist, but not a lawyer. I would like to talk to him."

Also named in the indictment were Rudolf Hess, Hermann Goering, Erich Raeder, Robert Ley, Franz von Papen, Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, Alfred Rosenberg, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hans Fritzsche, Baldur von Schirach, and Wilhelm Frick.

Jackson Issues Statement

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (AP)—Justice Jackson, in a letter to the three other Nuernberg war crimes trial prosecutors made public today, said the reference in the indictment to the Baltic states and other territories as being within the soviet area did not constitute "recognition by the United States of such sovereignty."

COMMONS VOTES LABOR POWERS OF A DICTATOR

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Commons voted Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government authority today to continue sweeping war time economic controls for five years, despite objections by Conservatives that the powers would make parliament "nothing more than a reichstag." The Labor party scored a victory of 199 to 108.

Conservatives said the rigid controls would be unprecedented in England's peace time history, but James Chuter Ede, home secretary, asserted:

"We believe we are entering upon an even greater war, a war against ignorance, poverty, and disease, and we are determined to conduct that war with all the resources that this house places at our disposal."

The bill will go to the house of lords, which may amend it and refer it back to commons, but the passage by commons was tantamount to adoption.

Czar Over Individual Jobs

The bill authorizes the Labor government to send men into the mines and force any person seeking work to register with the Labor exchange and take any job offered.

The government will be able to control prices of food, clothing, building materials and cafe meals, to requisition houses, and to direct factories to do certain kinds of work.

Winston Churchill, kept from parliament debate by a sore throat, sent a message asserting the extension of controls "is an unmistakable warning to the British people."

He charged that Attlee's government was "committed to a series of political and social experiments involving far more drastic departures from our traditional way of life than the nation has yet realized."

Fight for Liberty Pledged

The former prime minister said his party would "oppose every effort, whether undisguised or camouflaged, to whittle away individual liberties or to impose state domination."

A former minister of trade and production, Oliver Lyttelton, fought unsuccessfully to limit the government's control of economic powers to two years. Just before the vote, he cried out:

"There will be many members who support the government who will live to regret this derogation from their powers."

Commons defeated 212 to 83 an amendment offered by Lyttelton to bind the government to make regulations only to insure "fair prices."

Fears Trade Discrimination

David M. Fyfe, former solicitor general, said one reason for the Labor government's proposed controls was to "discriminate against individual business."

An amendment by Lyttelton to prevent control that would permit governmental discrimination against business was defeated, 232 to 98.

Quinton Hogg, a Conservative, said:

"We are asked to do something which no legislature has done since the days of Charles I., that is to govern without parliament. We are asked to give the executive the power to control prices in such a way that they do not have to describe their motives for so doing."

CHARGES NAZIS ATE HOSPITAL'S FOOD AT BELSEN

LUENEBURG, Germany, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—Food intended for hospital patients at the nazis' Belsen concentration camp never reached them—doctors and orderlies "got fatter and fatter, but the patients in their care were dying day after day."

That was the story told to a British military court today by Karl Francioh, one of 45 bosses and guards on trial for mass murder at the Belsen and Oswiecim [Auschwitz], Poland, camps.

Francioh, 33 and a member of the SS [elite guard], is alleged by the prosecution to have been involved in the murder of 54 persons. He testified that he worked in the camp kitchen and that food for the hospital patients was left outside the kitchen every day but did not reach the patients.

REFUGEE TELLS HOW REDS RAPE POLISH CHILDREN

Assault Women in Warsaw Streets

Charges Red Looting

PARIS, Oct. 19 (AP)—Stanislaw Skrzeszewski, Polish ambassador, today indicated that pillaging by Red army troops in Poland had reached considerable proportions. He explained that the recent accord for a Russian garrison to be stationed in each Polish provincial capital was to stop the marauding. Speaking at a press conference, he ascribed the pillaging to Russian soldiers who had broken discipline.

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 18 [Delayed]—Murder and rape were described as common street scenes in Warsaw and Poznan by a 34 year old Polish maritime captain who arrived here a week ago after escaping from the Russians by a taxicab ride from Warsaw to Gdynia and a boat trip across the Baltic.

He described gruesome daylight atrocities by the Reds, referring to his pocket notebook to name times and places. He told of black market sales of united nations relief and rehabilitation administration goods at exorbitant prices, a story also told here a few days ago by a Swiss family from Danzig.

The informant said he was a nephew of the former Polish Finance Minister Wachourakwojewoda. He said his wife, now in the British zone in Germany, is the former Jadwiga Falkowska of Pittsburgh. He does not want his own name published because his mother is still in Russian controled territory.

Rape Women in Public

The refugee said Russian soldiers prowl Warsaw and Poznan in groups of five or six. He said they assault women on the sidewalks and front porches, taking turns with the victim. The crimes are watched by men, women, and children, according to this Pole.

"I have seen it done in vestibules, on boulevards, parkways, and market squares," he said. "Girls of 12 to 16 are taught to stay in hiding because they are favored victims.

"On Oct. 10 in Posen," he continued, referring to his note book, "a Russian picked up a girl of about 12, who was walking home from school. It was twilight. He took her to a grass plot in a traffic circle and overpowered her.

Kills Three Children

"This was near the center of the business district. The girl's screams attracted her school mates. The little boys and girls stood in a circle. The Russian looked up and yelled at them to go away. They did not understand or were too petrified to move. The Russian got up, picked up his automatic rifle and sprayed the children with bullets. Three were killed and several others wounded. Then the Russian resumed his assault on the child.

"Civilians do not call for help, because there are no police—just more Russians. The only counter measure against rape I saw in Poznan was a special clinic named Kowalskiego, which is operated by Poles, to treat the victims. I know about it because my cousin was a patient there. Its average occupancy is 200 to 300 women.

"These and other conditions are difficult to believe. I was on a street car in Poznan. At Kraszewskigo station a Russian soldier started to get off on the wrong side of the car. The Polish conductor told him he could not get off on that side. The Russian shot and killed the conductor, got off on the wrong side and walked away."

The Pole said he fought under Gen. Bor in Warsaw for two months in 1944, in the uprising against the Germans ordered by the Polish government in London but not supported by the nearby Russian troops. He escaped capture by the Germans, but was arrested later when the Russians took Warsaw.

FIND BORMANN SOUGHT TO GET OUT OF BERLIN

LONDON, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy and the one leading Nazi missing at the forthcoming Nuernberg trial, made an attempt to get out of Berlin and reach Adm. Karl Doenitz, Hitler's successor, at his northern headquarters on the day Hitler's death was announced. Documents captured when the allies took over Doenitz' last headquarters at Flensburg disclosed this fact.

This is why the allies regard the possibility of Bormann's survival as great enough to include him among the indicted 24 nazi leaders.

The Flensburg documents—which became available today—show that Doenitz, when he announced Hitler's death and his own succession, acted in good faith on the basis of the last messages that reached him from Berlin.

GURKHAS OCCUPY JAVA PORT; NINE DIE IN CLASHES

Four Japs, 3 Dutch Killed in Skirmishes

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SEMARANG, Java, Oct. 19—British Gurkha troops landed in this troubled seaport on North Java today, turning Jap-Indonesian street fights into a three-way war. Two Gurkhas and four Japs were killed and a Dutch doctor injured as Japs and Gurkhas mistook each other for Indonesians and fired. Three Dutch ex-prisoners of war also were killed during the skirmishes.

A Jap captain and a British major stopped one fight outside a church. A truck load of the Japs had approached the church where the Gurkhas were grouping. A second fight broke out as Japs in a building sniped at Gurkhas advancing along the street. The Indonesian governor, carrying a white flag, walked into the middle of this fight and stopped it.

By noon the Jap officers commanding the city and British officers met outside the church and agreed to a division of the city which it was hoped would halt the clashes.

Bodies Lie in Streets

This city of a quarter of a million population has been a no-man's land since Sunday when the Japs started to carry out allied orders to regain control from the Indonesians.

Bodies of Indonesians killed in frequent street fights still lie in the streets where they fell.

The Japs report they now control most of the city and have guards at the Dutch internee camps. The Japs will be replaced by the Gurkhas.

British and Dutch officers who came here months ago have been holed up in their hotel since Sunday. On that day two British officers were detained by the Indonesians but were released two hours later.

U. S. Food on Way

BATAVIA, Java, Oct. 19 (AP)—Seventy thousand tons of foodstuffs and clothing purchased from the United States army in the Southwest Pacific are on the way for the relief of East Indian islanders, Dr. J. E. van Hoogstraten, director of economic affairs of the Netherlands East Indies, announced today.

He said United States Liberty ships now were being loaded by American soldiers at Finschaven, Biak, and Hollandia, New Guinea, and the first steamer, the James Corbett, would arrive in Batavia on Monday. The shipments will include 10,000 tons of tinned army rations, 15,000 tons of textiles, 500,000 army shoes, 15,000 tons of clothing, 10,000 tons of medicines, a 1,000 bed hospital, and great quantities of post exchange stores.

The Dutch are negotiating to take over the United States naval base at Hollandia with its stores of food, clothing, and valuable equipment, Hoogstraten said.

Ask Probe by British.

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A spokesman for Indonesian elements demanding independence from the Netherlands has asked Britain to send a parliamentary comittee to the East Indies "to investigate the real situation," the Free Indonesian radio announced tonight.

British troops are helping the Dutch to reoccupy Java, an dhave been used to put down Indonesian uprisings.

Foreign Minister Soebardjo of the Free Indonesian republic asserted "there are no Dutch Indies, only the republic of Indonesia," the broadcast said. "There is no Dutch government at all in Indonesia."

PEIPING CHINESE KILL 3 JAPANESE IN LITTLE TOKYO

PEIPING, China, Oct. 17 [Delayed]—(AP)—An angry crowd of Chinese surged thru the "Little Tokyo" section of Peiping last night and in a series of attacks killed three Japanese and injured several others.

Japanese civilians were reported beaten and stoned by the mob in the first open violence against the Nippon people since arrival of American and Chinese soldiers in the former capital.

The attacks were similar to disturbances reported several days ago in Tientsin, where Chinese entered homes of Japanese and injured several hundred.

Peiping police quickly restored peace and warned the Nippon civilians to remain in their quarters.

The outbreak was credited to the overexuberance of the people at the arrival of the first national Chinese troops they have seen in more than seven years.

Earlier, a group of Chinese school children chased three Japanese girls into the Pekin hotel grounds, where they were given protection by American marine police.

Outside the city American crewmen and 50 Chinese soldiers were killed when a troop plane crashed while attempting to land on Nanyuan air field near Peiping.

Ports at which navy will keep various types of ships.

Designates Ports

New York, Oct. 18 [Special]—Demobilization of material as well as men is giving both the army and the navy problems unprecedented in history. A survey of the tremendous job confronting the navy showed these tasks ahead:

More than 2,200 ships, vessels, and craft must be laid up in the reserve fleet along the east, gulf, and west coasts. Some 5,000 more vessels will be sold or scrapped. Disposition must be made of 25,000 naval aircraft.

Altho lay up sites for ships of the reserve fleet already have been selected, few of the areas are equipped as yet to berth and handle the great number of ships assigned to them. Until these facilities are available, some ships will be anchored in "nests" instead of berthed alongside docks.

NOTED KOREAN EXILE TO RETURN TO HIS PEOPLE

Kim Koo to Meet Gen. Hodge

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 19 (AP)—Kim Koo, 70 year old exiled Korean leader who says he has been fighting Japan for 52 years, announced today he is ready to return as a private citizen, to assume any role the people choose to give him.

He is president of the "provisional government of the republic of Korea"—which is 26 years old but not recognized, thus far, by any nation. Kim formerly led the Independents' party in Korea, an early day predecessor of the present democratic, socialist, and communist factions.

Dr. Rhee in Seoul

Dr. Syngman Rhee, former president of the provisional government, now in Seoul, told newsmen there that he had returned at the invitation of American occupation authorities, and that Lt. Gen. Hodge, American occupation commander, also was inviting Kim Koo to return.

"The first thing I want to do," he said, "is to get rid of all Japanese there, and try to merge American and Russian zones into one. From the economic, political, and every other point of view, the present situation is unsatisfactory."

Began War at 18

Kim's future plans, he said, will be decided by the outcome of his hoped for conference with Gen. Hodge.

Kim said he began his anti-Japanese war at the age of 18, even before Japan occupied Korea; that he killed a Japanese agent when he was 22.

MAC ARTHUR IS IN PERFECT SHAPE, SPOKESMAN SAYS

TOKYO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur is in "perfect physical condition," a spokesman at supreme allied headquarters said today in commenting on an American columnist's report that the occupation commander in chief might retire because of heart trouble.

MacArthur has "never been more fit than at present in the entire four years' campaign" in the Pacific, added the spokesman. "There is not the slightest word of truth in gossip about MacArthur's health."

[In a column published Oct. 15 Walter Winchell said correspondents back from Japan had reported MacArthur might retire soon because of "serious heart disturbances."]

Col. Roger O. Egeberg, MacArthur's personal physician, is en route by air to his home in Cleveland for discharge. He expected to visit at his home before proceeding to a separation center.

TOKYO, Oct. 19 (AP)—All restaurants and drinking places in Tokyo have been placed out of bounds for American service men. 603 JAP SHIPS SUNK IN LAST 4 MONTHS OF WAR

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Oct. 19 (AP)—Japanese navy statistics, released today by fleet headquarters, disclosed that 603 Japanese vessels, totaling 1,458,000 tons, were sunk or damaged from all causes, but chiefly by mines, between April 1 and Aug. 1. The ships were of 500 tons or larger.

Effectiveness of the mine laying campaign, designed to isolate Japan from the Asiatic mainland, was demonstrated by the fact that more than 52 per cent of the total tonnage was accounted for by mines. Ships sunk or damaged by mines in the four month period totaled 297.

Actual sinkings detailed by the Japanese showed 127 by mines, 94 by aircraft, 80 by submarines, and 15 by all other causes.

SEIZE VETERAN WHO USES FAKE GUN IN ESCAPE

Using a broken chair rung as an imitation pistol which he thrust in the back of a Fort Sheridan military policeman, Sgt. Raymond C. Mutz, 39, an overseas veteran awaiting discharge, yesterday seized the M. P.'s service revolver, forced three soldiers to drive him to Skokie highway and made his way in hospital pajamas and bathrobe to Chicago. He was captured two hours later. Mutz had been arrested in a loop hotel Wednesday for creating a disturbance and placed in the psycopathic section of the Fort Sheridan hospital. Chicago police were notified of his escape and arrested him at Pulaski rd. and Milwaukee av.

REDS' STAND ON PEACE PARLEY EXPECTED SOON

MOSCOW, Oct. 19 (AP)—Russian reaction to the United States' proposal for a general European peace conference may be made known shortly, foreign diplomats here believe.

News pertaining to the conference, suggested by Secretary of State Byrnes after the breakdown of the London foreign ministers meeting, is expected upon the return of Stalin, now on vacation, and the British and French ambassadors.

Well informed diplomats expressed the opinion that the soviet union desires a continuation of the close collaboration with her war time allies, and that relations are improving despite the differences which existed at the recent ministers' conference.

JAPAN'S CABINET SEES REFORM OF VOTE AS NO. 1 JOB

TOKYO, Oct. 20 [Saturday]—(AP)—Sources close to Premier Shidehara said the Japanese cabinet considers the formulation of election reforms as its basic policy making task, with other fundamental reforms to be left to a government "more representative of the people."

The cabinet continued today its series of extraordinary meetings to consider problems raised by Gen. MacArthur's social reform directives.

Key American officials said no specific allied directive has been issued to the imperial government for the breakup of the "Zaibatsu," the Japanese name for mammoth family controled industries.

No Hint of Stalling

These officials said they saw no indication that Shidehara's government was stalling on MacArthur's earlier suggestion to the premier that monopolies be "democratized."

The new National Federation of Toilers meanwhile drew a capacity crowd to a mass meeting which heard open denunciation of communist aims, and reaffirmed stanch support of the throne, which Communists propose to abolish.

Communist leaders received no immediate reply to a bid yesterday for socialist support in a united front against Shidehara's government, which the Communists said "has no ability to cope with the present situation."

Denies Russian Help

The invitation was extended by communist leaders Yoshio Shiga, Shigeo Kamiyama, and Ichizo Matsumoto in a formal visit to the office of the Japan Socialist party. Shiga said Communists were convinced that the two groups, once bitter political foes, could coöperate in a "unified, single trade union."

Shiga said his party organization never has received assistance from the soviet union. Shiga, recently released from Fuchu prison along with 14 other comrades, said Communists in Japan have no present connection with Moscow and no intention of forming any.

Written Japanese army and navy orders that urged killing of allied prisoners of war on the slightest provocation now are held in headquarters files for probable use in war crimes trials. One Japanese soldier read his orders, then noted in his diary: "Kill as many prisoners as possible."

Freezes Bank's Accounts

Gen. MacArthur froze the bank accounts of Ando Moku, chief of the personnel section of the Imperial bank of Tokyo, and Imoi Meiji, president of the Chosen bank at Seoul, Korea.

MacArthur's economic investigators alleged 3,000,000 yen had been transferred illegally from the Seoul branch of the Imperial bank of Tokyo to Moku's personnel account.

Walter Hibbard, 30, of 912 Montrose av., his wife, Virginia, 32, and Mrs. Macey Rusnik, 33, of 4928 Sheridan rd., were seized last night as they left a bingo game in St. Maurice church, 3615 S. Hoyne av., where, police said, they attempted to win a $600 jack pot by fraud.

Detective Walter Payne of the confidence game detail said Hibbard and the women confessed. In their possession was found equipment for stamping numbers on a counterfeit bingo card. Hibbard said he stamped four numbers perfectly, as they were called, but botched the job of making an imprint of the fifth number—45—which would have completed the card.

Hibbard told police he worked the game and won $600 in Cincinnati, O., before he and the women came to Chicago several weeks ago.

SEND US HOME IN CARGO VESSELS, YANKS DEMAND

Manila Vets Say Ships Return Empty

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 19 (AP)—United States enlisted men in the Philippines, writing in the letters column of the army newspaper Daily Pacifican, accuse army authorities supervising the homeward shipment of veterans of stalling, inefficiency and promise breaking.

The writers complained that the army was failing to make use of dozens of cargo vessels sailing empty for the United States. They said they sailed in these ships in various Pacific landings, and described as "phoney" the army's solicitude for their comfort now.

Recently army officials said fraters were unsuitable for deploying troops home, but one letter said: "Give us a case of 10-in-one rations and we will be tickled to death to ride cargo ships home."

The Pacifican quoted Col. C. H. Davidson, superintendent of the water division, port of Manila, as saying he could put Liberty ships in shape to carry 75 troops each, some with 48 hours' work by 50 men.

"It's been done before," said Davidson. "If the ships are allocated, I can have each one ready to carry 75 troops back to the United States in comparatively good living conditions within 48 hours if I can have 50 men to work on each of them."

Veterans also complained that the army is violating its promise to send home the highest point men first. They said the policy of sending divisions home by the unit, including some 60-pointers, leaves 70 and 80-pointers sitting on the docks with no transportation.

The army's "red apple" recruitment plan, they said, also has irked veterans, since those who reënlist get top priorities for the ride home and for furlough. Many recent arrivals have taken advantage of the reënlistment plan, they said, as they know they wouldn't get home for a year.

COUNTY BOARD TO SEEK POWER ON AIR FIELDS

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19 [Special]—Because of the opposition of town boards to the location of 12 airports in their respective townships, the county board will ask the next legislature for authority to override them, members of the board highway committee decided today.

The airports to be built, in addition to Billy Mitchell field, are opposed by all town boards in the county. Roy Nordstrom, chairman of the town of Wauwatosa, was the latest to object today to the location of a proposed airport at W. Capitol dr. and W. Appleton av. He said the board might approve some other site, adding that the residents feared low flying and consequent depreciation of their property.

George F. Mueller, chairman of the town of Milwaukee, said his board was opposed to any airport in the town because of the belief that it would reduce property values. The town of Greenfield has already gone on record against the projected Honey Creek airport.

BRITAIN'S DOCK STRIKERS RAISE CRY OF 'POLITICS'

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Leaders of London's unauthorized dock strike charged before 6,000 cheering stevedores today that employers were prolonging the nation-wide walkout in attempts to break up Britain's new Labor government.

"Don't be hoodwinked," shouted D. J. Foley at a demonstration at the Tower of London. "The employers' policy is deliberate provocation. They want to stir up feeling against the government and the trade unions.'

Scores of ships stood idle, the nation's food supplies dwindled, the press warned of starvation, and the walkout spread to Belfast, where 350 men quit, and to Greenock, Scotland. Wage negotiations were stalemated. Employers rejected demands for a 40 hour week and offered a guaranteed minimum wage of $64 monthly, against a demand for a $5 day wage.

VOTE NEW CUT OF 563 MILLION IN INCOME TAX

Senate Unit Acts to Aid Veterans

Relief for Small Firms

Previously the committee had voted to repeal the excess profits tax on corporations effective next Jan. 1 for a $2,555,000,000 cut. Late today it approved $58,000,000 additional relief for small corporations, and voted to repeal the declared value excess profits tax and the capital stock tax for another $228,000,000 reduction. The house also had voted to do away with the latter two levies.

The committee voted these special relief provisions for veterans:

Enlisted personnel would be forgiven all income taxes on their service pay during the war years. They would not be required to make out returns, and if they had paid the tax they would receive refunds.

Officers would be allowed a three year extension of time in which to pay taxes on their service pay, without interest charges, provided they paid off in 12 quarterly installments. At present, they have a six month period after their return to this country in which to arrange for extension of payments, which bear 6 per cent interest.

To Lose Little Revenue

Persons who entered the service before the pay-as-you-go tax law went into effect would be granted a three year extension for paying any unpaid balance of taxes on their earned income [defined as not to exceed $14,000] in civilian life for years prior to 1942.

Cancellation of the tax on enlisted men's service pay will result in only a slight loss of revenue, officials said, because service personnel already get a personal exemption $1,500 larger than that available to civilians.

In addition, the senators approved house action in freezing the social security pay roll tax for another year at the present rate of 1 per cent each on employers and employes. Without such action, the rate automatically would rise to 2½ per cent each Jan. 1.

Two Concessions to Business

In two special concessions to business voted by the senate group corporations were given an extra year's time, past Dec. 31, in which to retire their own bonds at less than face value without recognition of gain. Railroads emerging from reorganization proceedings would be given a similar extension of time in which they could cancel out their indebtedness.

Another concession would trim some of the graduated surtax rates on corporations with less than $60,000 net income. The combined normal and surtax rate on the first $5,000 of net income would become 25 per cent; from $5,000 to $20,000 it would be 27 per cent, from $20,000 to $25,000 it would be 29 per cent. The present "notch" or change point at which the regular combined rate of 40 per cent becomes effective would be raised from $50,000 to $60,000.

The committee will meet Tuesday to make a final inspection of the bill. George said it could not be turned over to senate for action before Wednesday.

RAIN ENDS AFRICA DROUTH

PARIS, Oct. 19—After a drouth lasting many months—18 in some sections—rain was reported today from several parts of North Africa. In southern Algeria the drouth had brought about famine conditions.

Frolic Early

The triplet calves born Wednesday on the Runge brothers' farm at Hampshire, Kane county, yesterday had astounded local veterinary circles by continuing not only to live, but to frisk about as agilely as normally born calves. Twin bovine births are rare, veterinarians said, and triple births almost unheard of. In the few occasions recorded the triplets usually were born dead or died shortly afterward. The calves, two heifers and a bull, weighed a total of 216 pounds. Their mother is a five year old Holstein milk cow. The farm is owned by Howard and Terrence Runge.

DE GAULLE HAS A PROBLEM—WHO TO RESIGN TO?

Cabinet Doesn't Relish Idea of Quitting

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Oct. 19—Gen. De Gaulle found himself in a curious position today. As chief of the provisional government he promised in a radio broadcast that he and his provisional cabinet would resign as soon as France was able to elect a representative legislature.

This time has now come with the elections due to be held Oct. 21. According to procedure, De Gaulle is scheduled to hand in his resignation and that of the cabinet on Nov. 6, the day the newly elected assembly meets and chooses its presiding officer.

But the question arises—to whom shall De Gaulle hand his resignation? To the presiding officer of the new chamber, say some of his advisers.

He's Looking Around

But his combinet members disagree and also some of his political advisers. If De Gaulle hands his resignation to the president of the new assembly, that implies that the assembly president is the biggest shot in France and gives him too much prestige. Who else then? There is no king of France and no president.

So De Gaulle is looking around to find some one suitable to accept his resignation.

According to the French press today, De Gaulle's cabinet ministers were not happy about his promise over the radio last night to resign not only his powers but also theirs. Many of them will not be in the next cabinet. They want to hold on as long as possible.

"It is all right for you to quit. You have a good chance to come back in the new setup. But why resign for us?" they are reported to have told the general at yesterday's cabinet meeting.

May Be Marshal

There were renewed charges today that Gen. De Gaulle has turned the referendum on how France is to be governed in the future into a personal plebiscite for himself, by entering the lists with a recommendation, as he did in his broadcast speech to voters on how they should vote.

There are reports that De Gaulle will be made a marshal after the constitutional question is settled. Marshal is not a military rank but a dignity bestowed for outstanding services in France. De Gaulle was a colonel when the war broke out.

Observers are wondering whether a last minute election deal has been made between the left parties and Edouard Herriot's Radical Socialists to draw up a common program for the new assembly. Will there be a new "cartel des gauches" or leftist coalition?

AIR POWER BEST A-BOMB DEFENSE, ARNOLD ASSERTS

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19—Defense against atomic bombs, rockets, and other missiles of war depends on the ability to mount a rapid air attack against the source of such weapons, Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, told the senate military affairs committee today.

Backed by a massive chart showing the vulnerability of the United States to attacks from the air thru the polar regions, Arnold urged immediate passage of legislation placing the army, navy, and air forces on an equal status within a unified department of national security.

Problem of Security

"Such developments," said Arnold, "as the atomic bomb, the V-2, and the whole range of radio directed and homing missiles accentuate the security problem of the air. The basic defense against such a plan of attack must lie in ability to mount rapid, powerful offensive action against the source. Responsibility for this defense will rest on the air force."

Arnold said future air warfare will not be auxiliary to ground or naval action. It may occur hundreds or thousands of miles from such action, he said.

The air chief said the recent war had taught the need of coördinated land, sea, and air forces, operating under one command and that fundamental air power must be given equal status with the army and navy.

Unified in Pacific

In the European theater, Arnold said, it was not possible to exploit the versatility of air power until all air forces were grouped under a unified command in February, 1943. But in the Pacific, he said, the three-way organization of land, sea, and air forces was adopted early in the war, with Gen. MacArthur as supreme commander, and that its effectiveness was proved in the campaigns from New Guinea to the Philippines.

Arnold reminded the committee that six months after the official end of hostilities the army air forces—now equal with the ground forces, will revert to its pre-war status of an air corps corresponding to infantry, ordnance, and other branches of the army. Formation of the separate army air forces was possible under the President's war powers and only congress can prevent reversion of air power to its pre-war status, the general said.

Unless the air forces remain a separate entity, most of the plans for new planes, new air weapons, and new tactics will have to be "put on ice," Arnold said.

Arnold disclosed hitherto secret data on new planes for the army as proof of the need for unrestricted development. The B-36 bomber, which did not see action, can carry a 200,000 pound bomb load at 35,000 feet altitude at 370 miles an hour, he revealed. Its bombing range was reported to be 10,000 miles.

Develop Cargo Versions

The famous B-29, Arnold said, carries a 104,000 pound bomb load at 35,000 feet at 380 miles an hour and with a 5,000 mile range. The B-35 "Flying Wing" experimental bomber would carry 140,000 pounds of bombs at 394 miles an hour at the same altitude and has a range of 9,000 miles, he said.

Cargo versions of the B-29 and B-36 are being developed, Arnold said. The C-97, cargo version of the B-29, will carry 36,000 pounds of frate, or 137 troops, 1,000 miles at 240 miles an hour. The giant C-99, converted from the B-36, will carry 100,000 pounds of frate or 400 men 1,700 miles at 200 miles an hour, Arnold revealed. The C-54, present army cargo plane, has a capacity of 15,000 pounds or 40 men, a range of 1,700 miles, and speed of 202 miles an hour.

HOUSE PASSES 52 BILLION CUT WITH A WHOOP

Approves Fund Slash Unanimously

Job Services to States

Notable among these was a Republican victory on a proposal to return to the individual states the administration of unemployment compensation and employment service facilities which has been under federal war time control.

Sponsored by Rep. Dirksen [R., Ill.], this move was opposed by administration forces led by Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, who countered with an amendment deferring the transfer until July 1, 1946.

Republicans, joined by a number of Democrats, charged that under federal control job applicants were being urged to accept unemployment compensation rather than menial labor and that confusion was being caused by federal inefficiency in the distribution of jobs.

When the test came, the McCormack amendment was defeated and the Dirksen amendment upheld, 162 to 101, with some 40 Democrats joining Republicans to give a setback to President Truman, who had recommended federal control until 1947.

Rankin Stuns House

Hardly had the excitement over this battle died than Rankin stunned the house with his proposal which would have permitted the immediate discharge of at least half the army and the navy.

"If Gen. MacArthur can control the Japanese empire with 200,000 men," he said, "why are we keeping more than 3 million men under arms in the continental limits of the United States today? We might just as well pass this bill now because we're going to pass it sooner or later!"

Rep. O'Neal [D., Ky.] made a point of order against the Rankin amendment. It was not germane to the purpose of the bill, he said.

"It's germane to the morale of the country!" shouted Rep. Brehm [R., O.], amid applause.

"Why not be forthright about this?" persisted Rankin. "Thru this bill, you're trying to starve the army and navy into discharging men. Let us directly order them to do it."

House Backs Lanham

"This legislation is brought in here at a late hour without previous consideration," insisted O'Neal. "No matter how worthy its objectives and how much most of us approve it, we ought not to consider it in this manner."

Lanham then ruled that the proposal was not germane to the bill.

"I appeal from the ruling of the chair to the house!" shouted Rankin.

Special Pleas Defeated

Earlier, the house beat down attempts to soften reductions for this or that bureau.

"There still remains some 44 billions of velvet kicking around which must be recovered into the treasury before the government departments run wild and spend it," warned Rep. Taber [R., N. Y.].

The end of the war found the army, navy, and other government departments with 146 billion left to spend during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946.

Cut to 94 Billion

Passage of today's bill reduced the balance to 94 billion dollars. Taber, saying 50 billion was sufficient to run the government during the fiscal year, demanded another bill in the near future to save 44 billion more.

Despite the 30.9 billion taken from the army, it will have 23.8 billion for the rest of the fiscal year. The navy loses 17.6 billion but will have 57.3 billion until next July 1.

Regular government departments take a 3.8 billion slash, but have 12.7 billion left.

The office of price administration takes a reduction of 25.9 million, but will have 148.5 million for the rest of the fiscal year. Lend-lease, ended by the President Aug. 17, is slashed by 2.3 billion, leaving 1.8 billion to "liquidate commitments for goods and services and incidental administrative expenses."

LABOR TURMOIL IS CHIEF ISSUE IN DETROIT VOTE

CIO Mayoral Candidate Hurt by Strikes

BY ARTHUR EVANS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19—Detroit's battle over the election of a nonpartisan mayor Nov. 6 is regarded as having considerable national significance.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries is opposed for a fourth two year term by Richard T. Frankensteen, an international vice president of the United Automobile Workers, largest of the CIO unions. Both men are natives of Detroit.

It is the third attempt of the CIO in eight years to elect a mayor of the automobile capital, and the first time an official of the CIO has been in the race. The campaign, which has been overshadowed by the strikes and labor disputes, is taking on heat.

Close Battle Indicated

The national industrial situation is interwoven with the local political contest and as the contest tightens it seems to be a close battle. Sidney Hillman's CIO-PAC is being made one issue by Mayor Jeffries.

A record registration is expected to aid Frankensteen. On the other hand, the recent strike of the oil workers and resulting gas rationing by the CIO for a week is said to have had an unfavorable effect on CIO candidates. All other issues are in the political balance and experts are trying to figure how the final fortnight will affect the blood pressure of the voters.

Organized labor is divided. The AFL unions are supporting Mayor Jeffries. The CIO claims 400,000 members in the Detroit area. The AFL is figured to have around 120,000, largely in the building trades and teamsters unions. The question of whether the labor vote is politically deliverable is being debated.

Democrats Angered

The Wayne county Democratic club indorsed Frankensteen, breaking precedent and bringing criticism that it is against the spirit of the nonpartisan election. Old line Democrats are angry. Frankensteen, however, has cut some figure among the Democrats. At their state convention last year at Grand Rapids, he was quite dominant and exercised a veto power on slate candidates he did not favor. At the Chicago national convention he carried the banner for Henry Wallace for Vice President. The Socialist party and the Commonwealth Federation also are supporting him.

In the August primaries, in a field of seven, Frankensteen led Jeffries by 14,000 votes. The election next month is the run-off.

Two years ago in the primaries Frank FitzGerald, a lawyer candidate, led Mayor Jeffries by 3,000. In the election, however, Jeffries won by 32,000.

Veterans Vote Is Question

One question is how the returned veterans will vote. Another is how many CIO war workers have returned to their old homes since the war ended.

Mayor Jeffries, in his campaigning, declares the main issue is whether Detroit's government shall be dominated by Hillman's political action committee.

"If this national PAC invasion came to pass, Detroit would become the no man's land of industrial America," he says. "The PAC has one idea—to reshape the government to meet its own pet ideas of social and economic revolution." He has charged the PAC expects to spend $80,000 or more on the Detroit campaign.

National Aid Denied

Frankensteen in his speeches says: "Not a dollar has been received from the national PAC. This campaign is being financed locally." His supporters say if elected he would not control Detroit's government as the CIO is supporting only three men for the council of nine and the six others could override the mayor.

Others argue the prestige of a CIO mayor would increase the influence of the PAC with the administration.

Jeffries' backers say he is as much a friend of labor as was his father, the late Judge Edward J. Jeffries of the recorder's court, who years ago led part of Coxey's army across the country.

Frankensteen once worked in the Dodge plant, was graduated with honors from Dayton university.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by David Deutsch, 129 S. 2d st., Brooklyn, N. Y.]

THE QUESTION

What is the wackiest suggestion you have had for a new radio program [asked of program directors]?

WHERE ASKED

Various locations.

THE ANSWERS

Buck Gunn, W-G-N, 441 N. Michigan av.—One enthusiastic fellow brought in an idea for teaching mass flying lessons over the air. The confusion that would exist with thousands of neophyte pilots in the air obeying directions from a radio station for banking, looping the loop, and turns was a little terrifying to contemplate.

Jules Herbuveaux, WMAQ, Merchandise Mart—A paint manufacturer wanted to hire a sports announcer to describe painting contests. Can't you imagine such a half hour program—"He has one lap to go—now he's on the last leg—Ahhhh! The chair is finished, a beautiful coat of paint in three minutes"—and so on?

Walter Preston, WBBM-CBS, Wrigley building—Not long ago a man tried to sell us a half hour show which he guaranteed would put insomnia sufferers to sleep in five minutes. We could picture our listeners dozing off behind steering wheels and leaving radios on all night, and none of them listening. That's not good!

Gene Rouse, WENR-ABC, Merchandise Mart—One gentleman who was self-confident and sure of his theory wanted us to put on a program for the inhabitants of other planets. He said he was sure they received our radio waves and would understand the programs if only we used Esperanto, the so-called universal language. He even was confident we would get fan mail from them.

Cynthia A. Coyle, WAAF, Palmer House—A manufacturer of baby equipment wanted to sponsor a broadcast from a hospital delivery room. He suggested an interview with a father immediately after his child's birth and then one with the mother. He wanted a blow by blow description of the event and of the baby's first cry.

Orville Foster, WIND, 230 N. Michigan av.—An undertaker came to us with an idea for a pleasant Sunday afternoon program. He wanted to have an obituary column of the air with solemn music and description of the lives of deceased persons—especially those whose funerals were conducted in his chapel.

MICHIGAN POWER STRIKE SETTLED; SET VOTE TODAY

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 20 [Saturday]—[Special]—Gov. Harry F. Kelly announced tonight that the two day old widespread Consumers Power company strike in Michigan had been settled by an agreement reached by company and union representatives after a 13 hour conference in his office. The agreement is subject to ratification of 2,000 striking members of the Michigan Utility Workers council [CIO].

John W. Gibson, special assistant to Labor Secretary Schwellenbach and president of the Michigan State CIO council, said that 22 local unions would vote tomorrow on acceptance of the agreement, which would send them back to work immediately. Both Gibson and Gov. Kelly said they were hopeful the strikers would accept.

Gibson said that a decision could be exepected sometime in the afternoon.

Heat Fails in 3 Cities

The conditional settlement was announced as the strike began to interfere with steam heat supplied by the utility in Battle Creek, Saginaw, and parts of Jackson. Office workers kept moderately warm by wearing sweaters, while electric heaters and extra blankets were procured for hotel guests.

Approximately 90 buildings in Saginaw were affected by the lack of steam. One of two buildings without heat in Jackson was the 11 story building that houses the power company headquarters. A low of 30 degrees was forecast for today.

The utility company, which serves gas and electricity to some two million residents in 57 southern and middle Michigan counties, reported that these services continued without interruption with the help of emergency crews recruited from supervisory employes.

Cuts Zone Differentials

Gov. Kelly said the union agreed to accept the findings of a special state mediation panel, which had been rejected by 17 of the 22 locals before the strike was called. This provides for a 13 cent an hour general wage increase, a reduction from 7 to 5 per cent in zone pay differentials, and two cents an hour more for rotating shift employes.

The union had demanded a 15 cent an hour increase and the company had offered a 10 cent raise.

Garland W. Sanders, chairman of the utility workers council, said, after the conference, that he would do his utmost to prevail upon the strikers to accept the agreement. He added, however, that some of the larger locals "would be hard to convince."

ULTIMATUM TO STRIKERS

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP)—George P. McNear, president of the strike-bound Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad, told strikers today he would cancel their seniority provisions and rehire former employes of the road unless they agree by 11 a. m. tomorrow to return to work. The strike began Oct. 1 when 500 employes—members of 13 unions—established picket lines around the station here and the road's frate lines.

Representatives of the Railroad Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers said the issue was over their demand that McNear continue operations under the same conditions as under the federal manager, who was in charge from March 22, 1942, to Sept. 30, 1945. They added pay was not in issue.

BEATINGS REPORTED

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—William E. Warren, who led the unsuccessful fight of a rebellious longshoremen's group to oust Joseph P. Ryan as life time president of the AFL International Longshoremen's association, said he was beaten today when he reported to work at a Brooklyn pier. Sal Barone, another insurgent leader, said he also had been beaten.

Meanwhile, there was a general back to work movement by the stevedores. The 12 day strike of 35,000 longshoremen over a new contract ended yesterday. Conciliation Commissioner J. R. Mandelbaum said nearly 99 per cent of the stevedores had returned to their jobs. Contract negotiations between the union and the New York Shipping association continued today.

COURT BLOCKS BAN ON PLAY AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP)—Mayor John W. Kapp was restrained by a federal court order today from banning a performance here Monday of a musical version of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle granted an injunction nullifying Kapp's ban issued last Monday after two Negro organizations contended the stage performance would tend to "stir up racial strife." Judge Briggle ruled there was "nothing in the play that can promote ill feeling between the races."

Kapp indicated he would take no further action to stop the play, saying: "We always obey court orders."

Most Laudable Character

"It's been a long time since I have seen Uncle Tom's Cabin performed," Judge Briggle said, "but as I remember it, the most laudable character was Uncle Tom himself. No harm can come from its presentation."

The case was taken to federal court by Reed Lawton of New York City, producer of the play. The federal court had jurisdiction because the suit involved persons from different states and because more than $3,000 was involved.

[The play was banned in New Haven and Bridgeport, Conn., late in September. After cancellation of the performance at Bridgeport, however, it was allowed to be given there. Protests against the play were made at Bridgeport by Negro leaders, the CIO, and the Communist party. The AFL International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, local 109, and the Civil Liberties union fought against suppression of the play.]

Dr. D. E. Webster, a dentist and president of the Springfield chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, testified the showing of the play "would likely cause friction in Springfield schools." Negro children might be subjected to ridicule by white schoolmates calling them "Topsy," he said.

All Right for Civil War

Clarence Davis, Negro attorney, said the play "might have been all right for Civil war days, but not now."

Protests to Mayor Kapp also were made by the Springfield Ministerial alliance, a group of Negro clergymen.

After the Springfield performance, the show is scheduled for Milwaukee, Wis., and Freeport and Quincy, Ill.

At Freeport, Mayor Earl E. Miller said today he had asked that a performance planned there Oct. 29 be canceled "in order not to arouse any racial feeling," but the promoter of the show, D. W. Habecker, told reporters he was continuing arrangements for the performance.

8,000 END STRIKE AT CRANE PLANT; BACK ON JOB TODAY

Two thousand of the strikers voted unanimously at a meeting yesterday to end the strike. The workers are members of local 2047 of the United Steel Workers of America [CIO]. The company manufactures plumbing equipment.

Loren J. Houser, international CIO field representative, told the workers at a meeting in a hall at 1812 S. Ashland av. that the company agreed to start negotiation of a new contract Monday, to enlarge the grievance hearing staff, and not to discriminate against men for union activities.

The workers adopted a resolution condemning Police Commissioner Allman for sending 500 policemen to the Crane company plant "with newly polished clubs, machine guns, and 'black Marias' to protect the Crane company."

200 GEAR PLANT EMPLOYES SIT DOWN HALF DAY

Approximately 200 men engaged in a 4½ hour sitdown strike at the Foote Brothers Gear and Machine company, 5225 S. Western av., yesterday. The work stoppage was prompted by a $17 pay check deduction and probably will cost the 200 close to $1,000 in lost wages. The men are members of local 1114 of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers [CIO].

VET KILLS BRIDE, RAPES WOMAN IN CAR BESIDE BODY

Slays Wife to 'Get Even' with Her Mother

Denver, Colo., Oct. 19 [Special]—An ex-soldier was held in jail today accused of killing his bride to "get even" with her mother and then raping a young woman companion while his wife's body lay near them in their car.

Joseph Desrosiers

"I would have been dead, too, if my gun hadn't refused to work again," the veteran, Joseph Desrosiers, 25, of San Antonio, Tex., told police.

Authorities learned of the crime when Marie Waidill, 26, sobbing hysterically and wearing only underclothing, ran into a Denver police station last night. She told of having been raped twice by Desrosiers and of his shooting his wife, Catherine, a former army nurse.

Found Beside Body

Twenty policemen and sheriffs' deputies sped to the lonely area in Aurora, a suburb, where Miss Woldill said their car had been mired. They found Desrosiers calmly smoking a cigaret as he sat beside his wife's body. Officers surrounded the car and covered it with searchlights in preparation for a battle, but Desrosiers quietly surrendered and admitted the crimes.

From Miss Woldill, whose home is in Atlantic City, N. J., but who has been visiting here since Sept. 27, police obtained the following account of the bizarre setting for the slaying:

She met Desrosiers yesterday afternoon in a tavern near the state capitol. He struck up an acquaintance on the pretext of obtaining her aid to get a cinder out of his eye. Then they had a drink. He learned she had a car and offered her $10 to drive him to South Denver.

Forces Her to Disrobe

En route to that Denver suburb Desrosiers produced a revolver, forced her to disrobe, and raped her. Then they drove to a drug store near the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stone, where Desrosiers telephoned his wife to meet them so he could give her some money.

When Catherine appeared, the three drove again to South Denver, with Desrosiers and his wife in the back seat. As they cruised in a lonely place, Desrosiers put his gun to his wife's temple and pulled the trigger. Then he got into the front seat beside Miss Woidill, made her disrobe once more, and raped her again.

After that he took the wheel and drove aimlessly until the car got stuck. A farmer drove them to Aurora where Desrosiers put Miss Woidill in a cab and he entered another taxi and returned to the mired car.

In Desrosiers' pocket after his arrest police found a letter he had addressed to his mother-in-law in which he wrote: "I am doing this to hurt you all I can. I hope you realize what you have done. You are to blame for everything. Maybe now you will realize that money and selfishness aren't everything."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Oct. 20—Roger Williams Banished

ROGER WILLIAMS, pioneer of religious liberty in America, was never a man who obeyed a government order to keep silent. In October, 1635 [historians differ on the exact date], he was found guilty by the Massachusetts General court on charges of disseminating "newe & dangerous opinions, against the aucthoritie of magistrates," and was banished from the colony. The court granted him six weeks to depart, admonishing him to keep silent about his opinions.

At this time there was no unity in church matters among the new emigrants, but the rulers of the colony, who had pleaded for liberty of conscience when they were persecuted in England, became persecutors themselves as soon as they came into power. The first setback received by this despotism sprang from the banishment of Roger Williams.

In defiance of the court's order to keep silent, he conferred with friends on plans to found a new settlement on Narragansett bay. The authorities in Boston, hearing of the scheme, determined to ship Williams to England.

He was warned in time to escape arrest. He fled from the colony and was sheltered by friendly Indians. Later he wrote: "I was sorely tossed for some 14 weeks, in a bitter winter season, not knowing what bed or bread did mean."

In the following spring Williams gathered a few followers and proceeded by canoe to found the earliest Rhode Island settlement, Providence.

One of the first actions of the town was to provide for religious liberty and complete separation of church and state, principles adopted many years later in the Constitution of the United States.

TABER TO ASK ACCOUNTING OF LEND-LEASE CASH

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—Supporting an assertion of Rep. Dworshak [R., Idaho] that 25 billion dollars of lend-lease money has not been accounted for, Rep. Taber [R., N. Y.] told the house today he would insist on an explanation from the proper government officials.

Dworshak, speaking on his amendment to cut 500 million dollars additional off lend-lease funds, said more than 66 billions had been appropriated for lend-lease and that only 41 billions had been accounted for.

The amendment was defeated, 121 to 114, in a vote not recorded by individual members.

Dworshak said that altho President Truman had terminated lend-lease Aug. 17, the foreign economics administration, five months after V-E day, had not yet ascertained what contracts had been or would be canceled. He said lend-lease funds totaled in excess of 9 billion dollars on July 1, 1945.

PAROLEE FREED FROM CUSTODY ON U. S. CHARGE

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday in a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus ordered Chester Moore, 29, Negro, released from custody of federal authorities who were holding him for violation of a federal parole order.

Moore was paroled from the federal prison in 1937 after serving four years for robbing a sub postal station. He was sentenced to the state penitentiary in 1938 for robbery and paroled last Sept. 8.

Federal authorities then seized him for violation of his federal parole but Judge Igoe ruled with Atty. Euclid Taylor that Moore was under the supervision of state authorities until his state parole period is concluded.

WIFE BEATER STRIPPED AND LASHED IN JAIL

Upper Marlboro, Md., Oct. 19 (AP)—The Prince Georges county sheriff stepped up to a nude prisoner today and lashed him 10 times with a whip.

Twenty witnesses watched a convicted wife beater, Lloyd O. Busching, 30, take his beating.

The blows were delivered so slowly that it took 10 minutes to deliver the 10 strokes.

"Did It Very Nice."

The jailer, Ellis Middleton, who saw the whipping, observed:

"The sheriff did it very nice, altho the sheriff did not hit him as hard as my dad used to hit me. I wish the judge could have seen it."

Busching, a sturdy 175 pound gas company employe, was accused of knocking out two of his wife's teeth after a beer party at their home in Dillon Park, Md.

County Circuit Judge Charles G. Marbury said it would deprive Mrs. Busching and their two children of financial support if he sent Busching to jail, so he ordered the beating, the first administered in this county altho the Maryland law providing for whippings was written in 1882.

Sheriff R. Earle Sheriff gave reporters this account of the whipping:

Busching was stripped in front of the witnesses. After he was handcuffed, he stood straight and put his hands on the bars in front of him. Then the sheriff went to work.

The sheriff said he kept his coat on, and that Busching made no sound, merely jumping slightly each time the whip hit him.

Raises Large Welts

Dr. James G. Sasscer examined Busching after the whipping and said that altho no skin was broken, the whip raised large welts.

Mrs. Busching, 25, who weighs 98 pounds, has protested that her husband should not be flogged. She did not testify at his trial.

The wife beating charges grew out of complaints by neighbors that the Buschings' quarrels were disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Busching has been in seclusion since the trial, but a friend with whom she stayed said she insists she still loves her husband.

The friend, who asked that she remain unidentified, said Mrs. Busching has only one worry: What attitude will the neighbors take when her husband comes back home?

Stays for Three Hours

Altho Busching was free to leave the jail after the whipping, he stayed for more than three hours, then dashed out with a handkerchief over his face, and drove away in his car.

Another whipping was handed out today to Andrew M. Pennewill, 32, a confessed housebreaker. Pennewill, Negro, took 20 lashes in the Kent county jail yard in Dover, Del.

But Pennewill took his whipping by choice. It will cut two years off his seven year sentence.

ARMY JEEP STOLEN IN GARY

Sgt. John Barr, who gave his address as 176 E. Jackson blvd., Chicago, reported to Gary police yesterday that his army jeep was stolen from in front of 645 Washington st., Gary, while he was there on army business.

"I finally hit on something to keep my kids from slamming the door."

CHICK EVANS SUED FOR ACCOUNTING ON $30,000 SECURITIES

Charles [Chick] Evans Jr., former golf champion, was named defendant yesterday in a suit filed in Superior court by Walter Strom, 7811 Greenfield rd., River Forest, who asked an accounting of $30,000 worth of securities he asserted Evans held for him in 1935.

The suit, filed by the law firm of Seago, Bradley, and Vetter, charged that Strom purchased securities valued at $36,000 from Evans while the golfer was employed by Mitchell, Hutchins & Co., an investment company.

Strom asserted that Evans later told him that he had lost the securities and, to cover the loss, gave Strom promissory notes and named him beneficiary of several insurance policies. Strom, an insurance broker, said that $6,000 had been repaid by Evans.

BOOK 'ACTRESS' ON SUSPICION OF INTENT TO KILL

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—Mrs. June McMasters, 26, who told police she was a film actress under her maiden name of June Rollens, was booked at the city jail today on suspicion of intent to commit murder after her mother-in-law, Mrs. Adele Lord, 52, informed police she had threatened "to cut your throat and then cut mine."

Directors J. W. Pross and J. C. Todd said Mrs. Lord told them their automobile plunged over a 500 foot embankment and that after it stopped rolling, her daughter-in-law took a piece of broken window glass and said: "I'm going to cut your throat and then cut mine," slashing Mrs. Lord on the side of the neck.

Mrs. McMasters denied she had attempted to kill Mrs. Lord. Mrs. Lord suffered a broken nose and possible internal injuries and Mrs. McMasters was treated for possible internal injuries.

VIEW OF TRUMAN AS A CANDIDATE GIVEN BY FOSTER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—William Z. Foster, Communist party leader, said today President Truman probably will be accused of being a Communist if he seeks re-election.

The communist leader made his statement at a hearing of the house committee on un-American activities, after Rep. Landis [R., Ind.] asked him whether he thought Mr. Truman was a Communist.

Commenting on the possibility of Gen. MacArthur's running for President in 1948, Foster said: "The entire labor movement will oppose him. Any man who is the darling of the Hearst and McCormick press will not have the support of the common people of America. MacArthur is a reactionary with fascist leanings, and is dangerous."

Landis commented that "if the country had a few more men like MacArthur we would be better off."

ADMITS RAPING 5 AND ATTEMPT ON 6TH VICTIM

George Parker, 17, Negro, 4537 Vincennes av., last night confessed to police that he had raped five women and attempted to rape a sixth since he escaped from the state insane asylum at Dixon June 25.

A hotel mail clerk, wife of a soldier, identified Parker as the man who raped and robbed her in Grant park on Oct. 10. After the attack, he took her wrist watch and $53. Parker was traced after James Nelson, 24, Negro, 4537 Vincennes av., pawned a watch. He said Parker gave him the watch.

Sgt. John Ascher said Parker's four other victims were Negroes. Parker also admitted he attempted to rape a white woman who escaped from him at 9th st. and Wabash av. on Oct. 15. Parker will be shown to other victims of rapists.

EDUCATOR O. K.'S PLAN TO CREATE UNIT ON SCIENCE

Notre Dame President Urges U. S. Aid

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—A Catholic educator today called for federal aid to science to offset the possibility that "misguided scientists, urged on by an equally misguided government," might spread world ruin in the atomic era.

Rev. J. H. O'Donnell

The Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, president of the University of Notre Dame, took that stand in testimony before a senate commerce-military subcommittee conducting hearings on a proposed national science foundation. He said that even tho peace has come, "We must prepare for every eventuality."

He saw this lineup of opposing philosophies:

"Necessary for Defense"

On the other, "the philosophy of materialism—or communism, fascism, atheism, or secularism; call it what you will—that degrades man into an irresponsible automaton."

Father O'Donnell said he had come around reluctantly to the idea of educational institutions taking government money for research.

"I support the measure for one reason and one reason only: In view of what is happening in the world, I believe it is necessary for the national defense," he explained.

"As we know from 44 months of global warfare, there is no way of preventing misguided scientists, urged on by an equally misguided government, from using their technological skills to bring death and destruction to millions of innocent people."

Jewett Opposes Bill

Dr. Frank B. Jewett, president of the National Academy of Sciences, opposed the bills to create a science foundation. He said they were likely to hamper rather than expand development.

He said he feared political control of the proposed foundation and asserted there is no assurance it would not be run by men who know nothing about the problems of science.

Jewett said he agreed with one aim of the bill, the promotion of free flow of fundamental scientific information nationally and internationally. But he added:

"It seems futile and absurd to hope to achieve this in these bills when congress now in another and most important sector of science—that of atomic energy—is seriously considering a diametrically opposite policy."

"Secrecy Breeds Distrust"

This was a reference to a bill on which the house military committee closed hearings yesterday. Under the legislation, offered also in the senate but not yet taken up, controls over domestic work on atomic energy and information on that work would be lodged in an atomic energy commission.

A group of atom bomb scientists, headed by Dr. Harold Urey and Dr. H. J. Curtis has protested that secrecy would breed distrust and invite an international race in making atomic bombs.

A written objection to the atomic commission bill was made public today by two groups which have organized themselves into the Atomic Scientists of Chicago and the Association of Oak Ridge Scientists at Clinton Laboratories, in Tennessee.

They opposed powers which they said the measure provides for the commissions to restrict research work in the field and impose "thought strangling" restrictions."

GIRLS CALL OFF KISS WITH WAR BOND CAMPAIGN

Columbus, O., Oct. 19 (AP)—Members of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority at Ohio State university started a "kiss and sell victory bonds" campaign, but called the whole thing off in the midst of a flourishing business.

Mrs. William Carlile, chairman of the sorority's advisory board, insisted that rewarding bond purchasers with kisses was "too undignified" and the girls closed their booth at a downtown movie theater.

Among those beating the kiss deadline was Elmer [Zeke] Estep, bewhiskered "Arkansas hillbilly" wrestler, who was rewarded by Susana Campodonico, 19, of Wyoming, O., a sophomore, for his purchase of a $200 bond.

Belgian Senate Delays Debate on King's Future

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Belgian senate today indefinitely postponed a scheduled debate on King Leopold's future after the government confirmed press reports that it possessed a full account of a 1940 meeting between the king and Adolf Hitler at Berchtesgaden. In effect, the government announcement was a reply to the Catholic [royalist] party, which planned to carry its campaign for Leopold's return into parliament.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

Oct. 19, 1945

ALL the components of a perfect autumn—the sort of rural autumn hundreds of artists have attempted to depict on canvas—are present on middle western farms this week.

Shocked corn and bright orange pumpkins in the fields; tree leaves of unbelievable hues; orange bittersweet and scarlet nightshade berries drooping from fence row supports; flocks of fat turkeys strolling thru the barn yard; chrysanthemums of scarlet, copper, and yellow in cottage gardens—all are on view now.

Artists' Order Reversed

In a painted scene, artists concentrate their talents on the center of the canvas, using the background to emphasize the central theme. Nature paints a more subtle picture this week, with the background of giant oaks and maples the main attraction.

The four species of oaks common in the Wheaton farm woodlots seem to be competing on background colors in leaves of russet, yellow, orange and scarlet. The pin oak leaves vary from red to dark bronze. Burr oak leaves are golden and copper in the morning sunlight.

The green pigments of the white oak leaves have receded, leaving red and yellow ingredients which combine to provide shades of maroon and orange to contrast against the light blue sky. The swamp white oak runs a poor fourth in the oak color race, because its remaining leaves show no bright hues, but only the comparatively drab yellow and green streaks typical of this species in autumn.

Oaks' Colors Dominant

The oaks have no monopoly on color, altho they predominate in the woodlots. Sugar maples with delicate orange foliage, tinted with pink; white ash seedlings showing yellow on the woodlot floor; a tree of heaven matching the yellow of the maples; an Allegheny shadblow decked with indescribable red-orange, the hue which comes from burning wood in an open fireplace; and even the frost touched foliage of the asparagus, yellow with bright red berries—all provide tints which make this autumn one of the most beautiful in the memory of farm residents.

★ The GARDEN ★

[This is the fourth of a series of articles on winter storage of vegetables.]

GARDENERS who are planning the maintenance of basement storage rooms this winter should recognize that there are three classes of storable vegetables, all of which require different conditions of light, temperature, and humidity.

A cold storeroom, as described in previous articles, is ideal for beets, carrots, kohlrabi, potatoes, turnips, radishes, and similar root crops, all of which require storage temperature of 33 to 40 degrees and relative humidity of 80 to 95 per cent. Ventilated boxes or baskets are the best containers for these crops, which should be placed in layers of sand in the containers.

Crops requiring warmer storage temperatures, particularly pumpkins, squash, and sweet potatoes, may be stored in a basement room [outside the cold room] at a temperature of 50 degrees.

Storage of leaf crops will be discussed Monday in this space.

NEW DRUG CUTS DEATHS FROM BLOOD CLOTTING

Prevents Coagulation in Fatal Diseases

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 19 [Special]—The successful use of a new drug called dicumarol in treating diseases involving blood clots was explained today to 300 physicians and surgeons from western states attending a symposium on heart disease. The symposium was sponsored by the heart committee of the San Francisco Tuberculosis association.

Experiments with the drug, which prevents coagulation of blood, were described by Col. Irving S. Wright, army medical corps officer formerly on the faculty of Columbia university.

Noting that for years researchers have been seeking substances to prevent hemorrhage, Col. Wright said dicumarol marks a step in the opposite direction—an effort to find a drug which would prevent blood clotting.

Combats Clot Deaths

Dicumarol, a substance found in the factor which makes vegetable matter green and which is now produced synthetically, is being used, Col. Wright said, to prevent the common embolism, thrombosis, and apoplexy fatalities which occur when a blood clot lodges in the lung, heart, and brain. It also may be used to combat clot deaths resulting from gangrene in the limbs.

Col. Wright warned that the drug still is in the development stage and must be used with great care, but he said its application in 1,000 cases reduced fatalities from 19 per cent to less than 1 per cent.

Would Save Countless Lives

The principal danger in use of the drug, he explained, lies in the fact that in preventing clotting it may induce hemorrhage. But the value of its use in skilled hands is apparent when it is recalled that few persons die of hemorrhage while many die from blood clots, he said.

"A drug which, without too much risk of causing hemorrhage, could prevent blood clots would be of tremendous value and would save countless lives," Col. Wright said.

The University of Wisconsin launched experiments with dicumarol several years ago.

ENGLAND IS UNABLE TO HELP OUT CHINA, AMBASSADOR SAYS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 19 (AP)—Horace Seymour, British ambassador, today said that Britain "simply isn't in a financial position" to help China thru long term lend-lease, as the United States is planning to do.

His statement was in reply to a correspondent's comment that some British business men were greatly concerned that America long term loans were giving American business men a financial advantage in China.

"We must remember," the ambassador said, "that Britain's whole position has changed and that she now is the world's greatest debtor nation."

Seymour outlined Britain's policy in China as "buy Chinese goods and sell British goods, work for the day when the internal situation quiets down, hope for long years of friendly relations, and seek intellectual understanding thru exchange of students."

BARE HUNGARY 'RUBBER STAMP' BALLOT LINEUP

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 19—How the major parties will divide the single slate of candidates in Hungary's parliamentary elections on Nov. 4 was disclosed today. These are the elections in which Marshal Voroshilov of the Russian occupation forces persuaded the party leaders to agree to submit a single list for the voters to rubber stamp.

The parliament of about 400 members will be about 50 per cent right wing, with the Small Holders getting 42 per cent of the seats and the People's Democratic party 8 per cent. On the left wing side the Social Democrats will get 26 per cent, the Communists 18 per cent, and 6 per cent will be divided between the Peasant and Radical parties. The parties making up the coalition government agreed to adopt the single slate plan, it was explained officially, to avert violence between Communists and Small Holders that had been threatened since the Small Holders won the Budapest city election.

[A British foreign office spokesman said the plan cast doubt as to whether the elections would be free and democratic. The United States has agreed to recognize the Hungarian government provided free elections are assured, but the British have made no official commitments.]

DR. MAGNUSON NAMED TO VETS RESEARCH POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19—Dr. Paul B. Magnuson of Dundee, Ill., a widely known surgeon and orthopedic specialist, has been appointed by the veterans' administration to head a program of research and post graduate training in veterans' hospitals thruout the country, it was announced today.

He is an associate professor of surgery at the Northwestern university medical school, a post which he will leave to devote full time to his new duties.

The new program is part of a project begun by Gen. Bradley, veterans' administrator, to improve the medical treatment available to ex-service men and government institutions. Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, acting surgeon general of the veterans' administration, said several weeks ago that new opportunities in the fields of medicine, surgery, and research must be developed in veterans' hospitals to attract top ranking men to the institutions.

Develop Training Policies

It was explained that Dr. Magnuson will have charge of developing research programs for the administration. He will be assisted by consultants in special medical fields. He also will lead in the formulation of training policies for medical personnel and establishment and operation of all schools or courses of instruction in professional subjects for veterans' physicians also will be under his direction.

Dr. Magnuson was a major in the army medical corps in the first World war. He has been medical director of the Illinois industrial commission and an attending surgeon at both Wesley Memorial and Passavant hospitals in Chicago. He has been associate professor of surgery and chief orthopedic surgeon at Northwestern university.

Orthopedic Surgery Pioneer

He is a native of St. Paul, Minn., and was graduated from the Pennsylvania college of medicen in 1908. A pioneer in orthopedic surgery, it was his research in this field that enabled him to perform the first successful work in lengthening the shortened bones of the leg. He is also remembered as the discoverer of an animal substance from which screws are made for holding bone fragments in place following fractures.

COMMENDS U. S. TREATMENT OF JEWS IN REICH

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

FRANKFORT ON MAIN, Oct. 19—Treatment of displaced persons and stateless persons, including Jews, by the United States army in the American zone of occupation in Germany has been commended by Harvey D. Gibson, commissioner of the American Red Cross to Britain and western Europe from August, 1942, to May, 1945.

Gibson recently visited seven displaced persons camps and his statement has been received by Gen. Eisenhower. It is regarded by headquarters as an answer to the Harrison report published in September which accused the army of neglecting and even ill-treating Jews and displaced persons.

The army is carrying out its responsibilities in camps "as well as could reasonably be expected and generally speaking in a commendable manner," Gibson's statement said. He reported that he found every indication of "considerate treatment" in Jewish camps and no evidence" of the type of treatment that might have been expected from Nazis."

RUSSIA DELAYS BUDGET WORK OF UNITED NATIONS

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Russia today obtained postponement of decisions by the executive committee of the united nations' preparatory commission on the world peace organization's budget and its economic and social council. Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko voiced no specific objections, but said he needed advice from Moscow before he could give approval.

The reports appeared to be acceptable to other nations, leaving only the security council and the general assembly as main points to be settled. The committee is expected to complete its work early next week and send its report to member nations, looking toward opening of preparatory commission sessions in London, Nov. 8.

Ten more nations must deposit ratifications of the San Francisco charter before the preparatory commission begins its work.

REPORT TROOPS AT BUENOS AIRES CENTER REBEL

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 19 [Reuters]—Reports from a reliable source tonight said that troops at Campo de Mayo, military center in suburban Buenos Aires, rebelled when young officers refused to be disarmed by Gen. Urdan Hilleta, their new commander.

The air base at Palomar was standing by ready to bomb Campo de Mayo if the revolt was not ended. In several other places the government had taken measures of precaution by sending troops to strategic points.

[Another dispatch said an uneasy quiet had returned to Argentina after a nation-wide strike by Col. Juan Peron, newly restored "strong man." Normal business activity was resumed.]

CHICAGOLANDERS SIGN PETITION FOR SHIPS HOME

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Oct. 19—Chicagoland GIs with more than 100 points and seven battle stars are among the thousands of Yanks who are so weary of sweating it out in Camps St. Louis and Twenty Grand that they are signing a petition addressed to Washington, D. C., asking requisitions of ships to get them home in a hurry.

A 100 pointer, Al Bukowski, 4045 S. Richmond st., Chicago, has been overseas 32 months and has six battle stars. Sgt. Edward Brniak, 1615 W. 32d st., Chicago, has 90 points and four battle stars. Yet neither boy expects to get back before Christmas.

No Pay Since July

"There are hundreds of Chicagolanders at Camp St. Louis with an average of 104 points and up to seven battle stars," revealed Bukowski. "Our mess sergeant has 124 points. We belong to the 552d Triple A anti-aircraft battalion. We haven't been paid since July. We are told that it is because of the lack of finance experts. Those experts were here. They were low point men. How come they got back some months before us?"

The Yanks here feel that the strikes back home have a lot to do with the delays. They know that there are 350 ships docked in New York and that as soon as they are unloaded the GIs will get transportation. However, they are unanimous in the belief that the strikers let them down.

Fought for Democracy

"We fought this war," added Bukowski earnestly, "so that we'd have a right to strike. However, there is a time and a place for everything. Men who made money during the years we lugged an old army rifle might have waited until we returned and listened to our story. We've seen labor conditions in the rest of the world. We won't let ambitious union leaders or congressmen wearing rose colored glasses pull strings when we get back. We fought for law and order and democracy. We intend to make these work this time."

In agreement were high point Chicagoans John D. Divelakos, 7628 Rogers av., 76 points and three battle stars; Corp. John K. Konen Jr., 635 Wellington av., 72 points, and Roscoe O. Branom, 4635 Parker av., 95 points and seven battle stars.

Sgt. Clyde H. Castle, 2802 Van Buren st., is lucky. He has 69 points, is 23 years old, and is leaving for Compiegne Saturday whence he'll return home via England.

THE INDICTMENT

The indictment of the leading Nazis has been presented formally to an interallied court. Twenty-four individuals and six nazi organizations are to be tried on some or all of four general counts.

The four charges are of two sorts. Counts 3 and 4 allege hideous brutality against races and individuals with a view to their extermination from the face of the earth and with a further view to the silencing of all opposition to the nazi tyranny. There is no longer the slightest doubt that these crimes were committed. The existence of the murder factories has been proved. Their purpose has been established. The bones and ashes of countless victims have been unearthed. So far as counts 3 and 4 are concerned the only question is that of the responsibility of the individuals accused of the crimes systematically committed. It is all but impossible to believe that any of the accused can escape death as their punishment, but they will have their day in court and the supermurderers may make of it what they can.

Counts 1 and 2 are of a different sort. They charge a conspiracy to overthrow the Versailles treaty by force and aggressive war and, more particularly, the plotting and waging of war against each of the allied nations.

The indictment follows the plan laid down by Mr. Justice Jackson, which has frequently been discussed in these columns. We still believe it was a mistake to improvise a court and a body of ex post facto law with which to punish the offenders. Not one of them would have escaped his just punishment if he had been tried before an existing court of competent jurisdiction under existing national law.

The plan that has been adopted gives the defendants an opportunity to look their judges in the eye and shout "You, too." How can an English or a French judge in good conscience condemn any of these defendants for conspiring against the independence of Czechoslovakia when Mr. Chamberlain of the British government and M. Daladier of the French government sealed the compact with a kiss? And how can a Russian judge condemn the deal in face of Mr. Stalin's treaty with Hitler for the division of eastern Europe between them—the deal that sent Hitler to war, as Stalin must have known it would do?

Who but Britain permitted the expansion of the Germany navy in violation of the Versailles treaty? Who but France and Britain failed to prevent the invasion of Austria and the remilitarization of the Rhineland when they could easily have done so?

And who today is engaged in aggressive warfare in Java and Indo-China, deliberately calculated to deprive peoples of their national independence? The answer is Britain and France, whose representatives are about to sit in judgment upon Germans for a similar offense in a different part of the world. And how will the Russian judge distinguish the nazi occupation of Czechoslovakia from the bolshevik occupation of Czechoslovakia?

All such embarrassing questions could have been avoided if the murderers had been tried for murder, under the laws against murder, in courts long existent for the punishment of murderers.

One may well wonder what thoughts were passing thru Gen. Nikitchenko's mind when, as president of the court, he received the indictment of Goering and the rest. If he didn't say to himself, "There, but for the grace of God, go Stalin, Molotov & Co.," he wasn't very bright. In truth, there are few counts that wouldn't apply equally to bolsheviks and Nazis. They played the same game, in the same way, for the same stakes. The only significant difference is that the Nazis lost.

The war started when Hitler and Stalin shook hands over a partition of Poland between them. Austria, Czechoslovakia, and the Balkan states fell first to Hitler, to be incorporated in his international system, and now they have been taken over by Stalin and incorporated in his, with no better right and no better results so far as the citizens of these countries can see.

Stalin's regime, like Hitler's, will be long remembered for its concentration camps. It would take a connoisseur to say which dictator's prisons are the fouler; it seems to be generally agreed that Stalin's have been the more heavily populated, but Hitler's had the higher turnover and were the more quickly depopulated. Stalin invented slave labor as a 20th century institution among peace loving nations, but Hitler countered this with his gas chambers.

None of this is likely to get into the court record, and it shouldn't, for the guilt of Russia, England, and France does not prove the Nazis' innocence. Nevertheless, sardonic ghosts from Lubianka, Amritsar, and Saigon will be present at this trial to mock the judges.

NOT FOR COMBAT

A sardonic note has come to hand from a veteran of Guadalcanal and Okinawa, who was decorated with the bronze star for bravery under fire on Okinawa. Enclosed is a memorandum signed by Capt. Fitzhugh Lee, U. S. N., public information officer for the commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, and addressed to "all hands." Capt. Lee therein notifies the entire navy press agent staff under his command that he has recommended to the navy board of awards that every one of them be given commendation in some form or other for his "untiring efforts and devotion to duty."

Five of the higher officers, with the rank of commander or lieutenant commander, are recommended for the Legion of Merit; 12 officers and 13 enlisted men for the bronze star; 26 officers and 24 enlisted men for letters of commendation with ribbon, and 49 enlisted men for letters of commendation. Recommendations are made for a total of 129 men.

"Read the memorandum carefully," says our informant, "and you will note that that horrible word 'combat' is missing entirely. Less than 25 of these characters ever participated in a campaign and I guess fewer still ever heard a shot fired in anger. Note, too, that the degree of award seems to be governed by rank. The j. g. who wrote out the recommendations asked what he should do about the men actually attached to the fleet. He was told to forget them 'because they are too far away and we don't know what they did.'" The 129 to be decorated or commended saw all their service at Pearl Harbor and at fleet headquarters on Guam, long after that island was secured.

This is an insult to any man who has won his medals and ribbons the hard way, and to the great multitude of fighting men in all services who received no recognition for their steadfast performance of duty under fire. All of these men are thrust into the background while the rear area typewriter brigade steps up for the acclaim. The honorable badges for bravery and distinction in serving the country are degraded by awards such as those proposed.

BRITAIN PROPOSES AN AMERICAN INFLATION

Late last month John H. Crider, the reporter who covers the treasury department for the New York Times, reported in his newspaper that American financial experts were "warming up to the idea of using a fraction of the country's $20,000,000,000 gold reserve as the basis for financial aid to Great Britain."

Mr. Crider said that opinion wasn't yet unanimous among our experts who were negotiating with the British representatives, but that some of the American representatives looked upon a loan of gold as an excellent solution of a difficult problem. The proposal is to let England have 5 billion dollars without requiring interest or payments on the principal for five years. It was felt that the American people would protest strongly against further increases in our public debt for such a purpose.

In Thursday's TRIBUNE there was a story by Robert Young, who covers the treasury department for THE TRIBUNE, telling of a proposal to raise the money for the British by reducing the gold content of the dollar. He quoted informed sources as saying that Secretary of the Treasury Vinson was inclining toward the devaluation proposal because such a measure would be easier to sell to taxpayers than an outright gift.

Two experienced reporters who make a business of writing about finances and who are well acquainted with the sources of information at Washington have told of schemes to give the British 5 billion dollars by manipulating gold. The September proposal was dishonest. The government has no gold of its own. What it holds is the collateral back of our paper money. It holds the gold in trust. It can no more give that gold or lend it than any other trustee could dispose of property in his charge.

Nor is the October version of the gold scheme an improvement. The reduction of the gold content of the dollar is inflation. When the coins were clipped in 1934, it was justified as part of a program of putting up prices. To make the inflation palatable, it was called "reflation." It was intended to undermine confidence in the dollar and thus get people to spend their funds.

With the circulation now up six times as much as it was in 1934, with bank deposits over the 160 billion mark, and with 30 billion dollars of securities convertible into cash upon presentation the government surely doesn't dare employ methods certain to bring about headlong spending by undermining confidence in the dollar.

The fact that so-called government experts, the ones chosen to work out a plan for financial aid to Britain, are toying with such schemes as these shows what the problem is and how desperate they are to solve it. The government has no money except what it obtains by taxes, or by borrowing against the receipts of future taxes. The people are now insisting upon lower taxes, and an extra tax to raise money for the British would be voted down nearly unanimously. It is questionable whether there would be much appeal for a bond issue to raise money for the British if the purpose of the loan were specified. Faced with this dilemma, the administration is being advised to employ devious means to find the money.

President Truman and his associates should face the facts. It is quite possible that money of the proportions sought by Keynes and Halifax cannot be raised here. These gentlemen may have waited too long. If the American people are now unwilling to be taxed or to buy bonds to give Britons billions of dollars, certainly our citizens will not be willing to do so by courting disaster thru inflation.

WHO'S STEALING WHOSE STUFF?

The Polish embassy opened the Washington fall social season with a party at which the principal host was Wincenty Rzymowski, the new Polish foreign minister. Rep. O'Konski of Wisconsin was so unkind as to say that the only guests in attendance were "American diplomats and Washington social climbers," which may be a distinction without a difference. He described Mr. Rzymowski as a Quisling in Moscow's hire, adding that he was also a literary outcast who had been thrown out of the Polish academy of letters in 1936 after publishing a book in which one-third of the material had been plagiarized from Bertrand Russell, the English philosopher.

From the description, Mr. Rzymowski seems ideally suited for his post in the Warsaw government. He works for the Russian state which stole his nation out from under his countrymen. In the light of that accomplishment, Mr. Rzymowski's own talents, as described by Mr. O'Konski, are modest, indeed.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt says Gen. Eisenhower is not only a great leader of men in the field but a fine diplomat. Gen. Patton is a great leader of men in the field.—Little Rock Arkansas Gazette.

MR. PEPYS, MOONGAZER

20th Oct.—Everybody has been talking about Indian summer these last few days, saying, "This must be it," and I think we have earned such a pleasant spell after the Edgar Allan Poe climate we suffered from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. But if you want the real stuff, according to McCutcheon's cartoon, wait until tomorrow night when the moon comes full. It will be better on Monday night, when we ought to have a fat moonrise out of the lake about 7:15 p. m.

The harvest moon did not get a chance because of equinoctial clouds, but this hunter's moon is making up for its failure. When only half size, it has been gleaming like a headlight and dimming the great stars. Officer Joe Gibbons, a close observer of moons from his boyhood in Ireland, tells me it is brighter than any harvest moon he ever saw.

See by the papers that many famous Nimrods, such as baseball players, five-star generals, and Bob Becker, are out in the fields and marshes with their shotguns, saluting the moon and filling their bags with edible wildfowl. The biggest ceremony of the season, however, is being held in German courtrooms, where generals are among the hunted as well as the hunters.

Encountered Clayton Hamilton, a great authority on the drama, who has come here to discourse on a rare play of Shakespeare's called "The Winter's Tale." He told me about his years of war work, sending shows to soldiers all over the world, and his discovery that 70 per cent of the Yanks had never seen a stage play. Took him on a subway ride, and he was as surprised as a Yank at the sight of a live actor. Said the old New York straphanger, "It's clean!"

AUTUMN SIGNS

Smell of smoke in the air, and high in the heavens o'erhead,
Wedges of numberless geese that southward go gliding along;
Woodlands astir and made gay, as the leaves, brown, yellow, and red,
Come dancing to earth in the wind, and singing a song.

Haze on the distant hills, and on rivers the shimmer of light;
Splendor in thicket and grove, and hope in the hearts of men,
For now, with its harvest rich, with its halcyon days and bright,
Overbrimming our souls with peace, comes autumn again!

"A Rose Is a Rose Is a Rose"

The latest trend in popular songs seems to be triple-talk. Have you heard this one:

"Mah baby said yes, mah baby said yes, mah baby said yes;
She didn't say no, she didn't say no, she didn't say no."

Another sample:

"Nice, nice, nice, that's you, that's you;
Sweet, sweet, sweet, that's you, that's you;
Fine, fine, fine, that's you, that's you."

'WAY DOWN SOUTH

I have come home to the old house,
Where the dark cedars fill
The night with the murmur and sighing—
Where, under the hill,
The mountain spring tinkles so softly
Its musical song,
And the mockingbirds sing in the valley,
The bright morning long.

I will put my head down on a pillow
Tonight in a friendly old room,
And a moonbeam will steal thru the ivy
To lend me its light in the gloom;
And down the road, silver with star-shine,
When twilight grows purple and deep,
The night wind will come to my window
And again it will sing me to sleep.

Free Lunch in 1905

May I mention Fred Glee's saloon, under McVicker's theater, as a place for free eaters in the good old days? Every day I would cut up 350 loaves of rye bread. The customers also had at their disposal, to go with the bread: 100 pounds of frankfurters, 100 pounds of bologna, 100 pounds of chopped beef, 100 pounds of liver sausage, 20 gallons of pickles, 1 barrel of pigs' feet, 100 pounds of lung and heart hash, and 30 pounds of onions. A 12 ounce glass of beer cost 5 cents; a schooner, 26 ounces, 10 cents; bonded whisky, 2 ounce glass, 10 cents.

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

B. T. asks: "Is a power of attorney given to a service man's wife while he is in service valid after discharge or does he have to make out a new form?"

If no specific time limit is stated in the power of attorney it is valid until revoked. The power of attorney is a civil instrument and does not have anything to do with a man's military status.

F. L. writes: "I am considering conversion of my national service life insurance policy to some other form of permanent government insurance. I have a $10,000 policy. Which should I take?"

The two important factors in conversion of national service life insurance to another form of government insurance are age and financial status. There are three forms of government insurance available—ordinary life, 20 payment, and 30 payment life. Ordinary life premiums are payable so long as the insured lives. Twenty pay life is paid up in 20 years, and 30 pay in 30 years. Ordinary life cost $16.22 per $1,000 at age of 25; 20 pay costs $25.10, and 30 pay costs $19.77. You may convert any amount of your insurance in multiples of $500, but not less than $1,000. If your income is established now you may want to convert in order to have the policy paid up at 48 or 50. If your income in the immediate future is uncertain remember you can continue to carry the original term policy for eight years from date of issue. Under any circumstances, government insurance is cheapest because you pay only the cost of the insurance based on the American experience table of mortality, assuming the funds will be invested at 3 per cent a year.

CAUSATIVE FACTORS IN FAINTING

FAINTING is seen less routinely than in the past and various theories have been offered for the change. The use of girdles instead of the tight fitting corset is held by some to be responsible for this salutary situation. But it is more logical to assume that the fairer sex is now in a better state of health.

All are familiar with the suddenness of the swoon. Unexpectedly, the victim feels dizzy, becomes ill, looks pale, and crumbles to the ground. Breathing may be shallow and slow or deep and sighing. The surface of the body is cold and the ghastly pallor alarming. For a few moments every one is terrified because no other condition, including the deepest coma, so closely resembles death. Were an examination to be made, the blood pressure would be found low and the heart tones barely audible.

The interval of unconsciousness varies from a few seconds to several minutes. On awakening, the sufferer may be confused and the skin drenched with perspiration. Muscular power returns quickly but the victim may remain limp and inert for 30 minutes to an hour. In some, the rest of the day must be spent in bed because of headache and weakness.

Those who are in poor health, anemic, or undernourished are more likely to be affected. But the robust are not exempt. It is encountered most commonly on standing and is unusual when recumbent. Its frequency while watching a parade is well known, not only among the spectators but also the participants, particularly during a lengthy review.

Many factors favor the disorder. Fatigue, fasting, or pain are but a few. Those subjected to emotional tension, worry, or mental conflict are especially susceptible. The environment also plays a role for it is noted in torrid weather and among occupants of overheated, poorly ventilated rooms. In the doctor's office, the mere withdrawal of blood or the administration of a hypodermic may bring on the phenomenon. Now and then it is "catching" for, when one faints, others may follow suit.

A checkup of those who exhibit the tendency occasionally discloses organic disease such as heart trouble or anemia; but, in the majority, no abnormality can be detected. In general, an unstable circulatory system, probably of hereditary origin, is the causative element.

The collapse in itself is due to inability of the brain to obtain sufficient blood. This state is brought on by cardiovascular disturbances. Prevention is an individual problem and both the physical and psychological makeup of the patient must be studied. The tone in the vascular tree can be restored by massage, exercise, correction of posture, and improvement in breathing. Motionless standing should be avoided. Even shifting the weight from one leg to another is helpful.

If unconsciousness has occurred, the body should be placed in a horizontal position with the head lower. All tight clothing should be loosened. Circulation may be stimulated by rubbing the face with ice water or the inhalation of ammonia. Sometimes stronger medicines are required. Those addicted to fainting should make for a couch before slumping.

MYOPIA

M. M. writes: I have extremely nearsighted eyes. Is there anything in the way of operation or other procedure to correct this condition?

REPLY

A competent ophthalmologist should be consulted and he will no doubt prescribe suitable lenses. Occasionally, telescopic spectacles are required for those who cannot be improved with glasses, but these devices have certain objections which do not make them practicable. There are some measures you can practice yourself, such as observing rigid hygienic rules and obtaining plenty of rest, adequate outdoor activity, and avoiding near work as much as possible.

ONE KIDNEY

T. H. writes: Should a man who lost one kidney thru surgery adhere to a strict diet?

REPLY

This depends to a certain extent on why the other organ was removed. If, for example, stones were present, foods containing the causative agents should be eliminated. Otherwise a general diet is all that is necessary.

EAR FURNISHINGS

D. H. writes: Some one told me that the ear machinery contains a hammer, anvil, and stirrup. Is he fooling me?

REPLY

No, indeed. In the middle ear we find these three small bones which are thus named because of their shape.

Wanted: Information Pertaining—

If any one in Chicago or vicinity knows the whereabouts of a boulevardier who calls himself variously P. Ovidius Sayso, Halifax Gadley II, [or VI. in those moments when, in his devotion to old books, he forgets to just which generation he belongs], the commodore [a title he conferred upon himself during the war because he wanted some one to say "sir" to him], D. A. [his own abbreviation for distinctly able], or, when he bassoons over the telephone, Delos [for an island in the Dodecanese] Avery, kindly call Superior 0100, extension 239. For the past month this chameleon has been in possession of extension 239 here. The minute he heard the rightful incumbent was returning, he skulked away. So far, no traces have been found. His last words were: "I am going to the park. I have need of it." That was six days ago.

His home telephone [Bittersweet 2080. Just ask for him. He will tell you it is the wrong number.] gives no response, day or night. His mammoth desk down here has been turned upside down in the hope he will be found lurking beneath one of the fat tomes on the gentle art of poisoning which he reads for relaxation. His favorite restaurant, where he and an erudite waiter delight in insulting each other while he nibbles at a gourmet's luncheon, has seen, or heard, nothing of him.

On a day as balmy as those of this week he probably will be wearing a pink shirt and dark blue tie with, of course, a suit. The suit may be pale blue. If not, it doesn't matter. Just watch for the left hand. It is always waving near his left ear when he talks. The hand always grasps a cigaret. No matter what color his attire may be, he will spray ashes from his cigaret on his left shoulder, giving that portion, at least, a delicate gray effect.

It may help searchers to know that he is one of the few men in Chicago, if not the only man, who has read every word of the voluminous Smyth report on the atomic bomb. He completed this chore about the time he took possession of F. V. and P. a month ago. Thereafter he was often seen scribbling equations and formulae on his cuffs trying to prove that plutonium x2y plus Da plus one cigaret equals Plato and/or 750 printed words. There is some talk that he has become radioactive. So far this is only talk, but it is an important clew. Watch it.

As is well known to his many readers, he can take any two words in the English language, and a few in French and esperanto, and make them rhyme. He does this by dropping from the words any syllables or letters which conflict with the rhyme he has in mind. A spy [on our side] reported that when Mr. Avery fled to the park Monday, he sat on a bench for an hour and then disappeared in the direction of the Oak st. beach tunnel. It may be that he is down there now scratching verses in the concrete.

It is easily seen from the foregoing that this gentleman is a useful member of society and no addition at all to the hordes of those who roam, fancy free and amiably at ease, thru the parks, going chirrp-chirrp-chirrp at the last gay robin of October or skipping to pluck a purple aster from the roadside. He knows too much. Even so, rightful incumbent here would not dream of interrupting his hegira were it not that in his four weeks' tenancy of this space, while being deluged with interesting essays, poems, and observations [most of which, we are confident, he wrote and mailed to himself; he will never convince us he is not both Jinks and Cyanide Sally], he forgot to wind up his work. He opened, and used, all the interesting e, p, and o. He scorned to open, and left in a stack 18 inches tall, the month's output of the political action committee [literature division] of the C. I. O. That was his work. We want him to come back and finish the job.

SCUTTLING THEIR RIDE HOME

SAIPAN, Oct. 4—Here on Saipan there are approximately 11,000 men who are eligible to be sent home, but who are being held up because of the shortage of ships, planes, barges, or what have you. The organization that we belong to is responsible for the upkeep and maintenance of huge two and four engine patrol bombers. These bombers, with very few if any, modifications necessary, would make excellent personnel transports, capable of carrying from 30 to 40 passengers.

At present on this base two squadrons of 15 planes each are being surveyed. One of these squadrons is composed of practically new aircraft, in excellent flying condition, but are these planes doing transport duty? No, they are not. They are being surveyed, taken out of the service, stripped, and sunk in Tanapag harbor. It sounds incredible, but it's the gospel truth. These planes, if the powers that be so decided, could return 1,000 men to the west coast in from 36 to 40 hours. Should they be destroyed?

A BATCH OF AIREDALES

THEY DON'T ACT POOR

Holland, Mich., Oct. 15—While the English delegation is in Washington at present seeking a gift of six billions, England is maintaining armies in all her possessions to hold them in submission. Russia, who is also holding out an itching palm, is maintaining a huge force in the Balkans to bring those unhappy peoples under the horrible system of communism. The Netherlands, who have been stripped by the Nazis, can still maintain an army in the East Indies and are shooting the natives there that dare make demonstrations for liberty. France, another nation that expects large help from us, is maintaining an army in Indo-China and trying to reconquer the Annamites.

It certainly must cost these begging nations heavily in money and supplies to support such enterprises. If we keep on giving them our billions they will soon not beg but demand—or else.

FIT FOR DUTY

Chicago, Oct. 15—I've been in the army for 40 months now, was wounded in action, and was hospitalized for 10 months. Altho partially blind in my left eye, I still am in the service and don't know when I'll ever get out. I'm sure a lot of these so-called 4-F's who were fit enough to work 10 to 14 hours a day could do police work, and relieve us veterans who are more than anxious to get out of the service and settle down.

FOOTBALL, THE ESSENTIAL SPORT

Chanute Field, Ill., Oct. 15—Charlie Trippi has been declared surplus by the 3d AAF, by his possession of 41 points [12 of those being pregnant points]. We are wondering why?

We understand and appreciate football as a national pastime, but we cannot see where that should have preference over jobs and professions that are essential to the protection of the health and welfare of the American public. The New Deal politicians of Georgia have placed the football playing possibilities of Charlie Trippi above and beyond the natural abilities of the common soldier to produce or show that he can do more in his profession to benefit the general public.

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 15—How do people like Bob Nussbaumer get discharged after nine months service in the United States? Bob starred in the Michigan back field last season, then the marines called him. He had enlisted in the marine V-12 plan and he was given his discharge in time to play football for Michigan again this season. The way I figure it Mr. Nussbaumer has the grand total of nine points. I know he wasn't discharged because he was over age, as he reached the ripe old age of 21 last April.

WHAT GOOD ARE POINTS?

Chicago, Oct. 17—My boy has been in the army almost five years and out of the country 27 months with the 33d division. Last May he had 82 points and now has 90 or more. Instead of giving him a discharge on points, the army sent him to Japan two weeks ago.

PET PIGEONS

Chicago, Oct. 15—Is there a city ordinance prohibiting the keeping of pigeons within the city limits? The pigeons about which I am concerned are only a limited number, kept merely as pets.

B. T.

No, but Sec. 98-16 of the Municipal code says: "Any person having custody or control of an estray or fowl that shall permit said animal or fowl to go loose or at large in any of the public ways in the city shall be fined not more than $10 for each offense, provided, however, that this section shall not apply to homing pigeons, except in the 7th ward." The provision implies that pigeons other than "homing" are included. If the condition amounts to a nuisance, it can be enjoined.

DAUGHTER SAYS HEIRESS WANTED DRINKS STRAIGHT

Hurled Custard Dessert at Dinner, Court Told

Miss Alice Lyons, 22, testified yesterday before a jury in Judge John A. Sbarbaro's Superior court that her mother, Mrs. Alice Lyons, heiress to an Indianapolis traction fortune, was addicted to excessive drinking.

Alice, modishly garbed in royal blue, was called by Robert E. Cantwell, Jr., attorney for her father, Dr. Horace Lyons, ear, nose, and throat specialist at 6 N. Michigan av., who has countered his wife's separate maintenance suit with a cross-bill for divorce. Mrs. Lyons, who lives at the Stevens hotel, alleges that she turned over more than $400,000 to her husband.

Daughter Tells of Family Talk

Dr. and Mrs. Lyons were a devoted couple, the daughter testified in response to questioning by Cantwell, until about 1938. Since then, Alice went on, "there has been a great deal of talk in our family over the amount of liquor mother was drinking."

Dr. Lyons, Alice asserted, consistently begged his wife to moderate her drinking "so we could be happy again." She said she has seen her mother "unable to walk, thick of tongue, sick, and unable to eat."

The witness said that she and her sister, Jane, 15, on "innumerable" occasions appealed to their mother to cut down on her drinking.

Seasonal Favorites Told

Alice was asked by Cantwell what types of drinks her mother favored.

"In the winter it was bourbon toddies," the girl responded, "and in the summer gin fizzes." She said she and Jane mixed the toddies on their mother's instructions.

"And those were?" Cantwell asked.

"We would take a standard old fashioned glass, put in two pieces of ice and a twist of lemon peel, and fill it up with bourbon," Alice responded.

When the girls tried to water down the drinks a bit, she went on, her mother became angry with them.

"Abusive When Drinking"

During 1941, 1942, 1943, and 1944, and in 1945, the witness said, she saw her mother intoxicated "at least once or twice a week."

"Mother was just wonderful," Alice said, "except when she was drinking. Then she wasn't her ordinary self at all. She would get abusive with me and Janie at dinner."

Thruout her testimony, Alice avoided looking at her mother, who remained seated with Benjamin Ehrlich, her attorney.

On occasion Mrs. Lyons placed her forehead in her hands, as Alice testified that "one night when mother had too many drinks at the dinner table she became annoyed and threw a custard dessert at me."

Pessimistic on Reconciliation

Ehrlich, in his cross-examination of Alice, asked her if she knew that her father had prescribed a double sherry before dinner to give her mother an appetite.

Alice said she hadn't known that, but admitted her mother had consumed more double sherries than whisky in the last year.

Alice ended her testimony by declaring she believed her parents should be divorced. There was no hope of a reconciliation, she said.

"His father should have to do this. He's the one who bought him the outfit."

LICENSE COURT SPEEDS TRIALS IN HOUSING CASES

A new practice in the license branch of the Municipal court, which has become congested with complaints, was announced yesterday by Chief Justice Edward S. Sheffler.

A cafeteria style court, presided over by a clerk, will be set up to handle nonhousing license and permit cases involving penalties up to $25, freeing the License court to deal with offending landlords. The court's work will be further systemized by clearing cases brought by the building, fire, and health departments thru Roy S. Spaulding, coordinator of permits and inspection.

Three fines for maintaining unfit buildings were imposed by Judge Erwin J. Hasten on Jack Winkler, who with his father, Joseph, operates tenements on the near north side. Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court yesterday revoked the probation granted Ellsworth Schlopkoff, 30, and sent him back to prison to serve 1 to 2 years on his original conviction of robbing a gasoline station. The probation was revoked after Judge Ward learned that Schlopkoff had been sentenced to a year in the Bridewell on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Police arrested Schlopkoff Sept. 29 after he threatened to shoot up the tavern at 1009 Madison st. when the bartender would not serve him a drink. CHIEF CLEARS ARMOUR OF WILD DRIVING CHARGE

A charge of reckless driving against Philip D. Armour Jr., 27, a member of the meat packing family, was dropped yesterday by Police Chief John C. Clausen of Northbrook as a result of Armour's exoneration Thursday by a coroner's jury of blame for the automobile death Oct. 7 of Mrs. Myrtle Cooper, 49, of 807 Milburn st., Evanston.

Chief Clausen substituted a charge of passing a truck on the wrong side of the road, based on testimony given at the inquest.

A transcript of testimony taken at a previous hearing showed no mention of the passing of the truck. For that reason Clausen objected to the transcript. Coroner Brodie said an investigation convinced him that the court reporter had not omitted any testimony from the transcript.

Mrs. Cooper was killed when her automobile was struck head on by the car driven by Armour in Skokie rd., Northbrook.

OMIT RUSSIANS AS FAO SETS UP 10 COMMITTEES

BY GAIL COMPTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

QUEBEC, Oct. 19—Russia failed to get even one position on the 10 committees set up today by the united nations food and agricultural organization [FAO].

Delegates elected chairmen of the committees on rules, finance, administrative arrangements, constitutional and diplomatic questions, nutrition, agriculture, forestry, markets, fisheries, and statistics.

The Russian delegates twice attempted to delay the elections and it was evident they hoped Russia would draw some of the top positions. Conference delegates politely heard the plea for delay and then overruled the suggestion.

The Russian delegations credentials have finally arrived at the conference but the Reds have not signed the constitution and still do not have the privilege of voting. The delegates, headed by Vasili Sergev of the foreign trade commissariat, have professed eagerness to sign the constitution, and it is expected they will do so as soon as an appropriate ceremony can be arranged.

No Domination, India Warns

India warned the conference, which is trying to shape a program for raising the nutritional standards of poorly fed countries, that no nation or group of nations "can be allowed to dominate the FAO if it is to be successful."

Girja Bajpai, leader of the Indian delegation, said that no nation has a monopoly on agricultural information and scientific ability, and that unless the organization is truly international in personnel it will fail as "did a recent united nations conference."

"With 30 per cent of India's 400 million people going without enough to eat and a per capita income of only $22 a year, we still do not come to this conference as beggars asking only for help," he said. "India, too, has a highly organized department of agriculture and we possess a good deal of knowledge which we can offer for the benefit of other nations."

Resources Still to Be Tapped

Bajpai said India needed mechanical equipment for its farms, a chance to send its men to other nations for training, and the benefit of an international exchange of scientific knowledge. Science, he asserted, can tap untouched resources of India and raise its living standards.

Philip Noel Baker, minister of state, said England had sent a delegation in the belief that the conference would be the basis for helping to remove hunger as a cause of war.

Several nations pleaded for the success of the FAO. Peru, Yugoslavia, and Australia told of the help they expected to receive. Each asserted the FAO must succeed because the world is watching to see if the united nations can work together for mutual benefit.

FLOWER WEEK IN NATION WILL OPEN TOMORROW

The floriculture industry does an annual business of $600,000,000 and employs 250,000 workers, J. Fred Austin, president of the Society of American Florists, said here yesterday in calling attention to national flower week, Oct. 21 to 28.

During the war growers produced more than 300,000,000 vegetable plants for war gardners in addition to growing flowers for home demand and filling the orders of 3,000,000 service men overseas for flowers for mothers, wives, and sweethearts.

"Scientific geneticists had only just begun to apply their science in the field of floriculture when the war started," Austin said, "and the development of new and finer varieties of flowers can be expected soon to exceed the expectations of even the most imaginative."

PLANES SEARCH LAKE IN VAIN FOR NAVY CHUTIST

Naval authorities at Glenview Naval Air station said yesterday that a two day search by seven planes had failed to find any trace of Sgt. Donald Anderson, 29, of Boston, Mass., who parachuted from a storm tossed army transport over Lake Michigan last Sunday. The coast guard announced that it also had made a fruitless search.

Anderson, a veteran of 14 months in Europe as an engineer gunner in the army air forces, was crew chief of the plane. He jumped when a storm threatened to down the plane, which was en route from Glenview to the army air base at Greensboro, N. C. The pilot, Lt. W. K. Thompson of Madison, Wis., later rode out the storm and returned to the Glenview base.

Several other persons in the plane suffered slight injuries.

PAROLEE SEIZED FOR TAKING WIFE OF BENEFACTOR

William Miller, 40, a parolee from the Auburn, N. Y., state prison, was locked up at the detective bureau last night for parole violation because of his romance with the wife of a New York farmer to whom he had been paroled. Police found Miller in his flat at 853 N. Clark st., where he was living with Mrs. Winifred Fenton, wife of Ward Fenton of Baldwinsville, N. Y., to whom he had been paroled. Miller is scheduled to appear Monday in Felony court on a fugitive warrant.

TAX PAYMENTS MONTHS AHEAD; $203,854,661 TAKEN

Figures issued yesterday by County Treasurer Victor L. Schlaeger's office showed that collections of 1944 taxes up to Oct. 15 amounted to $203,854,661. The total levy was $233,547,521. Less than 12 million dollars of realty taxes remained unpaid and about 11 millions in personal property taxes. Several millions more was invalidated in litigation. The amount unpaid is 9.70 per cent of the total.

Schlaeger said that last February the percentage of unpaid taxes for 1943 was 10.29. He added that during 1945 his office has collected 40 millions of delinquent taxes, raising the year's total intake to 243 millions. Members of the county board, expressing pleasure at the collection ratio, said they intended to act early on a 1946 budget, one that will be in balance with anticipated revenues. However, they anticipate many requests for pay increases. Richard J. Daley, deputy county controler, said the county for the first time in years is paying its bills on time and intended to keep it that way.

PENDERGAST'S NEPHEW GIVEN $6,200 U. S. JOB

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 [Special]—Appointment of Francis G. Pendergast, 44, nephew of the late Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, Mo., as a commercial analyst in the government's office of inter-American affairs, was announced today by Francis Jamieson, acting director of the agency.

His job on which he will start Monday, will be to help prepare studies, reports, and recommendations on economic and financial conditions in Latin American countries to aid in the agency's economic development program in Central and South America. He will receive $6,200 a year.

Pendergast was one of the original chairmen of the Truman for Senator club in 1934. Tho he was never in the Kansas City political spotlight, he was the recipient of a large part of the city's insurance business in the days when his uncle ruled as a Democratic overlord. His brother, James, fell heir to the remains of the once powerful political organization when Boss Tom went to prison in 1939 for income tax evasion.

Whipple st., said Anton married her Dec. 11, 1944, under the name of Bryndac. Both wives discovered the bigamy after they met thru a telephone conversation. Judge Matthew D. Hartigan ordered Brindac held to the grand jury. Brindac was silent in court.

COMDR. HANSON ACCEPTS CALL TO CHURCH HERE

Bluejackets' Ex-Leader to Serve Lutherans

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Lt. Comdr. Hjalmar J. Hanson, former chaplain at the Great Lakes Naval Training center, founder of the famed Great Lakes Bluejacket choir and known as the John Philip Sousa morale builder of this war, has accepted a call extended by Moreland Lutheran church, Lotus av. and Huron st. In addition to bringing another distinguished pastor to Chicago, the Moreland church thus promises that the Great Lakes choir will sing again.

In making this anouncement, Herbert E. Exner, chairman of the church's pastoral call committee, said that Chaplain Hanson will be allowed time from pastoral work again to assemble units from the choir alumni—of whom there are nearly 23,000 across the country with 1,000 in Chicago—to keep alive the inspiration which swept across the country thru their broadcasts and other concerts.

Will Assemble for Festival

Chaplain Hanson, in outlining his plans, said he met alumni thruout his travels after he had been assigned to sea duty. There are 1,000 members of the alumni in Columbus, O., and at least 250 in Minneapolis. His 16 former assistant directors also are scattered about the country, ready to assemble local units. Altho he does not plan to return to radio with his Chicago choir, Chaplain Hanson contemplates several concerts annually. The Chicago Music festival, set for Aug. 17, 1946, has been named as the rallying event for choirs scattered thruout the country.

Chaplain Hanson had his first notable choir experience under Dr. F. Melius Christiansen in the St. Olaf college choir. Dr. Christiansen was to have been an honor guest at the 1945 Chicago Music festival, but illness prevented his coming. Dr. Edgar Nelson paid tribute to Dr. Christiansen at the festival luncheon as the man who brought a capella chorals to their height. Chaplain Hanson used the Christiansen technique at Great Lakes with a success that brought praise from the nation.

Held at 1,000 Voices

In addition to 123 coast to coast broadcasts by the choir under Chaplain Hanson's direction, the choirs divided into groups, Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish, and sang each Sunday to 50,000 men at services. The choir, always held to 1,000 voices despite the great turnover of Great Lakes men, made its radio debut with the Ford Sunday Evening hour on Pearl Harbor day, Dec. 7, 1941.

GEN. CALLES, 68, EX-PRESIDENT OF MEXICO, DIES

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 19 (AP)—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, 68, former president and "Iron man of Mexico," died today in the British-American hospital.

Gen Plutarco E. Calles

He suffered in recent days from gall bladder and stomach afflictions.

Four sons and five daughters survive him.

Calles was president from Dec. 1, 1924, until Nov. 30, 1928. After his presidency he was an exile for a short time and his enemies talked of trying him for his public acts. But when he returned to Mexico in 1929 he again dominated by the force of his personality and until 1935 he generally was reckoned as the biggest power in the country.

He began life as a country school teacher, got into the revolutionary movement at the start of the century and ruled firmly whether in office or out. When he retired from all public affairs some years ago he said, "the day of the strong man in Mexico is over."

The marriage of Miss Milly Francena Harmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin G. Harmon of Evanston, to John Orne Beattie will take place today in the Brick Presbyterian church in New York. A reception will follow in the St. Regis hotel. Mr. Beattie, son of Mrs. Edward W. Beattie of New York, is a graduate of Yale university and did graduate work at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His bride, who received her degree from Northwestern university, has been living in New York.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Why Girls Are Fired

An employer enumerates five reasons for dismissal of girls by his firm.

1. Failure to comply with company regulations and procedure. "One girl who is out of line disrupts an office," he says. "It makes no difference how they did things in other places where she may have been employed; she must adapt herself to her present position."

2. Failure to coöperate amiably with others. "Few men take the trouble to discover which one causes a rumpus. Most employers fire the girl who seems to be the trouble maker."

3. Poor work habits and a bad attitude toward the job. "The company pays for the services of the young woman not for her society. Unless she contributes to the success of the business she is likely to be on the asking end of another job."

4. Unfortunate repercussions of a girl's personal life. "The one who shows up repeatedly with a hangover or the one who travels with unsavory companions isn't a good investment."

5. Unpleasant personal attributes, slovenliness, or inappropriate clothing, which reflect on the standards of the company. "I've seen applicants neat as a pin come to work within a week after getting the job untidy and unattractive. The way a girl dresses for an interview should be a forecast of the way she intends to look during work hours."

Good Mothers Explain Adults to the Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Grownups are not the only ones who have to make allowances for children.

Children often have to make allowances for grownups. And sometimes, in a sort of desperation, we who are their parents have to lead them to it.

A recent article dealt with this rather more definitely on the basis of helping teen-age boys and girls to put up with certain adults whom they must encounter frequently. But today I want to give you an example of how even little boys and girls may have to have adults "explained" to them.

This is in connection with the damage grownups do when a new baby appears and they immediately relegate the firstborn to second place, or even ignore her completely. I often have suggested that, when this sort of thing goes on, the parents need to bring the offending relatives up short, either with tact or brutal frankness.

Having written to this effect, I was interested in receiving the following letter from a young mother:

"My dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I had a similar experience [referring to Anne and her mother] with a little son, and to make it worse, he was a stepson. In my case I found the child much more able to listen to reason than were the relatives, and I feel something can be done to relieve Anne of some of her hurts if her mother explains to her that it is nothing to feel bad over; that grownups have a great habit of raving over little babies, just as she [Anne] would make a big fuss over a little puppy or a kitten. Tell Anne that they acted just as crazy about her when she was a little baby, but that now she is a big sister, they think she understands their action in making such a fuss over the baby.

"Try to explain that love is something that people feel very deeply in their hearts and has not very much to do with 'O's' and 'Ah's.' As an example, ask her does she feel it necessary to 'O' and 'Ah' when mother comes into the room. Then ask her if she would express herself with 'O' and 'Ah' if some one brought a cute little puppy or kitten into the room. The answer probably would be 'Yes.' Then ask her would that mean that she liked the puppy better than mother. I believe and sincerely hope this will help her to understand. Tell her then that even grownups get hurt over some things they don't understand, but that when they understand, as you are sure she does now, they are not hurt again."

This is an unusually thoughtful letter. In these, or other words of your own devising, you too may be able to explain the queer ways of grownups to your child.

Post-War Pressure Cooker Is Time and Money Saver

BY EDITH WEIGLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 19—The October sun was streaming in the open window, the white curtains were moving in a breeze, and there was the aroma of coffee being brewed. Across the valley a grove of oak trees was russet red against a clear blue sky.

At one side of the room a luncheon table had been placed and four persons were enjoying a delicious meal. Only the presence of two stoves, one electric, the other gas, indicated that this was a testing kitchen, and only the rumble and roar of machinery in the distance made one realize this was a factory.

Virtually everything served at the luncheon had been cooked in the pressure cooker for which the plant is famous. Two cookers had been used. In one, pork chops, potatoes, and onions were prepared in the amazingly short time of 15 minutes; in the other, cauliflower and carrots were ready in exactly 3 minutes.

The chops had been thoroly browned in the open cooker first, which took a short time. Then the potatoes and onions had been piled on top of them, the patented lid had been fastened on, and, after a steady flow of steam had come from the petcock, indicating that the air inside the container had been released, the gauge had been attached. The little indicator in the gauge was kept pointing to the word "cook." If it went above that the heat was turned lower.

A pressure of 15 pounds was responsible for the short cooking period needed and for the delicious flavor of the food. The meat was so tender it could be cut with a fork, and the vegetables had retained all their natural coloring as well as their zest.

Pressure cookers are an economical buy in the long run, for you can use more inexpensive cuts of meats, knowing they'll come out tender and delicious. Also, your gas or electric bill will be lower, since a surprisingly small amount of heat keeps the gauge at the necessary 15 pounds pressure.

This Eau Claire factory made bomb and rocket fuses during the war, but now it is turning out both cast and pressed aluminum pressure cookers and is shipping them as fast as it can manufacture them. It will take another eight months, however, before production can catch up with demand, we were told by an officer of the firm. This plant is making only the popular four quart size, but others of the seven factories controled by the company are producing the following sizes: 9, 12, 16, 21, 27, and 40 quarts. The bigger ones are mostly used by farm wives, who do canning in large quantities.

All during the war the 16 quart pressure cooker was made, as it enabled war gardeners to put up their vegetables and fruits. Plans were then made to produce a 4 quart utensil that would be lighter in weight than the one made before the war, and this new pressed aluminum cooker with plastic, heatproof handles is now coming off the assembly line for the first time. It is 1½ pounds lighter than the cast aluminum cooker, which also is being made. The price is the same.

Every step in the manufacture of these time saving devices is carried out in the Eau Claire plant we visited. In the foundry we saw the aluminum ingots being melted by terrific heat, watched the pouring of the molten metal into molds, saw the removal of the utensil in its original rough state, and from there followed it thru the various processes of grinding and polishing, inspecting and re-inspecting until, all gleaming, it was given a final rubbing by hand with a flannel cloth before being wrapped in tissue paper and boxed, together with directions for its care and a special cook book of recipes, prepared in the testing kitchen.

Meat Rationing Will Continue Thru November

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—Red point rationing will continue thru November.

Agriculture Secretary Anderson disclosed this today, and indicated that rationing probably will last thruout the year.

Nevertheless, Anderson told reporters, some downward revision in red point values are probable beginning Oct. 28. He declined to discuss them on the ground that the fixing of point values is the function of the office of price administration.

A primary factor in the decision to continue rationing at least thru November is this country's commitments to foreign governments.

Another consideration is the necessity of building up supplies for the second quarter of 1946, when production of meat normally is relatively low.

From authoritative sources it was learned that the OPA had asked Anderson to consider the ending of all red point rationing Oct. 28.

The OPA was represented as feeling that liberalization of point values had made rationing largely a formality, and that the problem of enforcement had been increased by the general knowledge that rationing will not continue much longer.

Anderson's statement today on foreign commitments and low production of meat in the second quarter obviously was intended to help the OPA explain why it still is in the rationing business.

The red point value of butter is slated for a reduction, probably from 12 to 8 points.

Litle change, however, is expected in present values for choice cuts of beef, veal, and lamb, and almost all cuts of pork.

Anderson still hopes that food subsidies could be ended before next July 1. He declined, however to speculate on when the various subsidies will be ended.

The first subsidy to be removed is 5 cents a pound to butter processors. This subsidy will be removed Oct. 31, with a consequent increase of 5 to 6 cents a pound at retail.

Thru the Looking Glass

Adolescent skins which are prone to blemishes and embarrassing, angry outbreaks need a special kind of care, and to help cope with their particular problems one beauty expert has cued her line of preparations to meet the requirements of young skins—and with noteworthy results.

Her program of skin care is based on absolute cleanliness and among her products is a liquid facial soap that cleanses to perfection to make the skin less susceptible to infection and potentially dangerous blackheads. Splash the face and neck with warm water and for best results the cleanser should be used with a complexion brush. Work it thoroly over the entire surface, getting into all the little crevices where oil and dirt are apt to accumulate. The scrubbing should be done vigorously, but not roughly, and will help stimulate circulation and offset the sluggishness which is partially the cause of complexion complications. The cleanser is not a soap but works up a heavy lather which should be rinsed away with plenty of cold, cold water.

Most youngsters will find they need to use the cleanser at least two and possibly three times a day and regular use will help minimize the flow of excess oil and keep the skin sparkling and clean, so that pimples and other blemishes will have a hard time getting a start.

Good skin care with products designed to help foster a clear, healthy complexion will save a teenager the worry and discomfiture a broken out skin causes and are well worth the little time and money they require.

A Quonset Hut Might Solve the Housing Problem When Tallulah Bankhead Arrives

Theater folk who used to get special rates from hotels, or in some cases were proudly put up as guests of the management, are now finding the housing problem just as acute as less glamorous travelers. And in Tallulah Bankhead's case the situation is even tougher because Miss Bankhead and "Foolish Notion" arrive simultaneously with the American Legion convention. However, their press agent, Henry Senber, is perturbed but not panicked. Mr. Senber is just back from two years with the Seabees, and if it comes to the worst, he will run up a few Quonset huts on the lake front just across from the Studebaker.

Holiday Visitor?

The Shuberts, who now have all those Chicago theaters to fill, are toying with the idea of reviving "The Passing Show," which had 16 editions at New York's Winter Garden before it lapsed into oblivion. If the plan works out, the show will be along during the holiday, with Willie Howard heading the cast. Mr. Howard was in the first "Passing Show," back in 1912, possibly introducing the quartet from "Rigoletto."

The Luck of the Shaws

Irwin Shaw's new play, "The Assassin," about the murder of Adm. Darlan, closes in New York tonight after five performances, leaving little more of a ripple than the fact that its leading man, Frank Sundstrom, was described as a kind of Laurence Olivier with a Swedish accent. But G. B. Shaw, the indomitable, will have Christmas revival in "Pygmalion," with Gertrude Lawrence as Cockney Eliza Doolittle and Raymond Massey as Prof. Higgins, who deplores her accent and lives to regret it. They will play it for eight Broadway weeks only, as career filler, and it is their job to match memories of the Lunts and of that topnotch film with Wendy Hiller and the late Leslie Howard. Miss Hiller, by the way, is coming over from England next season with Robert Morley in "The First Gentleman."

Notes

Kenneth Horan's "Papa Went to Congress," to be published by Doubleday, Doran next February, has been bought by M-G-M for approximately $100,000, which will make Eddie Dowling wish he had gone thru with that bid for an early option. Asked what she will do with all that money, Mrs. Horan, who invariably looks like a symphony [or at least a sonata] in gray, replied, "I'm going to buy me a costume of solid ermine." . . . Cheryl Crawford, Eva Le Gallienne, and Margaret Webster have launched a $300,000 stock selling campaign for their American Repertory Theater, Inc. . . . Anton Dolin and Alicia Markova will leave Ballet Theater at the end of the New York engagement for a tour of their own, rejoining the company here at Christmas. . . . The Ballet Russe's recent Civic Opera house visit was its most prosperous. . . . New York's Metropolitan Opera will have a splendid new home in a couple of years.

Latin American Authors to Be Discussed at Tea

The Pan-American council will present the first program in a series on Latin American authors and their works at an inter-American tea at 3 p. m. today in the Woodrow Wilson room, 84 E. Randolph st. A biographic sketch of Garcilaso de la Vega, Peruvian author, and a discussion of his book, "The Reign of the Incas," is to be given by Dr. Antonio Rubio, professor of romance languages at De Paul university. Attending the program as special guests will be Dr. Alfonso Rivero of Lima, Peru, and Dr. and Mrs. Eduardo Caseres, also of Peru.

Ask Volunteers for Red Cross Home Service

Volunteer women are needed in the home service corps of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross to assist service men making the transition to civilian life and for many other assignments, Mrs. Edwin W. Eisendrath, corps chairman, said yesterday.

She made a plea for the volunteers while on a tour of the newly installed home service unit at Fort Sheridan, where for the first time the Chicago corps is working at a military installation, functioning as an adjunct to the counseling service at the fort's separation center.

Mrs. Walter Heymann of Highland Park, a captain in the home service corps, heads the Fort Sheridan project. From 8 a. m. until 10 p. m. volunteers staff a desk there, available if a service man wishes to call on the Red Cross.

The home service corps is the link between the service man and his family, Mrs. Eisendrath said. Work is done in this area thru district offices—three city offices and two suburban, in Evanston and in Oak Park. Assignments for volunteers include investigating home conditions, interviewing, and getting verification of illness and death.

Volunteers should be between 21 and 60 years old and have a good educational background. A new training course begins Nov. 6, and to register women should inquire by calling at Chicago chapter headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., or telephoning Wabash 7850, Extension 365.

Mrs. Harry E. Hobbs of the Ambassador hotel, Mrs. Alfred Taylor of Glencoe, Mrs. William Rothermel of Winnetka, and Miss Helen Bournique of E. Walton st., vice chairmen of the home service department, accompanied Mrs. Eisendrath yesterday on the Fort Sheridan visit.

Jack and Jill Cast Will Give Play Today

The Jack and Jill Players will present a performance of "The Haunted Castle," a children's play written by the drama group's director, Miss Marie Agnes Foley, at 2:30 p. m. today in the theater at 180 E. Two Youngsters Enliven a Slow, Earthy Movie

"OUR VINES HAVE TENDER GRAPES"

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, directed by Roy Rowland, featuring Edward G. Robinson, Margaret O'Brien, James Craig, Frances Gifford, Agnes Moorehead, Morris Carnovsky, Jackie (Butch) Jenkins, Sara Haden, Greta Granstedt, and Dorothy Morris. Presented at the United Artists.

By Mae Tinee

Any one who likes youngsters will have a good time watching Margaret O'Brien and Jackie Jenkins operate in this somnolent opus about life in a small farm community peopled by Norwegians who migrated to this country. Those two walk away with the picture—their squabbling and playing seem completely natural and typical—while the adults are a pretty uninteresting group in contrast.

Altho I am no authority, the Jacobson farm really looks like a farm to me—not a musical comedy one, either. The buildings are shabby and plain, the house lacking in conveniences, the work endless, with rain and mud and snow contributing additional discomforts.

Actually, this film with the lengthy title is the story of a barn—a lovely clean, shining barn, housing cows individually, representing the peak of one man's ambitions and toil and savings and the envy and goal of a younger man. It exemplifies a lot of things, including a farmer's old fashioned stubbornness and an ultimate tragedy, the acme of disaster to those who earn their living from the soil. The scenes in which the barn is destroyed are skilfully handled and heart-breaking to watch.

The love interest seems completely unnecessary to the story; even the principals look outstandingly pretty among the others of the cast, permitted to be as plain as humanity actually is. The man is a young philosopher [James Craig] who runs the local paper and is called "Editor." He loves Fuller Junction and its inhabitants, and Frances Gifford is the very pretty but rather stilted school teacher who despises the place and left her beloved Milwaukee only because she needed experience to get a degree. To her the people are cruel and stupid and stingy and Editor has quite a time changing her mind.

Margaret O'Brien is the daughter of Martinius Jacobson [Edward G. Robinson], a cute, but super-sensitive only child, doted on by her parents and constantly dogged by her little cousin, Arnold [Jackie Jenkins]—a very normal little boy who doesn't mind to fib and has an avid interest in all things that are "killed dead."

While there is much that is attractive in this offering, there is also a deliberateness, a self-consciousness and a studiously heavy-handed air which makes it flat and lacking in spontaneity.

Edward G. Robinson works hard as Martinius Jacobson, as does Agnes Moorehead as his wife, but neither of them seemed even remotely Norwegian to me, and they frequently forgot their accents—with the exception of numerous "yahs."

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 19 — Mitch Leisen's first picture for the new year will be "Golden Earrings," by Yolanda Foldes. It's the story of a British officer who escapes from a German concentration camp with a gypsy's help. They fall in love. When he returns to English life, he finds all the zest has gone out of it, so he goes back to his gypsy. Isn't that a natural for Ray Milland and Paulette Goddard? Then, too, it would give Paulette a chance to say, "It's just the gypsy in me." . . . With Jimmy Stewart, Lucille Ball, and John Garfield about to free lance, our producers are beginning to realize that all actors aren't like Lassie. When you throw them off the boat, they don't always swim home. . . . Herman Mankiewicz is so proud he's purring louder than Leo the lion because his son, Sgt. Don, who's been with the 79th division in Germany, sold his first story to the New Yorker.

Another Joins the Ranks

Our newest independent producer is Ed [Archie] Gardner. He'll do "Murder in Duffy's Tavern." Frank Gruber, who did the script for "Johnny Angel," is writing the story. . . . John Houseman's first R. K. O. picture will be "The Girl from Memphis." Houseman flew in from New York, where he's directing Mary Martin in "Lute Song," to confer with Bill Dozier. The picture is to get going in January, when Joan Fontaine will have finished "From This Day Forward." . . . Kay Francis is cleaning up in Patsy Ruth Miller's play now on tour, but it needs a rewrite job, so Kay will not be among those present when it reaches Broadway in December.

Honeymoon in Hollywood

Andy Russell and Della Norell will honeymoon right on the set of "Breakfast in Hollywood," because Ed Golden has added another song for Andy to croon, and it has to be done the day after the wedding. . . . Johnny Meyers is playing host to J. A. Krug at Palm Springs over the week-end. Krug has promised to decide in a week whether he'll join up with Eric Johnston's producers' group. He says he was surprised at the offer. . . . Adm. Halsey has come and gone. He paid our people a great tribute at the Cocoanut Grove. In return, we gave him one of the worst shows I've ever seen. The entertainers are all good in their special niches, but the show was slow moving, dull witted, and poorly coördinated. The low note was reached in an alleged joke about a horse. The comic forgot that the admiral likes his horses white. We're sorry, admiral; we'll do better next time.

A Little of This and That

Freddie Martin's little boy has named Jack Finn's version of Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumblebee." He calls it "Bumble Boogie." . . . Betty Grable had her contract torn up, and 20th Century handed her a new one for seven straight years without options, at such a salary that little Victoria could live up to her queenly name. She might even help pay the British war debt if she felt so inclined. . . . Ted Straeter is introducing Mickey Rooney's "Peek-a-Boo" on the radio. Mick wrote the song for his baby. . . . Rudolf Friml's son, Bill, plays the piano at the Beverly Tropics. . . . Ramsey Ames is wearing a fake engagement ring to keep the wolves away. Is she kiddin'! . . . Barbara Stanwick threw a party for her maid on the set of "Love Lies Bleeding." Barbara gave her a fur coat, and the cast and crew gave her a brown bag to match.

AN UNSURPASSED STORY OF DEEP HUMAN EMOTIONS!

TODAY! 8:45 a.m.

A story aglow with the shining small joys, the hopeful toil, of plain people . . . bright and sunny with the laughter of children . . . intensely endearing with many gentle loves . . . furious with storm, fire, flood . . . sublime as the vast outdoors that is its setting.

MARGARET O'BRIEN

EDW. G. ROBINSON

in the perfect dramatization of George V. Martin's best-seller

"Our Vines Have Tender Grapes"

Across green meadows and broad pastures they lead the way into your heart . . . some carefree, some not . . . some wisely tender, some unwisely stern . . . but all bound to each other by common ties of courage against disaster . . . and a reverent closeness to the good earth!

Sugarless, fatless, and extremely easy to make are these good little pecan bars. They're rather chewy, have a lot of flavor, and make a perfect tea cooky. Be sure to spread the batter thin.

Quick Pecan Bars

[11 inch square pan]

1 can sweetened condensed milk
½ cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon molasses
¼ cup chopped pecans

Blend ingredients and spread ¼ inch thick in a well greased pan. Bake at 350 degrees for about 25 minutes. Cut into bars or squares while warm and remove from pan. These bars may be cut very small for tea party service.

Isn't it a blessing that rich cream came back in time for oyster stew? Oyster stew is good with plain milk, of course, but it's better with a cup of cream in addition to the milk. Nothing could be easier to make than oyster stew, but one must take care not to overcook the bivalves. They're allergic to heat.

Here's how I like to make oyster stew: First pick over a quart of oysters and remove bits of shell. This may be done by putting them in a strainer and draining off the liquid, which should be saved for the stew, then rinsing the oysters with fresh water and going over them by hand. Dry oysters and saute in ¼ cup butter for just a minute, until the edges begin to curl. Have ready a kettle containing 6 cups milk and cream, scalded [1 cup cream is sufficient], 1½ teaspoons salt, pepper, a dash of celery salt, and ½ teaspoon worcestershire sauce. Add oyster liquor, oysters, and butter and give the stew just about a minute more of heat before serving. This amount of stew will serve five or six on a chilly evening—and all you need with it is a large bowl of tossed greens, plenty of crackers, and fruit for dessert.

Speaking of oysters, here's a simple but elegant way to serve them: Saute the cleaned oysters in butter until the edges curl, season with salt and paprika, remove to a hot dish and swirl the skillet out with a little white wine, sauterne or another. Pour the wine over the oysters and serve at once.

Sometime when you can spare 1¼ cups sugar, try this recipe for a really dark red devil's food. Soda, sweet milk, and a generous amount of chocolate are responsible for the attractive color.

Devil's Food

[9 by 9 inch square pan]

1¾ cups sifted cake flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
4 ounces unsweetened chocolate
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour with salt. Cream fat and sugar until fluffy, add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, and beat thoroly after each. Melt chocolate over hot water, cool and add, mixing well. Dissolve soda in milk and add vanilla. Add dry and liquid ingredients to creamed mixture in alternate portions, beating well after each addition. Turn into greased loaf pan and bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes.

TURN IN WASTE FATS!

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Grape Conserve

[Makes two pints]

2 pounds Concord grapes
2 oranges
1 cup raisins
2 cups sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts

Wash grapes and remove stems and seeds. Slice the oranges as thinly as possible [do not peel]. Combine fruits with raisins and sugar and cook until mixture is thick and clear. Remove from heat and add nuts. Pour into clean hot jars and seal immediately.

Pads Needed to Give Shape to Shoulders

BY REA SEEGER

Despite the secret of their actual size, color, and shape, shoulder pads are apparent in the correct silhouette of the coat, dress, suit, and even blouse. Without these handy layers, there's all the difference between smart, sharp shoulderlines and an indifferent, sometimes sloppy list; accordingly any informative dissertation on the subject of shoulder pad shopping and supplies is important. No coat, suit, or blouse fits as it should—that is, snappy, sharp, and sleek—without the aid of these frankly fake extra layers.

While some quipsters compare the thickest pads to football shoulders, smart shoulderlines are those that are clean cut, wide, and with a breezy sharpness. Few shoulders in the flesh have this crisp straight across outline, hence the necessity for cleverly made and designed pads. The supplies are plentiful on all notion counters and in the specialty spots. You can find any kind and size to fit the dress or blouse or suit you wish to wear. These range in tiny triangular models, thin but effective, to the exaggerated models cleverly copied from the original design of Adrian's now famous thick and wide pads, the signature of all his clothes. Brown, white, black, and a few in gray and navy are available.

A brand new idea has just been unpacked in one shop, where, as in other shops and stores, the pads are sold in the pattern or notion or fabric departments. This new device is one of a cool, thin, airy net bodice in flesh, white, or black. The shoulder pads are securely fastened or incorporated right into the shoulder sections of the net. The bodice ties with a tape so that the pads will stay snugly across the shoulders. Pads themselves are of featherweight plastic inclosed in covers of thin rayon. This bodice with pads is wearable under blouse or dress.

Useful Patterns

Sleeping togs for small fry are easy and inexpensive to make. Style No. 2963 is designed for sizes 1 to 6. Size 4 requires 2¾ yards of 35 inch material. Shorts and undershirts for men also can be made by the clever seamstress. Style No. 3868 is designed for chest sizes 30 to 44. Size 38 requires 1⅞ yards of 35 inch material to make the undershirt and 1½ yards of 35 inch material to make the shorts. For a similar pattern in boys' sizes, 4 to 14, order Style No. 2955.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The fall and winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Boy's Absence Makes Girl's Heart Wander

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

This is for girls only. And only for some girls. It's for those young characters who were happy enough when the fellows were around, phoning every night and taking them out twice a week. As long as their local joy boys were there, ready to grant their every wish right down to tying their shoelaces, they were contented. And they were loyal. But as soon as their young rover boys marched off to war, they forgot about them. Even tho they may have talked in terms of third finger, left hand before the fellows left, suddenly they've given the boys the brush.

on the SOLID side

Here's a letter from a young soldier with a lot on his mind:

"I've been in the army 10 months without a furlough and don't stand a chance of one for another four months. When I left home I had a long talk with my girl, with whom I've gone for two years, and she decided to wait for me. For the first three months I heard from her every day, and I hit the mails every day, too. But suddenly she stopped writing and I didn't hear for about three weeks. When she finally wrote it was to say that she had changed her mind about us. I've had an occasional letter from her since, but they were strictly casual. Some other fellows have gotten the same deal from their girls."

It's the same old, sad story about absence making the heart a wanderer. When the beau boy was in town the gal was content, but love life via the mails didn't appeal to her, and now the fellow is left high, dry, and stranded. She lives a gay life back home, while he spends his evenings re-reading her old letters and wondering where he made his mistake. So unless a gal is sure when a fellow goes away that she wants to be part of his post-war plans, she won't make any promises. You may think that all's fair in love and war, but it's surprising how many feelings get hurt that way.

"Rumor Had It"

By Christopher Hale

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

ERICA HELD

"I don't believe you are guilty, Erica. But they may put you in jail for a night or two till they prove it to their own satisfaction. Have you ever seen our jail?"

Mr. Izenga snarled, "Do you think for one instant that I would let Erica spend five minutes in jail while I've a breath left in my body?"

"You said it, Mr. Izenga." Toby Newcomb walked into the room. "I hope this isn't supposed to be private. I heard Price yelling clear down the drive. French has got a couple of troopers in front and back."

"See! If you'd come when I told you to, we could be out of this," Huntley growled at Erica. "You'll be sorry when you finish up the night in that jail."

"Sorry to disappoint you, Price," Toby Newcomb drawled. "I made a deal with French. They're going to hold her in Westerly in her own room until they find out the straight of this. I promised she'd coöperate when I found her."

"Why, you dirty traitor!"

"You didn't think that harebrained scheme of yours was going to help her, did you? She would be branded as guilty if she ran off and hid."

"You don't care what she suffers," Huntley said.

"O, don't I?" Newcomb's eyes met Erica's.

From the doorway Ridge Dawson said, "This looks like a meeting of The Underground. What's up? I was called to know if Erica was hiding in my apartment. What goes on?"

"Do you meap to say it's not all over town by this time?"

"Well, there are rumors that something had happened to Lucianna but it sounded too good to be true."

"It's not funny, Uncle Ridge," Erica said.

"O, no!" Huntley shuddered. "They're accusing Erica . . ."

"I'll handle this." Mr. Izenga began the repetition of what Erica had told him. His tense indignation finally wore thru Ridge's selfish unconcern.

Ridge let himself down in a chair, looking old and frightened. He put in angry questions, just as Mr. Izenga had done. Why had she gone to that apartment alone? And surely she could, at least, make a guess at the identity of the man to whom Lucianna had spoken.

"I tell you I can't," Erica repeated hotly. "Good heavens, I'm not such a dolt that I don't see the value of identifying him. But I can't do it. Just two words."

"But, did he sound familiar?"

"Look, I . . . do . . . not . . . know! If you asked me the rest of your life I couldn't say more than that."

"But the police will want to know," he persisted.

"Let her alone," Mr. Izenga commanded.

Ridge sat glowering at the carpet. "Don't tell me the police are fools enough to think a lovely girl like Erica guilty. Nobody could think her capable of that."

Well, he was right, there, Mr. Izenga agreed. Erica had finished an impromptu toilette. She leaned against the dresser now, facing them. A miracle of composure looked out of her hazel eyes. Her mouth was serene.

Then her expression sharpened as if to meet a challenge. She lifted her chin higher, gazed toward the door. Mr. Izenga followed the dotted line.

He said, "I suggest this meeting adjourn to the library downstairs."

Mr. Izenga said, "There's a little matter that has . . . uh . . . slipped my mind. I intended to mention it to you before. It's possible Miss Duprez may have had Mrs. Pomeroy's diamond and sapphire necklace. Very valuable."

"We're covering that." French stood up. "The safe was open and cleaned out but I'm having my men search every inch of the place. Anything else?"

"No." Mr. Izenga retreated into his dignity. The telephone rang. French answered it.

"Where'd you find it?" he asked. "I see. Wait a sec." He turned from the mouthpiece. "Can any one here positively identify Mrs. Pomeroy's diamond and sapphire necklace?"

"I can," Mr. Izenga added.

"Okay. Bring it over here, to Mr. Izenga's house," French spoke into the telephone and hung up. "So that's your story, Miss Pomeroy?"

"Yes. I hope you don't think I'd just sit there till somebody came to find her . . . if I'd done it."

"You might have been waiting for some one else. You might have thought nobody would discover it for hours. You wouldn't know some busybody in the apartment house would call the sheriff," the lieutenant said crisply."

French was turning to Ridge Dawson. "Might as well make a collection of alibis while it's fresh in your minds. Mr. Dawson, let's have your evening."

"Certainly," said Ridge with hauteur. "Feeling there might be a murder tonight, I provided myself with an excellent alibi, for once. I had dinner with Huntley at the Tea Shoppe as a score of worthy citizens will assure you. I reserved a table for 6 o'clock. The place is so popular you have to take second choices as early as 6:30."

"That's right," Huntley Price said earnestly. "I wanted to ask Uncle Ridge's advice about some things so he said we'd have dinner together."

French said, "When did you leave the restaurant?"

"O, about 7 . . . 7:15 . . ." Ridge was airy. "We talked all the way to my apartment and Huntley came up. We went on talking . . . or rather he did, for a long time."

Huntley grinned rather sheepishly. "Maybe it just seemed like a long time. But I can tell you, Lt. French, that neither of us left the place until I went . . . at a quarter to 10."

French regarded them both in a pensive, interested way. Presently he asked, "Did you get your advice, Mr. Price?"

Toby Newcomb was next. He'd been with a friend, he said. French nodded. He seemed to know all about it. Perhaps Toby was being tailed. Erica did not seem disturbed.

Chicago Is Thrilling to Viennese Dancer Who Escaped Nazis

Felicitas Gobineau

Felicitas Gobineau, Viennese dancer, was thrilled with Chicago yesterday when she arrived from Texas for her first professional appearance in an American metropolis.

Altho Miss Gobineau and her accompanist-husband, David Sternberg, have been in America for six years, following an escape by air and sea from Vienna in 1939, the dancer has been learning English and getting "the feel of America" by dancing for audiences in the southwest. Sternberg is head of the music department at Baylor university, Waco, Tex.

Miss Gobineau was born in Romania but went to Vienna when a child to study the dance. With her husband, she toured Russia, Hungary, Austria, and Latvia, developing a modern style which discards the classical ballet. She will appear in a recital in Kimball hall tomorrow afternoon.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"If cake flour is used in pie crust will the pastry be more flaky and tender?"

No, bread flour seems to produce a flakier crust. Tenderness depends upon the amount and kind of fat used and the amount of water added in the blending.

"How can I store fruit cake so it will keep several months without molding?"

Wrap the cooled cake in waxed paper and store in an airtight container. If you wish to baste it, open the container every week or so and sprinkle brandy over the top of the cake. Don't use more than two tablespoons of liquor at one time.

"May chocolate be used if it has turned a grayish color?"

Yes, it's still edible. It probably was kept at too warm a temperature and the butter fat melted, and rose to the surface. When the temperature was reduced it hardened again giving the grayish appearance.

BREAK THE BANK, NEW QUIZ SHOW, TO BE ON W-G-N

Top Prize Is $1,000 in Program Tonight

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Break the Bank, a quiz show with the biggest bait yet, will make its bow over W-G-N-Mutual from 9:30 to 10 o'clock tonight. Persons picked to participate [in New York studios] may win as much as $1,000. The new program will start off each broadcast with $1,000 in the "bank." Each participant will be invited to choose a specific industry about which he will try to answer questions. Correct answers will pay from $5 to $500. After a contestant has answered nine questions correctly he gets a chance at a $1,000 question—and, if he can answer it correctly, wins the money. That's what the sponsor said yesterday. Bud Collyer is to be master of ceremonies. John Reed King will be quizmaster tonight.

George E. Probst has been appointed head of the radio office of the University of Chicago, succeeding John P. Howe, recently appointed executive assistant to Assistant Secretary of State William Benton, formerly vice president of the university. Probst, who is 28, has been associated with the radio office since 1939. The university's major radio activities are the Human Adventure, aired over W-G-N-Mutual, and the Round Table, on NBC.

Not since that singing mouse contest has NBC put on anything as unique, musically speaking, as is promised for noon today over WMAQ: Pigeons that whistle. The tuneful pigeons are owned by James P. Howe, retired Associated Press war correspondent who brought them from China. The birds whistle by means of tiny flutes or pan-pipes attached to their tail feathers. Howe will recount how they were developed by the early mandarins to frighten hawks away from their pigeons.

Diana Barrymore, daughter of John and a stage and screen personality in her own right, is joining the Jack Carson company as a regular next Wednesday evening on CBS.

Friends disclosed yesterday that Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, 87, for years boss of the 1st ward, will enter the Presbyterian hospital next Tuesday for observation and possible treatment of a recurrent ailment.

The nature of his illness was not disclosed, but it was said a minor operation may be necessary. On entering the hospital, Kenna will join a fellow politician, Ald. Budinger [1st], who has been under medical care since he fractured his hip in a fall a month ago.

LAKE THREATENS WATER PLANT OF HIGHWOOD AREA

The city council of Highwood was warned last night by Mayor Thomas F. Mussatto that immediate steps must be taken to prevent the city's waterworks from being engulfed in Lake Michigan.

The mayor informed the council that a recent lake storm had washed away 50 feet of the beach that protects the water plant from the lake and that, unless a bulkhead or jetty is constructed, this winter's storms will turn the plant into an island or sink it.

James Anderson III., city engineer, reported to the council that there was scarcely 10 feet between the plant and the lake on the north and east sides.

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 19—Lynn Waldorf and his Northwestern university football squad arrived in Minneapolis tonight chanting that popular refrain, "We did it before and we can do it again."

They refer, of course, to the historic gridiron contest in Dyche stadium, Evanston, on a gray November day in 1936. Minnesota, acclaimed as one of the most powerful units in the land, was rated at least two touchdowns stronger than the Wildcats. Coach Bernie Bierman had a record of 21 straight victories.

Some of you will remember what happened. The teams battled to a scoreless tie until late in the game when a 15 yard penalty was called on Minnesota's Ed Widseth for unnecessary roughness. The decision gave Northwestern the ball on the 1 yard line and on the next play the Purple pushed over a touchdown for a 6 to 0 triumph.

Gopher Offense Untested

Well, the Gophers of 1945 are rated at least two touchdowns better than the Wildcats. They have rolled up 109 points to their opponents' seven in winning three straight games. Northwestern has made only 32 points, one less than the total number scored against it while winning one game, losing one, and tying one. Again Bernie Bierman possesses a winning streak of 21 in a row.

Furthermore, Minnesota, thus far has met no foe the calibre of Indiana and Michigan, both of whom the Wildcats have encountered. The Gophers appear to have one of their old fashioned defensive teams. They give ground grudgingly. There is some doubt as to whether they possess the offensive spark to whip Northwestern, Ohio State, Michigan, and Indiana, the next four teams on their schedule.

Game Is Sellout

It's like old times in Minneapolis. Fans are clamoring for tickets. The last of the stadium's 55,000 seats was sold this morning. Few cities in the country match Minneapolis for football enthusiasm. No small part of the revived interest is due to the return of Bierman and Athletic Director Frank McCormick. Bernie builds the teams. Frank knows how to get out the crowds.

Minnesota has a marked advantage over Northwestern in experience. The Wildcats are essentially a kid team. The Gophers have Vic Kulbitski, Judd Ringer, Bob Fitch, Wayne Williams, Bob Hanzlik, and Bob Graiziger, all of whom have had three or four years of big time football.

There is some question about William's availability for tomorrow's game. He has been nursing an injured leg. If he is benched, Tom Cates, who did some fancy stepping against Fort Warren last Saturday, will be the starting left half back. While Cates is as good as Williams as a ball carrier he is not a forward passer and the Gophers realize they must throw the ball, if they are to spread Northwestern's defense sufficiently to make their running attack effective.

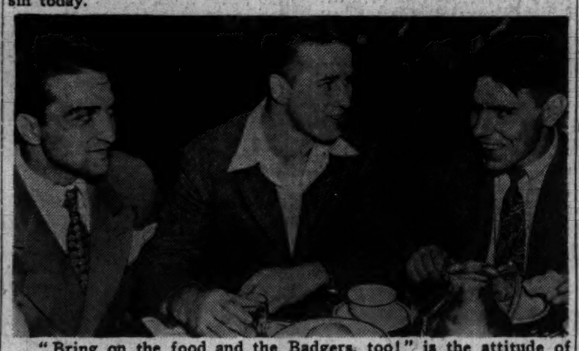
Judging by his expression, Coach Ray Eliot of the University of Illinois football squad may be warning Capt. Ralph Serpico (left) and Stan Stasica (right) against ordering any chocolate eclairs listed on menu at Union station restaurant. The Illini changed trains in Chicago last night en route to Madison, Wis., where they meet Wisconsin today.



"Bring on the food and the Badgers, too!" is the attitude of this Illini trio (left to right), Lou Agase, Bob Jones, and Bill Butkovich.

BATTERED ILLINI BATTLE AILING BADGERS TODAY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19—The home town Badgers and the Illini from Urbana, two Western conference entrants who to all appearances merely are going along for the ride, will get together before 30,000 tomorrow in Camp Randall stadium for the purpose of determining which can or cannot score touchdowns. Whether the scoring will be on that side or this side, nobody seems willing to predict, but anyway it is to be the 23d football meeting between the two schools and some of the battles were headliners in their day.

Badger Ends Ailing

Some of the doubt which has surrounded the always willing gridiron dopesters could be due to the state of affairs in the rival camps, at least what has been announced as the state of affairs. There are, supposedly, so many ailing boys on both sides that the mourners figuratively are having a field day, unmindful of the possibility that some of the maimed may be galloping around like frisky colts tomorrow.

The Badgers' chief lament is written around the fact that the first string ends—Jack Mead and Ray Mals—are among those thought to have only a slim chance of showing themselves before the Dads' day crowd. Along with this, the wearers of the Cardinal are none too comfortably fixed with suitable replacements at any of the positions. There also is added the alarming fact that the Illini will be able to trot forth a number of fellows boasting varsity experience, and those perennial Illini tricks always are a worry.

They Usually Are Close

At last accounts the Illini were claiming that at least five members of what was the first team three weeks ago are gone or incapacitated. The Badgers, naturally enough, are very sorry over that, but can't help feel that there still is plenty for them to be concerned about. For instance, there will be those gentle little linemen such as Les Bingaman, Les Joop, Lou Agase and Capt. Ralph Serpico, an assortment that will provide the visitors with a big edge in poundage.

In the long series between the two schools there never has been one of those things called a rout—that is a 50 or 40 to 0 affair. The highest margin was the 27 points with which the Badgers triumphed in 1900.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 19—Indiana university, only member of the Western conference which has not won a football championship, meets Iowa here tomorrow, confidently expecting to continue undefeated in the 1945 campaign which conceivably may bring the Hoosiers their first title. Indiana's squad arrived in near-by Cedar Rapids this afternoon for final drill and was to remain there over night.

Indiana has beaten Michigan and Illinois but in between was a 7 to 7 tie with Northwestern. This in itself could be sufficient to eliminate the Hoosiers from the conference race even if they are victorious over remaining opponents, Iowa, Minnesota, and Purdue. Indiana has the opportunity, of course, to take care of the Gophers and Boilermakers. Either Purdue or Ohio State should be eliminated from the undefeated class tomorrow and Michigan can help Indiana's cause since the Wolverines are scheduled with Minnesota, Purdue, and Ohio State in the current leaders' group.

This Is the Big One to Bo

Coach A. N. [Bo] McMillin, author of that catch phrase, "Indiana's pore little boys," refuses to look farther ahead than tomorrow's game. He is now concerned over the Hawkeyes, altho Iowa has yielded 82 points in defeats by Ohio State and Purdue.

McMillin's boys are in excellent shape for tomorrow's game and will have two starters who were not available when Indiana defeated Michigan, 13 to 7. They are John Cannady, said to be recovered from a leg injury received last summer, and Pete Pihos.

Two Hoosier Frosh to Start

Columbus, O., Oct. 19—This perennially football-wacky city tonight was all steamed up in old time style for Ohio State's first vital clash of the 1945 campaign, tomorrow's battle with the Purdue Boilermakers. Major excitement around Broad and High sts. this evening centered in a search for tickets by late comers, and tardy ones were having no luck, a sellout crowd of 74,000 having been in effect for three days for this battle between the Big Nine's only undefeated and untied elevens to date. Minnesota technically is in that class but the Gophers have played no conference games.

The most relaxed citizen in town this evening was Henry D. Taylor, director of ticket sales, who closed up his ducat wickets with an emphatic "Sold out!" last Tuesday afternoon. It has been a right busy season for Mr. T., who anticipates new records in the Buckeye counting room, both at home and away. The estimated 1945 attendance for the six games in Ohio stadium is approximately 375,000, against last year's record of 336,802, registered with seven home games. With predicted road sell-outs for Minnesota, Michigan, and Pittsburgh, Ohio State will have attracted upwards of 550,000 come the season's end.

They Have Won 12 Straight

There's reason aplenty for this magnetism. The Buckeyes will roar onto the field tomorrow with a record of 12 consecutive victories, three of them 1945 decisions against Missouri, Iowa, and Wisconsin. The home lads haven't tasted defeat since 1943, when they surrendered, 20 to 14, to Hunchy Hoernschemeyer and his Indiana associates.

On the other hand, their foes of the morrow rolled into a downtown hotel shortly after 9 o'clock this evening with a mighty proud record of their own, one which has confused the pre-season gridiron handicappers no end. Cecil Isbell's Boilermakers have swept thru their first four games with Marquette, Great Lakes, Wisconsin, and Iowa.

Boilermakers are Husky

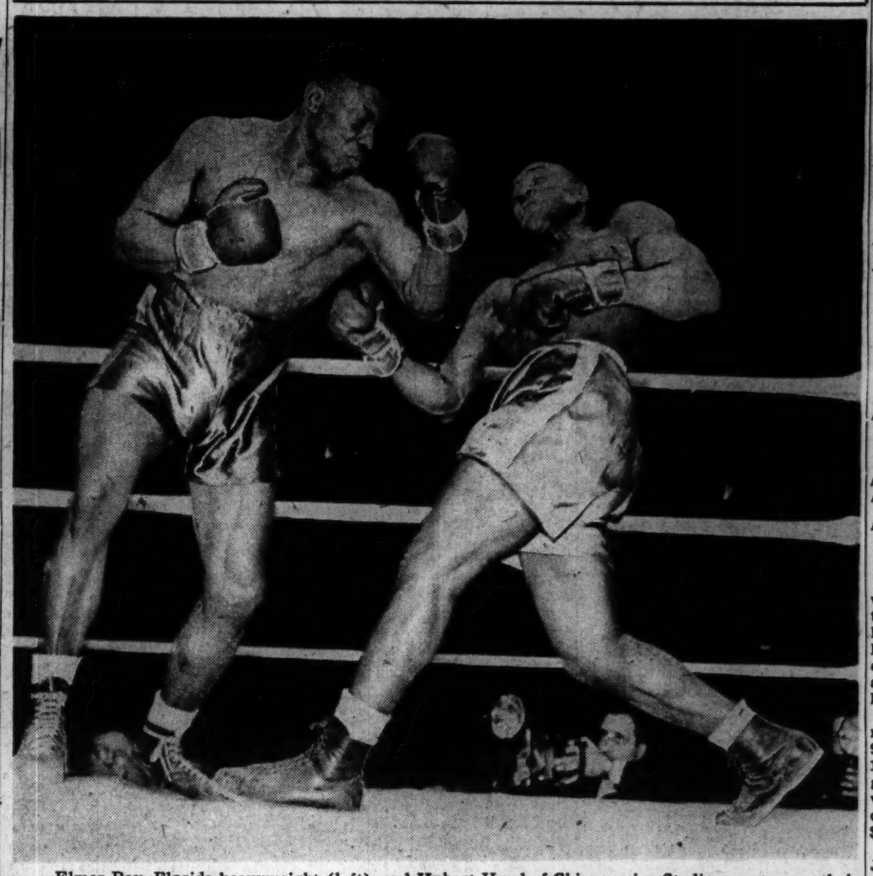
The Buckeyes went thru a brief limbering up drill this afternoon, then retired to a bivouac at the Columbus Country club. Thus, they weren't around to join the open eyed citizenry who stared at the size of the Boilermakers when they landed here. Among the more sizable visitors were Ken Glaesner, 225 pound guard; Tommy Hughes, tackle, who scales 220 pounds, and, of course, Ed Cody, whose 190 pounds don't prevent him from being one of the ablest full backs in the conference.

Among the lighter Boilermakers will be Bob De Moss, the quarter back who is developing into one of the league's ablest passers under the tutelage of Isbell, an old hand at pitching a football himself; Bill Canfield, the professor's son who ran wild against Iowa last week, and Alan Dale, the B-team graduate of last year. Dale will start at right half back in place of Dave Shaw, the swift Indianapolis freshman who has been out since the inaugural against Marquette with a shoulder separation. Purdue's hopes received a jolt when it was discovered that Dave had suffered an injury to the other shoulder in passing practice last Wednesday.

St. Mary's Preflight Team Upsets U. C. L. A. Eleven

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—A rugged St. Mary's Preflight team, led by former Stanford All-American Frankie Albert, tonight upset the University of California at Los Angeles, 13 to 6, marching 76 yards to score the winning touchdown on the first play of the fourth quarter. The clinching touchdown, which broke a 6 to 6 tie, was scored by Half Back Chuck Harrington on a 10 yard off tackle smash. Albert set up the play with a 15 yard pass to End Bob Walsh.

ELMER AND HUBERT FIGHT FOR KEEPS



Elmer Ray, Florida heavyweight (left), and Hubert Hood of Chicago give Stadium customers their money's worth in a 10 round bout which helped open the indoor boxing season last night. Both strive manfully to land finishing blows in this exchange. Ray, who has an impressive record, won the decision.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 19—Pittsburgh's Panther ain't the ferocious beastie he used to be, but this will not keep an anticipated sellout crowd of 67,000 from assembling in Pitt stadium tomorrow afternoon to see the Pitt lads defend themselves against the onslaughts of undefeated Notre Dame, conqueror of Illinois, Georgia Tech, and Dartmouth.

Notre Dame, as everybody knows, has a way of selling out the house wherever the Irish go, but added to this general popularity is the fact seven members of the Irish squad, including the spectacular freshman left half back, Phil Colella, and John Mastrangelo, left guard, of the starting line-up, are from the Pittsburgh area.

30 Point Margin Expected

Whatever may be said of the reason for the fan fever abounding hereabouts, it probably is not founded on enthusiasm over the way the Irish treated Pitt last year when Notre Dame was the victor 58 to 0. While this is another season, many observers hold that anything less than a 30 point margin for Notre Dame tomorrow can be considered an upset.

We did not come 500 miles to Pittsburgh to wear a chrysanthemum. Since we took up Hollywood [or three-games-in-one] gin rummy we have found our talents in addition woefully deficient. We had high hopes of sharpening up on our arithmetic come tomorrow's Notre Dame scoring activities. Now we aren't so sure—or are we?

Predicts Pitt Victory

We have known Clark Shaughnessy, Pitt coach, for a long time and never caught him in any idle gurgling. But just listen to what the man said at a rally here:

"Pitt should do more than just look good against Notre Dame—we ought to beat Notre Dame. Our team has worked like the very dickens. I think we are going to be quite ready. I question whether Notre Dame is good enough to take our measure."

Startling words those. Still, Clark Shaughnessy could be mistaken.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Oct. 19—Harry Stuhldreher, football coach and athletic director of the University of Wisconsin, is pretty mad, if you can rely on what you read in the papers, because one of his former players, Elroy Hirsch, has signed to play professional football with the Chicago team in the All-America conference. He has been saying some harsh things about John L. Keeshin, owner of the Chicago club, who already has paid Hirsch $900 on his pro contract. . . . Mr. Stuhldreher implies that Mr. Hirsch, who is having difficulty telling his old coach the facts, has been ungrateful to his alma mater and to his first collegiate gridiron instructor. . . . We say "first" instructor, because Hirsch played a year for Michigan as a service man after leaving Madison. . . . We haven't heard whether or not Fritz Crisler, too, is exercised about the incident, but if he is, he has not aired his feelings. . . . Hirsch, if he desired, could return to Wisconsin and play out his eligibility, as far as Keeshin is concerned. . . .

That is impossible because the Big Ten conference, of which Wisconsin is a member, disqualifies a boy from intercollegiate competition if he so much as walks down the street with a representative of a professional team. . . . The rule was passed to restrict the growth of professional baseball, not pro football, that's affected by the legislation. . . . The measure is unfair in principle. . . . A student playing football can make known he will join a certain law firm or engineering concern after graduation and his eligibility is not questioned. . . . He still can play in the band, altho he has made known he will join a professional group immediately after graduation. . . . But a boy who says he will play with the Chicago Bears or San Francisco All-Americas is ruled an outlaw pronto. . . . It adds up to nonsense. . . .

The furor about Hirsch is of little consequence. . . . The pros have lived up to their pledge that they will not tamper with a college player until his class has graduated. . . . The war has brought about a situation that gives both sides an argument. . . . It's up to the player to decide whether he has more to gain by completing his collegiate eligibility or turning pro. . . . Education is not an issue. . . . Hirsch will make approximately $20,000 his first two years as a pro athlete. . . . If he has the academic urge, he will use part of his earnings to complete his scholastic work. . . . Stuhldreher's strongest rebuttal is—"Think of the happy memories he will have, if he finishes his eligibility at Wisconsin." . . . We have no doubt that a football career at Wisconsin is a recollection a player would cherish always, but it won't go far at the grocery store and the landlord will give you no credit for it at all. . . .

This department knows many men who have played both college and pro ball and as far as we can discern their happy memories are fairly well divided. . . . We yield to nobody in our enthusiasm for and support of college football. . . . We were almost alone a few years ago in defending it against attacks of educators who could find no room for intercollegiate games. . . . We believe it will flourish in the post-war era, because it exemplifies more than any other sport the virility of America. . . . It will die only if its leaders are so short sighted that they waste their energies fighting imaginary dangers rather than cleaning up and brightening up their own show. . . . College football is crying for a Rockne, Zuppke, Warner, Williams, or Stagg who will create plays and formations that influence the character of the game. . . . The pros now hold the initiative.

Here We Go Again!

Already begun. . . .
War's turmoil scarce over,
The battles just won—
The victory flags flying aloft and unfurled . . .
And SOMEBODY'S plane has circled the world!

Yes, now it commences,
Those headlines with titters . . .
Lord help us—we'll soon have

At Worcester, Mass.—Timmy Hayes knocked out Ray Moran [3].

BY FRANK MASTRO

Joey Barnum, 23 year old lightweight boxer from Los Angeles, turned in the finest performance of his four-year career by holding Willie Joyce, No. 3 contender for the division championship, to a draw in a 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium last night.

The decision was received with mingled boos and cheers by the 9,214 spectators which included 1,380 nonpaying and service men guests of promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun. Gross receipts were $37,823.35 and the net $29,094.88.

Referee Tommy Gilmore and Judges James Lynch each called the fight a draw, but Ed Klein, the other judge, voted 52 to 48 for Joyce.

Joey Takes Over

Joyce jumped into an early lead by outpointing his rugged foe in the first and second rounds. Barnum changed the complexion of the fight in the third round when he caught Joyce with several rights to the chin which sent him back on his heels. Joey also gained a margin in the fourth and eighth rounds and held his Gary opponent on even terms in the third, fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth.

Joyce's inability to elude Barnum's fast punching right gave the transplanted Californian a well merited draw. An old cut over Barnum's right eye was opened in the ninth.

Hubert Stays on Feet

Elmer Ray, Hastings, Fla., decisively outpointed Hubert Hood, 1942 Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, in a 10 round secondary feature. Altho Elmer entered the ring with 32 straight triumphs to his credit, 29 by knockouts, he was unable to score a single knockdown.

That's because Hood tried to outbox his 195 pound opponent and spent considerable time dancing out of range or falling into innumerable clinches. It was in close quarters that Ray landed his most damaging punches. The crowd received one of its few chances to cheer when the rivals exchanged blows on equal terms after the final bell for the fourth round. Seconds from both corners had to help the referee separate the fighters.

Benny Droll of Peoria, substituting for George Costner, easily defeated Bill McDowell, Dallas 157 pounder, in a 10 round supporting engagement. Benny won every round with the possible exception of the ninth and tenth. In the fifth and eighth rounds he made a punching bag of the rugged Texan. If he could punch with authority Droll might have registered a knockout in either of these periods.

Worlds Beats Walker

Clayton Worlds, former city Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, conquered Buddy Walker, veteran Columbus, O., fighter, in a 10 round bout which followed the main event. Walker fell out of the ring for an eight count in the fourth. In the seventh the men were jeered for the slow action. The struggle took on an interesting aspect in the ninth when Worlds, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall, had to resort to every trick in his repertoire to keep his chin out of range of Walker's two handed offensive.

Gene Roberts, Danville, Ill., featherweight, stopped Joey Palmo of Cincinnati in the third round of a scheduled four round opener to score his 14th straight victory and 12th knockout.

Sirde Likely Favorite in Rich Event

Inglewood, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—Fourteen horses were entered today for the sixth running of the $75,000 Hollywood Gold cup tomorrow. Buddies

Buddies in the line—
Friendships fused in conflict
Where grim missiles whine.

Bound by ties cemented
Breasting darksome fears,
Pals in days of danger,
Friends thru all the years.

I don't care if he did kick it out of bounds on the 1 yard line, he has no business punting on second down.—Ray Cvikota.

Home

Its outer walls may be of stone,
A cold slate roof above,
But the basis of a house that's home
Is always built of love.

A kindly father, firm but fair,
In loving furisdiction,
A mother's smiling presence there
Is childhood's benediction.

Outside, bleak winds may chill and roar
And men's quarrels never cease,
But inside home, behind closed door,
Is friendly warmth . . . and peace.

—Morrison Doc's Wife

Of course, not that my opinion is worth two cents, but——.—Gunny from Wisconsin.

Worry, Worry!

I listened to the world series even thru that terrible last game. But, tell me, Arch, I am still yearning to know how that protest on the Cardinal-Cub game came out. Did those guys pass each other on the baselines—and will that game be played over? I can't sleep until I know. —J. F. S.

Glasow's Gloombusters

SCHURZ DEFEATS LANE, 20 TO 0, IN PREP TITLE BID

South Shore Stopped by Harper, 7 to 6

BY DAVID CONDON

More than 8,000 football fans yesterday saw Schurz High school's eleven practically assure itself of the City league's north section crown as it gained a 20 to 0 triumph over Lane Tech's once tied but previously undefeated Indians, the defending champions who made a valiant effort to halt the high scoring unit which has rolled up 179 points in four league victories.

For the first quarter, the contest was scoreless, and it wasn't until midway in the second period that Clare Kaiden weakened the spirit of the Indian rooters who packed Lane stadium by scoring on a four yard quarter back sneak, giving Schurz a 6 to 0 lead. Dick Redman ran for the extra point, and by half time, after several other scoring threats had been halted by Lane, Schurz held a 7 to 0 lead.

Miller, Redman Score.

Johnny Miller broke off tackle in the third period for six yards to score the second touchdown, and in the fourth quarter, Redman crossed from the 1 yard line to climax a drive which started on the Schurz 44. The place kick for the point was good.

Outstanding for Lane were Alex Cichanski, half back, and Dick Kieres, quarter back, both of whom were removed because of injuries.

The victory was the fourth straight for Schurz, with two games remaining. It can clinch the title by winning one more.

Senn Beats Roosevelt

Elsewhere in the north section, Senn defeated Roosevelt, 33 to 6, in Winnemac park. Senn has won three, tied one, and lost the other. Al Jacobson scored twice for the victors, with Bill Swanson, Elliot Stirling, and Warren Wilke scoring the others. Don Clement made the Roosevelt touchdown. For Senn, the passing of Stig Nelson set up one touchdown, while both Jacobson's scores came on passes from Dick Fairgrieve.

In a south section game on Shewbridge field, Harper won a closely contested game from South Shore, 7 to 6, as Bill Johnson took a 20 yard pass from Art Barrett to score in the second quarter, and Tony Pavlionis added the point. The Tars scored in the last quarter when Joe Hoffman went around end for three yards. It was the first loss in four games for South Shore.

Foreman and Crane Tie

Phillips routed Kelly, 40 to 13, in 83d-Yates av. stadium in a central section game that was highlighted by Herman Jones' 70 yard runback of a kickoff for a Phillips score.

Calumet stayed in the title race in the south section by winning from Morgan Park 20 to 14, last night in Shewbridge field.

In the west section, Foreman and Crane played a 14 to 14 tie, with Harold Burgeson and Duncan Gardiner scoring the Foreman touchdowns and George Chioles and Gene Foley scoring for Crane. Steinmetz beat Marshall, 15 to 7, in the second west section meeting. Bob Spurling and Bob Wisher scored touchdowns for the victors, who added three more points on an extra point and a safety. Gene Siegal, who completed 16 to 32 passes for 292 yards, threw to Bob Lipsky for the Roosevelt touchdown. Lineups:

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19—Marquette university's football squad, strengthened by the return from army service of two of its stars of 1941 and 1942, Les Kalchik and Center Jimmy Sullivan, and buoyed by a top-heavy victory over Kansas State last week, has hopes of breaking Great Lakes' war time domination tomorrow night.

The Bluejackets from the Naval Training center, however, also will be bolstered by the return to the starting lineup of their great Negro full back, Marion Motley, 210 pounder from the University of Nevada, who was injured in the opening game with Michigan.

Kalchik Can Snag 'Em

The return of Kalchik has forced Coach Tom Stidham to revise his lineup, moving Orlando Palesse from right to left end and using Kalchik at right end. The former soldier was a sensational pass catcher for the great Charlie Trippi at Greensboro, N. C., in 1943 and has proved to Stidham that he hasn't forgotten how.

The starting Hilltop back field probably will be the same as that which opened in last Saturday's 55 to 13 drubbing of Kansas State. Bill Hickey of Chicago's St. Ignatius is the quarter back; Johnny Rudan, left half; Paul Copoulos at right half, and Bob Teik or Denny Pantzlaff at full back.

Potent Sailor Back Field

With Motley at full back, Great Lakes will have a powerful attacking group made up of the brilliant passer, George Terlep, former Notre Dame player, at quarter; Charles Parker, Southern Methodist, at left half; and Frank Aschenbrenner, ex-Marquette star, at right half.

The Bluejackets have won all five of their games with Marquette during this war time period, and go into the game with a season record of losses to Michigan [27 to 2] and Purdue [20 to 6], a scoreless tie with Wisconsin, and a 21 to 12 defeat by Fort Benning.

PROVISO PREP ELEVEN BEATS WAUKEGAN, 14-7

Mel Pfeifer ran a Waukegan punt back 64 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter as Proviso defeated the Waukegan eleven, 14 to 7, in a Suburban league game last night in Waukegan.

Pfeifer scored a touchdown in the opening period to give Proviso a 7 to 0 lead as the quarter ended. Waukegan's touchdown came in the second quarter. It was the second league triumph for the Pirates. Lineup:

CENTRAL PLAYS MISHAWAKA HIGH IN SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special]—South Bend Central and Mishawaka will renew one of the midwest's oldest high school football series when they meet in the 33d game of the 43 year old rivalry in Notre Dame stadium tomorrow. If the forecast of ideal weather prevails, the contest is expected to be played before 18,000.

The contest is expected to resolve itself around a passing duel between Central's Dick Flowers and Mishawaka's Jimmy Stefoff. Passing has been the chief offensive weapon of both teams, and observers lean to the belief they will rely heavily on that type of attack.

Central needs a victory to remain in the running for the eastern division championship in the Northern Indiana conference.

LAKE FOREST, CULVER RENEW RIVALRY TODAY

Culver, Ind., Oct. 19 [Special]—The Culver Military academy football team will renew its long standing football rivalry with Lake Forest academy here tomorrow. The game will feature the annual homecoming week-end here.

Between halves of the football game the cadet harriers will meet Loyola academy of Chicago.

Elmhurst Has Diamond Jubilee Homecoming Day

BEARS EAGER TO DEAL RAMS FIRST LOSS TOMORROW

The Bears concluded their hard labors yesterday for tomorrow's return match in Wrigley field with the Cleveland Rams, only unbeaten and untied team in the National Football league.

Gene Ronzani, the Bears' veteran quarter back, will get a chance to start the first attack against Cleveland, the coaches indicated yesterday. This is no slam at Sid Luckman, the regular custodian of the job, but it's a measure frequently adopted by a baseball club to snap out of a slump—shift the line-up. Ronzani has been used sparingly this season, but last year he filled in admirably on those Sundays when Luckman was unable to show up because of maritime service duties.

Inside 10 Yard Line Four Times

At Cleveland three weeks ago the Bears were shut out by the Rams, 17 to 0, the first blanking they had suffered since 1939 when they lost to the Detroit Lions, 10 to 0.

Against the Rams, the Bears progressed within the 10 yard line four times, but always were hurled back. Remembering this, the coaches continued working on goal line plays. Tho Luckman has completed more passes for more yardage than any National leaguer, only one of his tosses has gone for a touchdown. Gary Famiglietti twice failed to make a vital first down in these attacks against the Rams.

Penalties at crucial moments also have caused the Bears' offense and defense to sag, and the coaches have warned the players against committing infractions. In their fat seasons the Bears could easily recover after making fouls, because of their crushing strength.

Shaw to Join Rams

The Rams gained additional strength yesterday with announcement that Bob Shaw, former star end at Ohio State, will be available for the last five games of the campaign. He returned recently from European service.

The Rams also have signed the veteran Chet Adams of Ohio university and Jack Wilson, former Baylor back, for the 1946 season.

The Cards, still babbling happily after their escape from the .000 ranks last Sunday by beating the Bears, will leave today for Detroit and tomorrow's game with the Lions. The Lions have something to crow about, too . . . an upset victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

BLOOM DEFEATS KANKAKEE, 45-0, IN LEAGUE GAME

The Bloom High school football team swamped Kankakee, 45 to 0 in a South Suburban league game last night in Kankakee. Bob Sanravis' 45 yard dash in the third quarter was the longest scoring run. Sam Piazza made two touchdowns. Lineups:

UNBEATEN NAVY, GEORGIA TECH TO BATTLE TONIGHT

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 19 [Special]—Navy's powerful gridiron squad—unbeaten, untied, and unscored on in three games—will meet Georgia Tech in Baltimore Municipal stadium tomorrow night in the fifth renewal of one of football's colorful rivalries before an expected 40,000. The series is tied at two victories each, the Georgians scoring a 17 to 15 upset in last year's battle.

Star on the invaders' eleven is George Matthews, 170 pound half back, who saw action against the Navy last fall, and who is considered by naval academy's scouts as a fast back, an excellent pass receiver, and an outstanding all around player.

Veteran Boxers' Officials Resign from Association

Martin Luck yesterday announced his resignation as president of the Veteran Boxers' association of Illinois because of what he described as dissension in the organization. At the same time Frank Mastro of The Tribune sports staff announced his resignation as a member of the board of directors.

CIO IS PLANNING NEW STRUGGLE AGAINST WARD

U.S. Asks Dismissal of Court Action

Renewed conflict between Montgomery Ward & Co. and its unionized employes appeared in the making yesterday after the return Thursday night of company properties seized by Presidential order last Dec. 28.

An immediate cancellation by Sewell L. Avery, Ward board chairman, of maintenance of union membership and check-off of dues clauses won from the war labor board by the union brought an aroused response. Chicago offices of the United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail Employes [CIO] said that the entire national leadership was conferring by long distance telephone to organize the union's position without delay.

Union Head Goes to New York

Sam Wolchok, international president, who said earlier that he had protested to President Truman, went to New York to direct the union's program. Officers in Chicago said that a statement would be prepared promptly and that in the meantime no comment on Avery's cancellation order would be made.

A telegram was sent to Avery last night by Irving Abramson, organization director of the union, asking for a meeting in Chicago some time next week to discuss working conditions and requesting also that the negotiations be conducted in the presence of representatives of the press, church groups, and civic agencies. Abramson said the same requests were made in a letter Oct. 17 and that receipt of it had not been acknowledged.

U. S. Asks Dismissal of Petition

The third party in the historic controversy—the department of justice—asked the United States Supreme court yesterday for dismissal of Ward's petition for a ruling on the legality of the seizure order. A department memorandum said that return of the properties eliminated basis for court action.

The intent of the justice department's action was not clear to Ward officers, who said they were not required to make a move until the matter is understood.

"If this is a motion to dismiss our petition, that is one thing, but if it is merely a reply to the petition, that is something else," said Stuart S. Bell, general counsel. "We shall have to wait until we learn what the department has in mind."

The company reported that operation of the returned plants was quiet yesterday.

CROSLEY PLANS CAR ASSEMBLY AT MARION, IND.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 19 (AP)—The Crosley automobile will be assembled at Marion, Ind., Powel Crosley Jr., president of Crosley Motors, Inc., said today.

The former radio and household appliance manufacturer disclosed his company had purchased the plant of the Peerless of America, Inc., at Marion for $350,000. Engines will be built in Cincinnati.

Crosley said the first car would roll off the assembly line "sometime in January" and full production, requiring employment of 1,200 persons, would be reached within six months.

RETAIL VOLUME CLIMBS ABOVE WEEK, YEAR AGO

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—Retail volume rose this week over the preceding week, aided by favorable weather and Columbus day promotions, Dun & Bradstreet said today. Volume was 8 to 12 per cent above the similar week last year, with the middle west gain estimated at 6 to 10 per cent.

DUPLAN EXPANSION

I should like information on Duplan corporation's expansion program and earnings record.—T. L.

This company, which manufactures fabrics of rayon, acetate, nylon, glass fiber, and other yarns and asbestos, and which also processes yarns for other manufacturers, recently announced a two year plant expansion program.

A site has been selected in Winston-Salem, N. C., for a nylon throwing [yarn twisting] plant with more than twice the capacity of Duplan's present leased space there. A building has been purchased at Lehighton, Pa., for a throwing mill and additions are to be made to certain other plants. New looms for weaving mills and other equipment have been ordered.

The company's sales rose to $20,108,000 in the fiscal year ended last May 31 from $10,064,000 in the 1939 period. Profits per share, based on 280,586 shares in 1945 and 270,000 in earlier periods, were: 1945, $2.31 [before renegotiation]; 1944, $1.54; 1943, $1.34; 1942, $1.16; 1941, 58 cents; 1940, $1.01; 1939, $1.03. Common cash dividends have been paid each year since 1918. They amounted to 30 cents so far this year and 70 cents in 1944, plus 2 per cent in stock in both years.

Preferred stock was redeemed in 1944. Outstanding are 2 million dollars of serial notes. Net working capital last May 31 was $3,866,000.

Truman Wage Policy Decree Is Postponed

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—President Truman, after a two hour cabinet session, today put off his expected declaration of a wage-price policy to allay strikes while Capitol Hill heard demands for labor law changes.

The cabinet meeting, in which nearly all of the President's department heads participated, was devoted principally to the wage-price question, but the statement that Mr. Truman had promised was deferred until next week.

This was taken to mean one of two things:

1. Such a policy was not yet clearly enough drawn to be announced.

2. If it had crystallized it had to be put in writing for formal announcement, by executive order or otherwise. This may take several days.

Tendency to Ease Policy

Present administration policy is to allow wage increases only to correct any inequalities and where no compensatory price increases result. Administration spokesmen, however, have leaned recently toward more liberal wage policy while holding the line against price spirals.

Labor Secretary Schwellenbach, key figure in the discussion, declined to tell reporters what took place at the meeting. He has favored using the war labor board to establish a pattern by test cases involving wage increases dependent upon price boosts.

But the board declined Mr. Truman's invitation to continue a while longer, and proceeded with its plans to liquidate by mid-December or Jan. 1.

Wishes Strike Notice Repealer

While the cabinet was hunting for a wage-price policy which would serve as a brake on strikes, Schwellenbach's assistant secretary, Daniel W. Tracy, put the labor department on record before congress as desiring immediate repeal of the strike notice section of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act.

Tracy told the house military affairs committee holding hearings on repeal of the entire act that the government strike polls required by that section were "hurting rather than helping the cause of industrial peace."

Rep. Smith [D., Va.] wants to repeal the entire measure which he co-sponsored with Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] and others in June, 1943. Connally wants to wipe out only the strike vote section. Both thought the measure would reduce war time strikes, but Tracy said the strike notice section "serves to increase friction between management and labor."

SUPPLY OF LIVE STOCK REMAINS BELOW DEMAND

Live stock offerings at the Chicago stock yards yesterday remained below trade requirements, and prices held firm. With the exception of hogs, meat animal volume this week has fallen below last week.

The cattle run of 2,800 was about average for Friday, but the week's total shrank 8 per cent from last week and was 6 per cent smaller than a year ago. Quality steers brought the $18 ceiling per 100 pounds and most other cattle held steady.

Altho sheep and lamb receipts of 7,500 were the largest for a Friday since June, the week's supply was 8 per cent below last week and 24 per cent less than a year ago. Top grades remained at a 20 year October high.

The arrival of more 1945 spring pigs this week swelled receipts to the largest in three months, but pork production still was far below normal for this season. Prices held steady at ceilings.

KAISER LEARNS MAKING PLANES IS A BIG TASK

Experience Proves Prime Requisite

(This is the seventh in a series of articles on Henry J. Kaiser.)

BY FRANK STURDY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19—In the spring of 1942, when the airplane industry, literally inundated with army and navy orders, was suffering from growing pains and materials shortages, Henry Kaiser announced that he wished to build several thousand vast "sky fraters" to do the work of the cargo ships the Germans were relentlessly torpedoing in the Atlantic.

Kaiser had never built an airplane, but then, he had never built a ship until a little more than a year before, and now he had a half dozen thriving ship yards on the way to ship building records. So with characteristic enthusiasm, he saw no insuperable hurdle to teaching the aircraft industry a lesson. He proposed to build his "sky fraters" in ship yards converted for the purpose.

Aircraft Industry Job Critical

The aircraft industry at the time was in a critical stage.

The army and navy had scheduled production carefully on the basis of every scrap of material that could be counted on.

After weeks of negotiations Kaiser failed to persuade the army and navy to sponsor his experiment.

In mid-summer, Kaiser obtained a letter from Donald Nelson, head of the war production board, promising assistance on condition that Kaiser refrain from breaking into materials already allotted the airplane companies, and that he would not attempt to recruit experienced designers and engineers from aircraft companies. Kaiser agreed.

Altho Kaiser had drawings of an airplane, neither the army, navy, nor WPB was able to learn what production engineering had been done.

Confers with Kaiser

Trying to learn what Kaiser had, the WPB persuaded five of the leading aircraft men of the country to form a committee to confer with him. Grover Loening, an eminent aircraft engineer and adviser to the WPB aviation section, journeyed to the west coast and met Kaiser in his Oakland office near the end of August.

Loening said Kaiser had no engineering plans for an airplane. When he asked to see the shipyard where Kaiser proposed to build planes, he said, Kaiser took him to a vacant site and said that he wished to build a new plant to cost 14 million dollars. Kaiser said he had changed his mind about using a shipyard, Loening reported.

While Kaiser was conducting his campaign in Washington, one of Glenn Martin's department heads appealed to the WPB for protection, saying one of Kaiser's men had tried to hire two of his designers. Lockheed reported to the WPB that another of Kaiser's men had telephoned a request for no fewer than 30 designers and engineers.

Kaiser Makes Promise

An official of the WPB notified Kaiser of the reports, reminding him of his agreement. Kaiser promised they would not be repeated.

Unable to pry appropriations from the army or navy, Kaiser turned to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. President Roosevelt was reported to have intervened in his behalf, and the result was a loan of 18 millions and a contract to produce three 400,000 pound airplanes.

Kaiser interested Howard Hughes, millionaire manufacturer and expert pilot, in his project. The experiment jelled in a design for the largest aircraft ever built, a flying boat to be constructed of wood.

As months passed and it became apparent there was no hope of turning out the large numbers of airplanes he had persuaded himself could be built, Kaiser withdrew from the project.

He Remains Resentful

Kaiser still is resentful of what he considers the selfishness of the aircraft industry.

"They were afraid of us, and every one in aircraft did everything they could to keep us out," he said.

On one occasion in Washington in the summer of 1942, a WPB official suggested that Kaiser could build Curtiss-Wright C-46 cargo planes, which were then getting into production in quantity and have since carried cargo all over the world. Kaiser declined on the ground that "they aren't big enough."

Later, Kaiser tried to interest an eastern airplane maker in joining him to persuade other manufacturers to form a corporation to make large flying boats. Kaiser proposed that he head the group enterprise. A little stunned, the airplane man explained the proposal would require the companies to finance the project and provide technicians from staffs already overstrained. Kaiser agreed, but avowed that he thought it would not hurt them.

Glore, Forgan Pullman Bid to Be Considered

The federal District court in Philadelphia yesterday agreed to consider the offer made last Saturday by Glore, Forgan & Co., Chicago investment banking firm, to purchase all the capital stock of the Pullman company, sleeping car subsidiary of Pullman, Inc. The offer was the second submitted to the court. Other groups have indicated they will make bids soon.

The Glore, Forgan offer and one made earlier by Otis & Co., Cleveland banking firm, and its associates both will be considered by the court on Nov. 5

Glore, Forgan proposed to pay the difference between the value of the assets and the liabilities of the Pullman company. Otis would purchase the physical assets for a price estimated at 75 million dollars.

Two Other Bids Expected

Other offers are expected before Nov. 5 from a Michigan-Pennsylvania industry group headed by W. F. Rockwell, chairman of Standard Steel Spring company, and from the railroads. The railroads are understood to be attempting to formulate a plan for submission before other offers are considered.

Pullman, Inc., has until March 22 to divest itself of the sleeping car subsidiary under terms of a court order which held the corporation and its subsidiaries in violation of the anti-trust laws. The court will approve, but not choose a purchaser.

Some Chicago reports have been that the Otis group is closest to acquiring the sleeping car business, and in Philadelphia yesterday Thurman Arnold, counsel for Otis, asked for quick action on the offer.

"The Pullman company is indifferent as to who buys the business," he told Circuit Judge Albert B. Maris, "and has told me that it is willing right now to accept our offer, but feels that any others who are interested should be given a chance to present their terms."

May Buy for Young, Kirby

The wording of the Otis offer indicated that Otis would purchase Pullman for the Robert R. Young-Allan Kirby group, heading Alleghany corporation, which has control of the Chesapeake and Ohio, Nickel Plate, and Pete Marquette railroads.

Glore-Forgan proposed to purchase the Pullman stock for public distribution. Both Otis and Glore have said that the rights of labor in their relationships to Pullman company would not be affected.

Judge Maris said he believed all offers to purchase the business should be presented before Nov. 5 and heard at that time.

BYOIR TESTIFIES IN A. & P. TRIAL; DENIES LOBBYING

Danville, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP)—Carl Byoir, co-defendant in the government's anti-trust suit against the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, today testified that neither he nor his public relations firm ever lobbied against anti-chain store legislation.

After being retained by A. & P. in 1937, his firm, Carl Byoir & Associates, engaged in what he termed an educational program designed to tell customers that any taxes against chain stores "ultimately would be passed on to consumers." He said John Hartford, A. & P. president, expressed concern over "propaganda against chain stores" and he said he did not believe in lobbying or participation in politics, "but agreed to an educational program."

Byoir said A. & P.'s opposition to the Wright-Patman chain store tax bill in congress was expressed in advertisments published in 1,600 newspapers and periodicals, and in news releases sent to 1,900 daily newspapers and 10,000 weekly publications.

SURPLUS CONSUMER GOODS SALES SHIFTED TO RFC BY PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19 (AP)—President Truman today ordered the job of disposing of surplus consumer goods, ranging from trucks to bandages and tableware, transferred from the department of commerce to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. RFC already was handling disposal of factories and lands, and factory machinery.

The shift was made on recommendation of Secretary of Commerce Wallace. He called the split operation "administratively unworkable."

W. Stuart Symington, surplus property administrator, gave to the War Assets corporation, an RFC subsidiary formerly known as the Petroleum Reserves corporation, the duty of disposing of all surplus property for which RFC is responsible. War Assets corporation will have a seven man board of directors, five from RFC and two from the surplus property administration. Sam H. Husbands, an RFC director, will be chairman.

Council Group Votes 5 Million Fund to CHA

A recommendation that the 5 million dollars for slum clearance approved by the voters last June be handed over to the Chicago housing authority, New Deal sponsor of low rental public projects, was made by the influential housing committee of the city council yesterday. Five members who opposed the action asserted the city would irrevocably commit itself to government housing and that private enterprise would be barred from redeveloping blighted areas.

The ordinance approved by the committee will come before the council next Thursday. Further opposition is expected, but it is believed that the committee's prestige will swing the council its way.

Other Fund Also Involved

Besides the city's 5 million bond issue, the committee's action also contemplates giving CHA use of the city's 5 million share of slum clearance appropriations voted by the last legislature.

Ald. Wagner [14th] and Ald. Merryman [45th] charged their fellow committee members with having ignored two groups with development plans who asked only for city help in condemning sites.

Wagner said later that he referred to Chinatown merchants, who have plans drawn and money ready for an extensive project, and to a group of south side bankers who wish to finance redevelopment of an area now regarded as blighted.

Three Sites Criticized

Selection of the three sites favored by CHA was questioned by H. Evert Kincaid, executive director of the Chicago plan commission, who was asked for his views by Ald. Moss [5th]. The three sites are:

Between 31st and 35th sts., from Indiana av. to the alley east of Giles av.

Between Cottage Grove and Vernon avs. from 37th st. to 34th pl.

Between Loomis st. and Ashland av., from Roosevelt rd. to 15th st., plus a narrow strip from Loomis st. to Blue Island av. between 14th st. and 14th pl.

Kincaid said all three sites "invite occupancy of but one racial group."

"Redevelopment should not be synonymous with low rental housing," he said. "The thought of the plan commission is to bring back toward the heart of the city families of higher incomes."

SENATOR URGES END OF SEEKING FEDERAL HELP

Dangers in Trend Told by Ferguson

The trend toward permitting the federal government to solve local problems is a dangerous one and should be reversed immediately, Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] said last night at the annual banquet of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce in the Palmer House.

One of four senators to attend the dinner, Ferguson said "everyone seems to be coming to Washington for a solution to his problems," but warned that the "nation was not founded on that philosophy and did not grow great by it." He was accompanied by Senators Johnson [D., Colo.], Morse [R., Ore.], and O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.].

Must Solve Own Destinies

"Our nation was founded on the philosophy that the role of government in society was to set the framework of law and order, fix the general rules of the game, and leave the people free to work out their own destinies," Ferguson said.

"A changed philosophy finally broke thru in the 1930's. Government has been called in to make up the deficiency for our lack of self-reliance, imagination and enterprise. You have carried the process too far and you have turned many of your affairs over to government. You are paying the price in coercion, regimentation, corruption, and the ultimate loss of the liberties of a free people."

Johnson asserted the "nation is skidding down the road at breakneck speed toward worthless printing press money" while taxes are being reduced and government spending is being cut "apathetically."

Money in Use at High Level

"Already in this country the circulation of currency is six times its normal volume," he said. "In addition our 261 billion dollars in federal bonds to all practical purposes are printing press money."

In answer to a question from the audience, Morse said industry and labor must stop "looking to the government to settle labor disputes and rely on collective bargaining." He said if employers "don't stop calling in the government to settle disputes, they will find the government will take them over."

Asked about the practice of unemployed workers turning down jobs in order to collect unemployment compensation, O'Mahoney said this was a "temporary aspect," and that "only a small fraction of workers are chiselers."

The senators were welcomed by Gov. Green who was among the large number of guests at the speakers table. He was introduced by James F. Stiles Jr., vice president of Abbott Laboratories. Stiles is the new president of the state chamber.

STOCK MARKET TURNS LOWER; VOLUME RISES

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—Late selling today on the stock market resulted in losses of fractions to more than 3 points in all departments. A few new highs were made, however, at the close.

Accounts were trimmed or shelved in most cases because of the growing belief the list had gone too far and too fast even with the news generally favorable to investors.

Dealings, slow at intervals, quickened at the last and transfers totalled 1,730,000 shares compared with 1,670,000 yesterday.

BOND PRICES DIP

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—The bond market today reversed an earlier upward trend near the close with railroad issues losing a large part of their previous gains.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN

Big Refunding Is Proposed by Burlington

The Burlington railroad last night disclosed plans for a refinancing program of approximately 70 million dollars next week before the opening of the victory loan drive, but Ralph Budd, president, cautioned that "it may not be possible to accomplish it in so short a time."

New low interest bonds would be sold at competitive bidding effecting a reduction in total debt. Slated for retirement were 30 million of collateral trust 3⅛s sold in April, 1944, as the first of the large low interest rail refundings, and 40 million of 30 year 3¾s marketed less than a year ago. These are the only Burlington issues callable at present.

I. C. Has Bond Program

Directors of the Illinois Central railroad yesterday authorized a call for tenders on approximately 54 million dollars of noncallable bonds. Of 14 issues involved, one is due in 1950, 11 in 1951, and two in 1952. More than 19 million dollars of the bonds carry a 4 per cent interest rate, more than 24 millions draw 3½ per cent, and the others 3 per cent or more.

A company spokesman said it was a "wide open guess" as to how successful the tender call will be. Holders of these bonds would have to consider how else they could invest their money to give them as large a return.

WARS' DISABLED INSIST THAT U. S. PUT THEM FIRST

National Session Opened by 1,500 Delegates

Fifteen hundred delegates last night opened a five day national convention of the Disabled American Veterans in the Congress hotel on the keynote that the "disabled are valuable" and that their welfare must be considered first among post-war problems.

Secretary of State Edward F. Barrett, a veteran of both wars, urged immediate payment of federal and state bonuses to veterans as a means of protecting them from future distress.

"There must be no apple selling among the heroes of this war," Barrett said.

Asks Hospitals and Training

Barrett said the convention was "well timed" to heighten the interest of the public in disabled fighters. He asserted that adequate hospital facilities and vocational training must be provided by the government.

National Commander Milton D. Cohn of Buffalo, N. Y., presented to Sheriff Mulcahy a citation praising Chicago as the city which extended "outstanding hospitality" to service men and women during the war. Sheriff Mulcahy appeared as a representative of Mayor Kelly, who is suffering from a cold.

Predicts Comprehensive Program.

Dr. Fred C. Jeths of Chicago, Illinois state department commander, was installed as chairman of the convention. He reported that the convention will blueprint a comprehensive program of legislation intended to benefit disabled veterans.

Business sessions of the convention today will be preceded by an address at 10 a. m., by Gen. Bradley, veteran's administrator.

Marion Claire, soprano, and Bruce Foote, baritone, will sing the leading roles, Ruth Slater, contralto, and John Toms, tenor, will sing supporting roles.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

The dramatic cast will be headed by Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, and Sondra Gair. Henry Weber will direct the orchestra and chorus. Popular tunes from the show to be heard include: "The Song Is You," "I've Told Every Little Star," "Love Was Born," and "I'm Alone."

Tenants Forced to Walk in Tieup of Elevators

More than 50 tenants of the eight story National Bank of Hyde Park building at 1525 E. 53d st., were forced to walk up the street level when a main elevator fuse blew at 5:40 p. m., trapping two building employes and three tenants in the elevators. Repairs were delayed until 6:30 p. m. because the building engineer, Lon Carter, the only employe who could make the repairs, was trapped in the service elevator between the second and third floors.

REPORTS JAP PLANE FLEW OVER SEATTLE DOCK AREA IN 1943

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 19 (AP)—Larry Tighe, American Broadcasting company correspondent, quoted an unnamed Japanese official in a broadcast from Tokyo last night as saying a Nipponese plane, launched from a submarine, flew over the Seattle dock area Dec. 22, 1943. He said the plane dropped incendiaries in the vicinity of the city "with unobserved results." Army and navy authorities on the west coast said last night that they could recall no instances of Japanese planes dropping or attempting to drop incendiary bombs on the area.

ARMSTRONG ASSERTS REHIRING OF VETS IS UNIVERSAL IN STATE

Illinois employers have realized their moral as well as legal obligation to returned veterans and so far not a single case has been referred to the United States attorney for legal action, Col. Paul G. Armstrong, state director of selective service, said yesterday. He spoke at a Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon in the Stevens hotel.

Armstrong, who explained the laws governing the reëmployment of veterans, warned the business men, however, that the problem is just now assuming major proportions.

"I've heard employers say they can't reëmploy veterans—that the veterans quit, get angry, hit foremen in the nose," Armstrong said. "I'm asking you to remember that these men have been thru hell and they have a hard time readjusting to a humdrum job. If you don't help, intelligently, these men may become bums, mental patients, or criminals." He also predicted that congress would soon be called upon to pass clarifying legislation, based on the experience gained from the operation of the 1940 selective service act and its amendments.

Three small carriers will take 1,600. Six cruisers will carry from 1,000 to 500 men each. Outfits alerted for shipment home are the 36th, 75th, 79th, 89th infantry and 12th armored divisions and the 16th corps.

SCIENTISTS GIVE PIGEON DISEASE THEORY THE BIRD

Chicago's wild pigeons yesterday were voted a new lease on life by a committee of eminent bacteriologists who met in the office of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. The scientists condemned "indiscriminate elimination" of the birds and demanded more conclusive evidence that they transmit virus pneumonia to humans.

The group was composed of Drs. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association; F. B. Gordon, associate professor of bacteriology at the University of Chicago; Alex A. Day, chairman of the department of bacteriology and public health at Northwestern university medical school, and Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, emeritus professor of bacteriology at the University of Chicago and president of the Chicago Tumor institute.

The committee said that while studies indicate pigeons "may carry" the virus of ornithosis the disease also can be found in other birds or fowl. Not one case of pneumonia traceable to either of the two viruses ever has been found in Chicago, Dr. William Fishbein, epidemiologist of the health department, pointed out. The committee urged that funds and facilities be provided for a thoro study which a health department spokesman said would be made at a possible cost of $25,000.
